CENTRAL LAND BOARD AND WAR DAMAGE COMMISSION

6 Carlton House Terrace, S.W.1

[Whitehall: 4341]

The War Damage Commission was appointed on March 27, 1941, to administer Part I of the War Damage Act, 1941, 4 & 5 Geo. 6, ch. 12. The 1941 Act, and two subsequent amending Acts, were consolidated in the War Damage Act, 1943, 6 & 7 Geo. 6, ch. 21. Its operations are related only to war damage to land and buildings, those parts of the Act which are concerned with goods and chattels being administered through the Board of Trade. In addition to the Headquarters in London the Commission has five Regional Offices in the London and South Eastern area, and eight elsewhere in England, together with offices in Edinburgh, Cardiff and Belfast.

The Central Land Board was appointed on November 11, 1947, under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, 10 & 11 Geo. 6, ch. 51, and the corresponding Scottish Act, 10 & 11 Geo. 6, ch. 53. The functions of the Board in relation to the financial provisions of the Acts have been radically altered by the Town and Country Planning Act, 1953. The Government's intentions for the future are set out in a White Paper (Cmd. 8699) published in November, 1952. The membership of the Commission and of the Board is identical and there is a common staff for both bodies.

H.M. LAND REGISTRY

Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.2

[Holborn: 3488]

H.M. Land Registry was established in pursuance of a recommendation of a Royal Commission by the Land Registry Act 1862. The aim of the Act was to render dealings with land more simple and economical by establishing a State register of land-owners who voluntarily submitted the titles to their land for examination and approval by the Registrar on behalf of the State. The Registry was reformed by the Land Transfer Act, 1875, which, while making many changes in the system, continued its voluntary basis. In 1897 the Land Transfer Act introduced the principle of compulsory registration, and four Orders in Council under that Act between 1898 and 1902 made the system compulsory on sale in the administrative county of London. By a further Order made in 1925 registration was made compulsory on sale in Eastbourne, under an order made in 1928 in Hastings, in 1936 in the administrative county of Middlesex, in Dec. 1938 in the County Borough of Croydon, and in 1952 in the administrative County of Surrey. The Land Registration Act, 1925, consolidated the previous Acts, and made such changes in the system as the experience of a generation had shown to be necessary. The keynote of the system is that the machinery for the purchase and sale of land is assimilated to that for stocks and shares. Absolute titles granted by the Land Registry are guaranteed by the State. Simple forms, analogous to those used on transfers of stocks and shares, are provided. The cost of buying, selling or mortgaging registered land is much less than the cost in the case of unregistered land. It is open to any County Council or Council of a County Borough to apply to the Privy Council for an order making registration of title compulsory in its area. The Land Registry is administered under the Lord Chancellor by the Chief Land Registrar, who also controls the Land Charges Department under the Land Charges Act, 1925, and the Agricultural Credits Act 1928 (Sec. 9).

NATIONAL CENTRAL LIBRARY

Malet Place, W.C.1

[Euston: 6262]

Incorporated by Royal Charter and maintained by annual grants from the Treasury, Municipal and County Authorities, University and special libraries, Adult Education bodies, and public Trusts.

The Library is a national centre for the loan of books (other than fiction and students' text-books) to readers in all parts of the British Isles, through their public, university, or other library. It is able to draw on over 21,000,000 books in nearly all the principal British libraries. Special Departments include the Information Department (for the supply of bibliographical information), the Adult Class Department (which lends books to organized classes of adult students), the Bureau of American Bibliography (which contains the chief American bibliographies and catalogues, including the only set of the Library of Congress card catalogue in the British Isles), and the British National Book Centre for the recording of duplicates and "unwanted" books and periodicals and their redistribution to suitable libraries at home and abroad. The Library also maintains an International Lending Service.

Applications to borrow books must be made through the reader's library and not directly to the National Central Library.

South Kensington, S.W.7

[Kensington: 6371]

Open free on weekdays 10 to 6; Sundays 2.30 to 6. Closed on Good Friday and Christmas Day.

For Science Museum Library, see below.

The Science Museum, which is the National Museum of Science and Industry, was instituted in 1853 under the Science and Art Department as a part of the South Kensington Museum, and opened in 1857; to it was added in 1883 the Collections of the Patent Museum. In 1900 the administration of the Science Collections was separated from that of the Art Collections, which were transferred to the Victoria and Albert Museum. The Collections in the Science Museum illustrate the development of science and engineering and related industries.

The seven departments into which the exhibits are grouped are shown below.

The administrative expenses of the Museum and Library were estimated at £167,896 in 1953-54 to be met by a vote under Education.

THE VICTORIA AND ALBERT MUSEUM

[Kensington: 6371]

Hours 10 to 6 (weekdays and Bank Holidays); Sundays, 2.30 to 6. Admission Free. Art Library and Print Room open free 10 to 6 (closed Sunday). Is a museum of all branches of fine and applied art, under the Ministry of Education.

The Museum descends direct from the Museum of Manufactures (later called Museum of Ornamental Art) opened in Marlborough House in 1852. The nucleus was a selection of objects bought for £5,000 from the Great Exhibition of 1851 which, with objects illustrating historic styles, was to be devoted to the "application of fine art to the objects of utility" and "the improvement of the public taste in design." The Museum was moved in 1857 to become part of the collective South Kensington Museum. Most of the older buildings date from 1860-82; the new parts from 1899-1909. The South Kensington Museum was re-named the Victoria and Albert Museum in 1899, and only became an exclusively art museum in 1909. Besides comprising the departments named below, the Museum contains the national collections of post-classical sculpture (excluding modern), of British miniatures and of water-colours, the National Art Library, and of art lantern slides. The branch museum at Bethnal Green (composed of a building formerly at South Kensington) was opened in 1872. The Victoria and Albert Museum also administers the Wellington Museum (Apsley House); Ham House, Richmond and Osterley Park, Middlesex.

THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE

(Kensington: 3264)

The Imperial Institute was founded in 1887 as a memorial of Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee. Its primary purposes were firstly, to give scientific and technical advice in the interests of the economic development of the natural resources of the Empire, and secondly educational, to provide visual aids to a knowledge of the life, scenery and industries of the Empire.

Since April 1, 1949, as a direct result of recommendations adopted by the Commonwealth Scientific Conference of 1946, the scientific and technical activities of the Institute have been transferred to the control of the Secretary of State for the Colonies; the Institute retaining its educational functions. From the same date the Minister responsible for the administration and finance of the Institute is the Minister of Education, who includes in the Estimate for his Department an annual grant-in-aid from Parliament to supplement the annual grants to the Institute from Overseas Empire Governments and the annual income from its invested endowment funds. The Minister is assisted in the management of the Institute by a Board of Governors consisting of the High Commissioners for the Dominions, representatives of United Kingdom Government Departments and of educational, commercial and industrial interests.

IMPERIAL WAR MUSEUM

(Reliance: 2636)

Open free daily (except Good Friday and Christmas Day), 10 a.m.; Sundays, 2 p.m. Closes at 6 p.m.

The Museum was founded by the War Cabinet in March, 1917, and established by Act of Parliament in 1920 as a memorial of the effort and sacrifice made by the men and women of the Empire during the Great War of 1914-1918 and to provide a record and a place for the study of that period. On the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939, the Trustees were authorized to collect exhibits and records of the War of 1939-1945 on similar lines. The exhibition galleries contain relics, models, weapons, uniforms, badges, and medals and record the achievements of the three fighting services and the war effort and experiences of the home front. There is also a number of picture galleries containing works by prominent British artists who recorded the two wars in paintings, drawings, or sculpture. A reference library contains the important books dealing with all aspects of the military, social, political and economic history of the two wars, and files of the many service journals and other periodicals published during those periods. The Photographic Department contains all the official war photographs and prints may be purchased and reproductions authorized. The official cinematograph films of the two wars are also in the Trustees' custody.

NATIONAL INSURANCE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

 [Whitehall: 9066]

The National Insurance Advisory Committee was appointed on Oct. 28, 1947, under the National Insurance Act, 1946, to give advice and assistance to the Minister of National Insurance in connection with the discharge of his functions under the Act, and to perform any other duties allotted to it under the Act. These other duties include the consideration of preliminary drafts of regulations to be made under the National Insurance Act, 1946, and representations received thereon. When the regulations are laid before Parliament, the Committee's Report on the preliminary draft is laid with them, together with a statement by the Minister showing what amendments to the preliminary draft have been made, what effect has been given to the Committee's recommendations, and, if effect has not been given to any recommendation, the reasons for not adopting it. The Minister of National Insurance may refer to the Committee for consideration and advice any questions relating to the operation of the Act (including questions as to the advisability of amending the Act).

Chairman, Sir Will Spens, C.B.E.

Members: Sir John S. Boyd; Professor J. K. Charlesworth; Mrs. L. Davies, M.B.E.; Dr. B. Hutchison, M.C.; A. Roberts, C.B.E.; Miss E. M. Spelman; Professor R. M. Titmuss; H. W. Townley, O.B.E.

Secretary, Mrs. F. P. A. Parr.

INDUSTRIAL INJURIES ADVISORY COUNCIL

to John Adam Street, W.C.2
 [Whitehall: 9066]

The Industrial Injuries Advisory Council, established under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, considers and advises the Minister of National Insurance on the Regulations proposed under the Act, and on other questions which the Minister refers to it.

Chairman, Sir Wilfrid Garrett.

Members, C. R. Dale; E. De'Ath, C.B.E., D.C.M.; Col. R. Forbes, D.S.O., M.C.; Sir Hugh Griffiths, C.B.E.; Dame Florence Hancock, D.B.E.; E. C. Haggold; Prof. R. E. Lane; Sir William Lawther; T. A. E. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION
SUPPLEMENTATION BOARD

 PNEUMOCONIOSIS AND BYSSINOSIS

 [Whitehall: 9066]

The Workmen's Compensation Supplementation Board was appointed on July 11, 1951, under the Workmen's Compensation (Supplementation) Scheme, 1951, to consider and determine all claims arising and any other questions assigned to it under the scheme. The scheme deals solely with persons who have rights under the Workmen's Compensation Acts on account of an accident which happened (or industrial disease contracted) before January 1, 1924. It gives them allowances out of the Industrial Injuries Fund to bring their compensation up to about the level it would have stood at if the later Workmen's Compensation Acts had applied to them.

The Pneumoconiosis and Byssinosis Benefit Board was appointed on March 10, 1952, under the Pneumoconiosis and Byssinosis Benefit Scheme, 1952, to consider and determine all claims arising and all questions assigned to it under the scheme. The scheme provides for payments out of the Industrial Injuries Fund for total disablement or death from pneumoconiosis or byssinosis in certain cases which are not covered by either the Workmen's Compensation Acts or the Industrial Injuries Act.

Chairman, P. E. Sandlands, O.B.E., O.C.

Deputy Chairman, E. J. Keith, Q.C.

Members: J. A. Atkinson, D.F.C.; Sir William Lawther; A. McAndrews; D. Overend; R. Pilkington; W. C. Stansfield.

Secretary, S. G. Nicholls.

NATIONAL PARKS COMMISSION

3 Chester Gate, Regent's Park, N.W.1
 [Welbeck: 0366]

The National Parks Commission, a body corporate, was established under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949. Members are appointed by the Minister of Housing and Local Government, to whom the Commission reports annually. This report is laid before each House of Parliament.

The Commission is entrusted with the task of designating National Parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. The former must be extensive tracts of country and afford provision for open-air recreation. The Parks, when approved by the Minister of Housing and Local Government, are administered by Local Planning Authorities, subject to a general supervision by the Parks Commission. The Commission is also required to report to the Minister of Housing and Local Government on long-distance routes, e.g. the Pennine Way, to make representations to the Minister of Housing and Local Government or Local Planning Authorities on any proposed development likely to be prejudicial to the natural beauty of any area, and to provide information services for the public.

ROYAL OBSERVATORIES

Royal Greenwich Observatory

[Herstmonceux: 3171; Greenwich: 1238]
 [Abinger: 50]

The Royal Observatory, Greenwich, was established by Charles II in 1675. When international agreement on the selection of a zero or prime meridian from which the longitudes of all places should be measured was sought in 1884, the choice of the meridian through the transit circle of the Royal Observatory was a recognition of the importance of the contributions of the Observatory to astronomical and nautical science. With the growth of London, there has been a progressive deterioration in the conditions for astronomical observations at Greenwich, and the installation of brighter street lighting has made the skies at night too bright for long exposure photography. The removal of the Observatory from Greenwich to Herstmonceux, Sussex, is now in progress. The Admiralty has purchased Herstmonceux Castle, with about 370 acres of ground, as the home for the Royal Observatory. The Castle, built in 1440 and carefully restored and modernized in recent years, is one of the finest early brick buildings in England. It was built by Sir Roger de Fiennes, Treasurer to the Household of Henry VI. It is hoped to complete the removal by the end of 1955. The removal will entail no change in the prime meridian. The longitude of the new site will be accurately determined by special longitude observations made simultaneously at Greenwich and Herstmonceux.

PAYMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE

Russell Square House, Russell Square, W.C.1
[Terminus: 3622]

The Paymaster General's Office was formed by the consolidation in 1835 of various separate pay departments then existing, some of which dated back at least to the Restoration of 1660. Other offices were incorporated in 1848. Its function is that of paying agent for the different Government Departments, other than the Revenue Departments. The majority of its payments are made through banks (to whose accounts the necessary transfers are made at the Bank of England), but cash payments are also made, and the payment of pensions is an important feature of its work. The Establishment expenses were estimated at £303,100 in 1953-54.

THE POST OFFICE

St. Martin's le Grand, E.C.1

[Headquarters: 1234]

Crown services for the conveyance of Government letters and despatches by posts or stages were set up under a Master of the Posts about 1516. Public correspondence was officially accepted for the first time for conveyance by these services at fixed postage rates in 1635, but they were still under direct Crown control. In 1657 a Post Office was created under a Postmaster-General by Oliver Cromwell, and responsibility for the carrying of all letters was thus transferred to Parliament. Charles the Second ratified this arrangement by statute in 1660, since when the Post Office has been one of the great revenue collecting Departments.

The Money Order Office was inaugurated in 1792, uniform Penny Post in 1840, the Book Post in 1848, the Post Office Savings Bank in 1861, the Post Office Telegraphs in 1870, Postal Orders and the Post Office Telephone Service in 1881 and the Parcel Post in 1883.

The Post Office also acts as agent for many other Government Departments in the collection of revenue and the disbursement of pensions and allowances.

The expenses of the Post Office (salaries, wages, etc., only) were estimated at £159,982,000 in 1953-54. Post Office transactions with the public during 1951-52 exceeded £3,463,000,000. The highest pre-war total was £1,062,000,000, but charges have of course increased in many cases since that time.

There are in Great Britain and Northern Ireland over 24,000 Post Offices, nearly 6,000 Telephone Exchanges, over 60,000 Telephone Call Offices and over 5,500,000 Telephones.

PUBLIC TRUSTEE OFFICE

Sardinia Street, Kingsway, W.C.2

[Holborn: 4300]

This is a Government Office (opened in 1908) by means of which the State acts as executor and trustee under a will, or as trustee under a settlement, and in other capacities of a like nature. The value of the trusts accepted up to March 31, 1953, was £590,600,466.

The facts of any trust, new or old, in which it is desired that the Public Trustee should act may be brought to his notice by letter or by personal interview. The appointment is effected in the same way as a private trustee, or by an Order of the Court. He can act solely or jointly with others.

In the case of a will, all that the testator need say is, "I appoint the Public Trustee executor and trustee of this my Will"; or the appointment may be a joint one with others. Executors who have obtained probate can transfer their duties to him under an Order of the Court. He can also act as administrator with, or without, the will annexed.

Strict secrecy is observed in all matters dealt with in the Department. Accounts in simple form are furnished to the beneficiaries as required.

An interview with the Public Trustee or with any of his senior officers can be arranged at any time. A pamphlet giving particulars and details of the fees can be obtained free of cost from the Office of the Public Trustee, Kingsway, W.C.2.

PUBLIC WORKS LOAN BOARD

[Monarch: 6234]

The Board is an independent statutory body, consisting of 12 unpaid Commissioners appointed by the Crown to hold office for 4 years; 3 Commissioners retire each year and may be re-appointed.

The functions of the Commissioners, derived chiefly from the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, and the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945, are to consider applications for loans by Local Authorities and other prescribed bodies, to make loans and to collect the repayments.

Funds for loans are provided by annual Acts of Parliament and are drawn from the Local Loans Fund through the National Debt Commissioners. Rates of interest on the Board's loans and fees to cover management expenses are fixed by the Treasury.

During the year ended 31st March 1953, 20,703 applications for loans totalling £573,122,387 were approved and 21,729 advances totalling £436,216,311 were made.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENTIFIC AND INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH

Charles House, 5-11 Regent St., S.W.1. [Whitehall 9788.] x8 Melville St., Edinburgh. [Edinburgh 34994].

A Committee of the Privy Council was appointed by Order in Council dated July 28, 1915 (amended February 6, 1928), to direct the application of any sums of money provided by Parliament for the organization and development of Scientific and Industrial Research. The Committee consists of the holders for the time being of certain Ministerial offices. The Order in Council also appointed an Advisory Council to whom all proposals for researches stand referred. On December 15, 1916, a separate Department, having its own Parliamentary Vote, was created for the service of the Committee.

The aggregate net estimate for the Department in 1953-54 amounts to £5,688,821, a net increase of £245,271 on the same estimate for 1952-53. The gross estimate amounts to £6,271,021. Headquarters administration, £312,971; Grants for Research £2,103,400; Research Work and Research Establishments, £3,571,650.

Wholesale.—Cornwall House, Stamford Street, S.E.1.

H.M. Stationery Office was established in 1786 and is the British Government's central organization for the supply of printing, binding, office supplies and office machinery of all kinds, and published books and periodicals, for the Public Service at home and abroad; it also undertakes duplicating and distributing services for government departments. In addition the Stationery Office is the publisher for the government, and has offices for the sale of government publications in London, Edinburgh, Cardiff, Manchester, Bristol and Birmingham; leading booksellers in the larger towns act as agents; and there is a wholesale department from which booksellers generally may obtain supplies. It is also the agent for the sale of publications of the United Nations and its specialised organizations. The Controller of the Stationery Office is under Letters Patent the Queen's Printer of Acts of Parliament and in him is vested the Copyright in all British Government documents.

The aggregate net estimate for the department in 1953-54 was £13,593,707 (a decrease of £2,160,020 on the same estimate for 1952-53). The gross estimate amounts to £18,133,707 and includes £2,131,607 for salaries and wages of office and warehouse staffs, £5,320,000 for printing and binding (inclusive of salaries and wages of printing works staff), £7,000,000 for paper, £2,690,000 for office supplies and office machinery and £540,000 for published books and periodicals. The receipts side includes £1,132,000 from the sale of government publications and £75,000 from the sale of waste paper recovered from all departments.

Generally the department obtains its supplies from commercial sources by competitive tender. On the printing and binding side, however, the Stationery Office has its own printing and binding factories which produce about one-third of the total requirement, including telephone directories, rationing documents, pension allowance books, national savings certificates and stamps, postal orders and National Insurance stamps. The annual face value of these certificates and stamps is nearly £1,500,000,000.

Government publications are of a wide and varied range and about 6,000 titles are published each year. They include the London Gazette, which has been issued twice weekly since 1665, and Hansard, the verbatim report of both Houses of Parliament, available on the morning following the debate. The Stationery Office has in stock some 300,000 titles and its subscription lists contain 60,000 names. The annual sales total about 18 million copies. The Stationery Office also acts as the official agent in Great Britain for publications of the United Nations and its subsidiary organizations.

The staff employed on April 1, 1953, was 7,452 including 1,942 in warehouses and 2,374 at printing works; the total space occupied was two million square feet, including 1,314,000 sq. ft. for warehouse space and 463,000 sq. ft. for the printing works.

BOARD OF TRADE

[Trafalgar: 8855]

The Board of Trade has general responsibility for the industry and commerce of the United Kingdom, and particular responsibility for most industries except building and quarrying, merchant shipbuilding, transport, food, agriculture and fisheries, fuel and power, steel and non-ferrous metals and engineering which fall to other Government Departments; but most of its former responsibilities for raw materials were transferred in 1951 to the Ministry of Materials. The Board's general responsibility includes certain powers and duties in relation to insurance and company law, bankruptcy, patents, the administration of enemy property and the distribution of the proceeds of its realization, the distribution of industry, commercial relations with overseas countries, the promotion of exports and the collection, evaluation and publication of industrial and trade statistics.

The Board administers its responsibilities through three main groups of divisions, overseas, home and regulatory, to which are added common service divisions such as the Information, Statistics, Finance, Accountants and Establishment Divisions and the Solicitor's Department.

On the overseas side, the Commercial Relations and Export Department, which has a separate branch for Export Licensing, is responsible for general commercial policy and trade relations with overseas countries; organizes the British Industries Fair; fosters British participation in exhibitions abroad; and, together with the Export Credits Guarantee Department, assists exporters in their selling plans.

On the home side, the Industries and Manufactures Department is organized in six Divisions. Division 1 is responsible for import policy in respect of the United Kingdom tariff; and, through the Import Licensing Branch for the issue of licences to import of goods on private account. Division 2 is concerned with general questions of industrial organization and capital investment and with the long-term efficiency of industry; and is administratively responsible for the Board's regional organization, and for serving the Regional Boards, for Industry, and provides the Secretariat of the National Production Advisory Council on Industry. The textile industry is the concern of Division 3; the chemical industry of Division 4, which also takes tobacco and the Board of Trade responsibility for the tourist industry and maintains liaison with the Monopolies and Restrictive Practices Commission; while Division 5 covers all other industries within the Board of Trade field, including in particular the film industry. Division 6 is responsible for the planning of industrial location within the terms of the Distribution of Industry Acts, and for the central administration of industrial estates in Development Areas.

There are three departments in the regulatory group. The Insurance and Companies and Bankruptcy Department administers insurance and company law; and is responsible for the administration of bankrupts' estates by the Official Receivers, and for the affairs of companies wound up by order of the High Court of Justice.

All questions relating to patents, registered designs, trade marks and copyright are dealt with by the Patent Office and Industrial Property Department which maintains a large public library.

The administration of enemy property, the distribution of realized assets and the duties of the Custodian of Enemy Property for England, are among the functions carried out by the Administration of Enemy Property Department.

MINISTRY OF TRANSPORT

Berkeley Square House, W.1

[Mayfair: 9494]

Before October, 1939, the duties now performed by the Ministry of Transport were exercised by two Departments—the Ministry of Transport (which was established by the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, "for the purpose of improving the means of, and the facilities for, locomotion and transport"), and the Mercantile Marine Department of the Board of Trade. In October, 1939, the Mercantile Marine Department left the Board of Trade and became the Ministry of Shipping. On May 9, 1941, all the functions of the Minister of Transport and of the Minister of Shipping were transferred to the Minister of War Transport. On April 1, 1946, the Minister of War Transport, retaining all his previous functions, became the Minister of Transport.

The powers and duties of the Minister relate to railways; tramways; canals, waterways and inland navigation; roads, bridges and ferries, and vehicles and traffic thereon; harbours, docks, piers and conservancy; and those previously exercised by the Board of Trade in relation to national and international shipping policy, to ships, their masters and seamen, safety of life at sea, navigation (including pilotage, lighthouses and other aids to safety in navigation) and wreck and salvage; coastguard; and boiler explosions, wherever occurring.

THE TREASURY

[Whitehall: 1234]

The office of the Lord High Treasurer has been continuously in commission for well over 200 years. The Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury consist of the First Lord of the Treasury (who is also the Prime Minister), the Chancellor of the Exchequer and five Junior Lords. This Board of Commissioners is assisted at present by a Parliamentary Secretary, a Financial Secretary and an Economic Secretary who also are Ministers, and a Permanent Secretary who is the head of a staff of officials. The Prime Minister and First Lord is not primarily concerned in the day-to-day aspects of Treasury business, and the junior Lords and the Parliamentary Secretary are Government Whips in the House of Commons. The higher departmental direction of Treasury business, therefore, devolves on the Chancellor of the Exchequer, assisted at Ministerial level by the Financial Secretary and the Economic Secretary, who both advise the Chancellor on general financial and economic policy. The Financial Secretary devotes himself in particular to the Treasury's long-standing responsibilities for financial administration, including questions relating to the Civil Service; the Economic Secretary is concerned primarily with the co-ordination of general economic policy and planning and supply questions connected therewith.

TRINITY HOUSE

[Royal: 6601]

Trinity House, the first General Lighthouse and Pilotage Authority in the Kingdom, was a body of importance when Henry VIII. granted the Institution its first charter in 1514, inter alia "for the relief, increase and augmentation of the Shipping of this Realm of England." Since that period the duty of erecting and maintaining lighthouses and other marks and signs of the sea has by Royal Charter and Acts of Parliament been entrusted to the Corporation of Trinity House, and until 1874 Masters of the Navy were examined by the Elder Brethren of the Corporation. In the present day, the principal duty of the Corporation of Trinity House, as a Public Department, is the administration of the Lighthouse, &c., Service of England and Wales with certain statutory jurisdiction in regard to lighthouses and other seamarks in Scotland, Ireland, the Channel Islands and Gibraltar, while the Corporation is also the chief Pilotage Authority in the United Kingdom, and in its capacity as a private corporation or guild it administers certain Charitable Trusts specifically dedicated to the relief of aged and distressed master mariners, their widows and spinster daughters. The Corporation controls some 60 lighthouses and 40 lightships, and maintains a fleet of 9 steam and motor vessels. The Active Elder Brethren of the Corporation also sit with the Judges of the Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice to act as Nautical Assessors in Marine Causes tried in that Court. The Lighthouse Service of the Trinity House is maintained out of the General Lighthouse Fund, this fund being provided by means of special dues called Light Dues levied on shipping using the ports of the United Kingdom. The accounts are submitted annually to Parliament.

MINISTRY OF WORKS

[Reliance: 7611]

The Ministry of Works was constituted in 1940. It took over the functions of the Commissioners of H.M. Works and Public Buildings who had been incorporated by the Commissioners of Works Act, 1852. The principal functions of the Commissioners were to provide, furnish and maintain buildings required for the public service, including buildings overseas, manage the Royal Parks, maintain the Royal Palaces and certain historic buildings and to administer the Ancient Monuments Acts.

The Ministry is now also responsible for co-ordinating the work of the building and civil engineering industries and of the building materials industries. It controls the use of building resources by the licensing of building work and the allocation of certain materials. It encourages efficiency and increased production by supplying technical information and making known the results of research.

New Wing, Somerset House, W.C.2

Appointed Jan. 9, 1951. Terms of reference revised in March, 1952 as follows:—"To inquire into the present system of taxation of profits and income, including its incidence and effects, with particular reference to the taxation of business profits and the taxation of salaries and wages; to consider whether for the purposes of the national economy the present system is the best way of raising the required revenue from the taxation of profits and income, due regard being paid to the points of view of the taxpayer and of the Exchequer; to consider the present system of personal allowances, reliefs and rates of tax as a means of distributing the tax burden fairly among the individual members of the community; to make recommendations bearing in mind that in the present financial situation it may be necessary to maintain the revenue from profits and income; and, in so far as they make recommendations which would on balance entail a substantial loss of

Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors

(Temple Bar: 2407; Ext. 8315)

The Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors, which was set up by Royal Warrant in May, 1946, has continued to hear claims and recommend to the Treasury what payments should be made for the Crown use of inventions, designs, drawings or processes, particularly in connection with the recent war. Under its terms of reference the Commission is empowered to act under four heads: (1) When the claim is based on a patented invention or registered design; (2) when the terms of use of an invention are in the course of negotiation between its owner and the Government Department; (3) when the claimant has no legal right to an award but may be entitled to some payment by reason of the exceptional utility of the invention; (4) which concerns the Interchange of Patent Rights and information between H.M. Government and the United States Government.

The Commission has issued three Reports which contain a general survey of the procedure and principles which have guided its decisions, and details of awards made up to 8th November, 1952. Since November, 1949, the Commission has made 218 awards to the value of £575,470 including £94,600 awarded to 20 radar claimants.

THE NATIONAL TRUST

40-42 Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S.W.1

The National Trust was founded in 1895 by Miss Octavia Hill, Sir Robert Hunter and Canon Rawnsley, their object being to preserve as much as possible of the history and beauty of their country for its people. It has since become an organization incorporated by Act of Parliament to ensure the preservation of lands and buildings of historic interest or natural beauty for public access and benefit. It is a non-profit-making organization and relies mainly on subscriptions and donations for working funds. The State, however, allows it certain tax exemptions. A further, and only recently instituted, branch of the Trust's work is the acquisition and preservation, with the co-operation of the Royal Horticultural Society, of gardens of national importance. It also has under its care bird sanctuaries and nature reserves, together with several hundred farms.

The National Trust now administers more than 200,000 acres of land in England, Wales and Northern Ireland; and in this area are more than 2,000 properties. The properties which comprise the Trust have come into its hands mainly by gift, bequest or purchase; but since 1946, in cases where land has been accepted by the Treasury in lieu of death duties, suitable properties have been handed over to the National Trust, the Treasury recompensing itself from the National Land Fund. Properties so acquired by the Trust are Cotehele House, near Plymouth, one of the finest medieval houses in the west country; the Hartsop Hall estate (Westmorland); Town End Farm, Troutbeck; Rainham Hall (Essex); Wisbech; North Brink Houses (Cams.); Southdown Farm (Dorset); Abinger Roughs (Surrey); Claremont Woods (Surrey); Eaves Wood and Waterslack Wood (Lancs.); land at Box Hill (Surrey); The Kelseys (Cornwall); Town Farm and Woolacombe Borton Farm (Devon); The Warren, Woolacombe (Devon); The Derwent Estate (Derbyshire and Yorks.); The Penrhyn Estates (Cænarvonshire and Denbighshire); High Close Estate, Grasmere.

Other acquisitions of the last year include Moretonhampstead Almshouses, Devon; Ramsey Abbey Gatehouse, Hunts.; Fenton House, Hampstead; Oxburgh Hall, Norfolk; Ditchling Beacon, Sussex; Mompesson House, Salisbury, and Nunington Hall, Yorks. Among the many places, famous for their beauty or historical interest, owned by the National Trust, are—Lyme Park, Cheshire; Blickling Hall, Norfolk; Montacute House, Somerset; Lacock Abbey, Wiltshire; Bodiam Castle, Sussex; the village of West Wycombe, Buckinghamshire; Derwentwater, Lake District; Mill Dale and Dovedale, Derbyshire; Devil's Punch Bowl, Surrey; White Park Bay, Antrim; White Sands Bay, Pembrokeshire; Avebury, Wiltshire; and part of Hadrian's Wall, Northumberland.

THE PILGRIM TRUST

Offices, Millbank House, 2 Great Peter St., S.W.1

Trustees, Thomas Jones, C.H.; The Right Hon. Sir Oliver Franks, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., C.B.E.; Richard Fleming, M.C.; The Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, C.B.E.; W. F. Oakshott; The Right Hon. Sir Raymond Evershed, Master of the Rolls.

Secretary, The Lord Kilmaine.

The Pilgrim Trust was founded in 1930 by the late Mr. Edward S. Harkness of New York, who placed in the hands of trustees £2,000,000 to be for the benefit of Great Britain. Since then the Trust has been able to make substantial grants for the preservation of ancient buildings, the collection and preservation of archives, the support of learned societies, the assistance of social welfare schemes, and in many other ways.

Since its foundation the Trust has paid out grants amounting to £2,383,353, yet it still retains investments with a market value of £2,855,433. In 1952 the Trustees voted grants totalling £287,985 (including £100,000 to the Historic Churches Preservation Trust, payable in ten annual instalments) and exceeded all their previous records of benevolence. The grants were made under the three heads: Preservation (£207,002), Art and Learning (£56,553) and Social Welfare (£24,430).

The Trustees entertained no appeals for the repair of English parish churches, with the notable exception of Staunton Harold, Leicestershire, which is not a parish church in the usual sense and is closely bound up with national history. Four cathedrals received assistance: Ely (£10,000), Gloucester (£5,000), and Derry and Down in Northern Ireland (£3,000 each). The ancient cathedral of Iona, Scotland, also received £3,000.

Amongst the recipients of grants for secular buildings were Blundell's School, Devon (£2,000) and Loretto School, Midlothian (£4,000), and the Trustees also contributed towards the cost of restoring 16th-century panelling and glass to Gilling Castle, Yorkshire, the preparatory school of Ampleforth College.

In the field of art and learning they gave £10,000 for the improvement and extension of the services of Lambeth Palace Library; other libraries which received assistance were the John Rylands at Manchester (£5,000) and Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (£2,500).

Other grants included The Royal School of Church Music (£10,000); Oxburgh Hall, Norfolk (£10,000); Rose Castle, Carlisle (£5,000); Plewlands House, South Queensferry, Scotland (£4,000) and Taunton Castle (£3,000).

HISTORIC CHURCHES PRESERVATION TRUST

Fulham Palace, S.W.6

In June, 1951, the Church Assembly appointed a Repair of Churches Commission, which, in its report to the Assembly on June 19, 1952, recommended the establishment of a Historic Churches Preservation Trust. The Trust was accordingly formed in October, 1952. Its main task is to raise the sum of £4,000,000 which the Repair of Churches Commission calculated to be needed over the next ten years to supplement the efforts of parishes in putting their churches into good repair.

The Pilgrim Trust, which recently ceased to make grants to individual churches, is making an annual grant of £10,000 for ten years to the Historic Churches Preservation Trust. In July, 1953, the first distribution of grants, totalling £23,700, was announced. In making the grants the trustees first made a block allocation to each diocese, and then sought the advice of the Diocesan Advisory Committee on the Care of Churches on the most urgent needs.

Chairman, The Archbishop of Canterbury.

Chairman of Executive Committee, Ivor Bulmer-Thomas.

Secretary, Lt.-Col. D. L. Searle.

65 Davies St., W.1

The British Council was established in 1934 to promote abroad a wider knowledge of the United Kingdom and of British life and thought, and to develop closer cultural relations between the United Kingdom and other countries. Almost the whole of the Council's funds are derived from grants voted by Parliament. Grants for 1953-54 amounted to £2,519,900.

The Council's activities include the formation of new, and the encouragement of existing, British cultural centres, Anglophilic societies and British schools abroad; the encouragement of English language teaching and British studies in schools, universities and other institutions abroad. Scholarships and bursaries for study in this country of British institutions, methods and achievements, are granted to overseas graduates and others.

In July, 1953, the Council had staffs at work in most European countries, in many Latin-American Republics, in most countries of the Middle East, in Burma, Indonesia, Japan and Siam, in Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and in most British colonies. Its publications, films and other material are distributed and sold also in a number of other countries in which it is not directly represented. In 1952, it was announced that the Council's overseas activities would be curtailed.

The Council maintains centres in the United Kingdom, mainly in university cities, to provide services for students, professional visitors, holders of U.N. and Colombo Plan Fellowships and others from overseas. It is responsible for accommodation and welfare services for the main body of colonial students in the U.K., funds for this work being provided from the Colonial Development and Welfare Fund.

President, Sir Henry Dale, O.M., G.B.E., F.R.S.

Chairman and Director-General, General Sir Ronald Adam, Bt., G.C.B., D.S.O., O.B.E.

THE ARTS COUNCIL OF GREAT BRITAIN

4 St. James's Square, S.W.1

The Arts Council of Great Britain, formerly known as C.E.M.A. (Council for the Encouragement of Music and the Arts, which came into existence on January 1, 1940), was incorporated under Royal Charter on August 9, 1946, "for the purpose of developing greater knowledge, understanding and practice of the fine arts exclusively, and in particular to increase the accessibility of the fine arts to the public . . . to improve the standard of execution of the fine arts and to advise and co-operate with . . . Government Departments, Local Authorities and other bodies on any matters concerned directly or indirectly with those objects. . . ."

The Members of the Council, who may not exceed 16 in number, are appointed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer after consultation with the Minister of Education and the Secretary of State for Scotland. They normally serve for a period of five years.

In addition to the Headquarters Office there are separate offices in Edinburgh (for Scotland) and Cardiff (for Wales) and six regional offices in England.

The Council is in receipt of an annual grant from the Treasury. For the year 1952-53 the amount was £675,000.

Chairman, Sir Kenneth Clark, K.C.B., LL.D., F.B.A.

Vice-Chairman, Wyn Griffith, O.B.E., D.Litt.

Secretary-General, W. E. Williams, C.B.E.

THE PRESS COUNCIL

In April, 1947, a Royal Commission was appointed to enquire into the control, management and ownership, etc., of the press and news agencies and to make recommendations thereon. The Commission, in its report of June, 1949, recommended inter alia that a voluntary Press Council be formed.

A constitution ultimately set up provided for the establishment of such a council on July 1, 1953. The objects of the Council were stated in the constitution to be (1) to preserve the established freedom of the British Press; (2) to maintain the character of the British Press in accordance with the highest professional and commercial standards; (3) to keep under review any developments likely to restrict the supply of information of public interest and importance; (4) to promote and encourage methods of recruitment, education and training of journalists; (5) to promote a proper functional relation among all sections of the profession; (6) to promote technical and other research; (7) to study developments in the Press which may tend towards greater concentration or monopoly; (8) to publish periodical reports recording its own work and reviewing from time to time the various developments in the Press and the factors affecting them.

The membership of the Council is composed of 15 editorial representatives (3 national newspaper editors, 2 provincial newspaper editors elected by editors of newspapers in membership of the Newspaper Society, 2 provincial newspaper editors nominated by the Guild of British Newspaper Editors, 1 Scottish newspaper editor, 4 editorial representatives nominated by the National Union of Journalists and 3 editorial representatives nominated by the Institute of Journalists) and 10 managerial representatives (4 nominated by the Newspaper Proprietors Association, 4 nominated by the Newspaper Society, 1 nominated by the Scottish Daily Newspaper Society and 1 nominated by the Scottish Newspaper Proprietors Association).

Chairman, Col. the Hon. J. J. Astor.

Vice-Chairman, W. L. Andrews.

Acting Secretary, Bernard Alton, 85 Fleet Street, E.C.4.

THE COUNCIL OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGN

Tilbury House, Petty France, S.W.1

The Council of Industrial Design, with its Scottish Committee, was set up in December, 1944, by the President of the Board of Trade.

The purpose of the Council is to promote by all practicable means the improvement of design in the products of British industry, and its main functions are (1) to encourage and assist the establishment and conduct of design centres by industries, and to advise the Board of Trade on the grant of financial assistance to these centres; (2) to provide a national display of well-designed goods by holding, or participating in, exhibitions and to conduct publicity for good design in other appropriate forms; (3) to co-operate with education authorities and other bodies in matters affecting the training of designers; (4) to advise, at the request of Government Departments and other public bodies, on the design of articles to be purchased by them, and to approve the selection of articles to be shown in United Kingdom Pavilions in international exhibitions and in official displays in other exhibitions; (5) to be a centre of information and advice, both for industry and for Government Departments, on all matters of industrial art and design.

Chairman, R. S. Edwards, Ph.D.

Chairman of Scottish Committee, R. A. Maclean.

Director, Gordon Russell, C.B.E., M.C., R.D.I.

Chief Officer, Scottish Committee, Alistair Maynard.

BRITISH STANDARDS INSTITUTION

24-28 Victoria Street, S.W.1

The British Standards Institution is the organization recognized by industry and by Government as the national body for the preparation and promulgation of standards of national application, other than those expressly dealt with by special Acts of Parliament.

The Institution was formed in 1901 when the Institution of Civil Engineers, the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, the Institution of Electrical Engineers, the Iron and Steel Institute and the Institution of Naval Architects formed a Joint Engineering Standards Committee, which eventually became the British Standards Association. By 1929 the building, chemical and textile industries had joined in the work and the organization was incorporated under a Royal Charter with the title of "British Standards Institution."

The General Council is broadly representative of the whole range of British industry together with representatives of each Government Department, of the National Boards, of the Professional Institutions, of the Trades Union Congress, of the Federation of British Industries and of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce.

The Institution does not itself initiate standardization. It is the instrument through which its 12,000 committee members work on some 2,500 technical committees. Over 900,000 copies of British Standards are circulated each year throughout the world and more than 7,800 public authorities, trade and technical associations, Dominion Governments, national boards, firms and individuals are among its subscribing members.

Complete sets of British Standards (about 2,000) are available for inspection in the Commercial Counsellors' offices throughout the world and in the offices of 35 overseas standard bodies. The B.S.I. has an office in Buenos Aires and in Southern Rhodesia.

Chairman, John Ryan, C.B.E., M.C.

Director, H. A. R. Binney, C.B.

CARE OF THE BLIND

There were 86,389 blind persons in England and Wales on March 31, 1952, of whom 76,338 were of pensionable age and 10,116 in employment.

In the United Kingdom all persons certified as blind who are 40 years of age or upwards can on registration obtain a pension of 26s. a week if circumstances require it.

Further financial aid is supplied when needed by the National Assistance Board. There are also certain small benefits accorded by the State to registered blind persons, e.g. special rates of postage for Braille literature, free wireless licences and exemption from paying a dog licence if the dog is used as a guide. In many areas, blind persons accompanied by a guide pay one fare for the two passengers. Local Authorities carry out educational and general welfare duties, either direct or by delegation to voluntary agencies. The Ministry of Labour is responsible for the training of blind adults. The Royal National Institute for the Blind provides many services for the civilian blind, while St. Dunstan's is concerned with the Services blind. The National Library for the Blind provides a Braille book lending service. The British Wireless for the Blind Fund provides free wireless sets for blind people.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION

Temporary Headquarters: Palais de Chaillot, Paris

Secretary-General and Vice-Chairman of the North Atlantic Council, The Lord Ismay (U.K.)

The North Atlantic Treaty was signed on April 4, 1949, by the Foreign Ministers of twelve nations. The twelve are Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and United States. Greece and Turkey acceded to the Treaty in 1952.

The original machinery set up to carry out the provisions of the Treaty has undergone considerable modification during the passage of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization from the planning to the implementing stage. Since April, 1952, the North Atlantic Council, the principal body of the Treaty Organization, has been in continuous session in Paris. Member Governments are represented by permanent representatives, who head national delegations of advisers and experts. Ministerial meetings of the Council will continue to be held periodically. Heads of Governments may attend meetings of the Council in person. Otherwise, at ministerial meetings, Governments are represented by their Minister for Foreign Affairs, and/or by other ministers, according to the nature of the agenda. The chairmanship of the Council rotates annually in the English alphabetical order.

The Council is now directly responsible for the tasks previously performed by the former Council Deputies, Defence Production Board and Financial and Economic Board. Specialised functions, such as those assigned to the Planning Board for Ocean Shipping, to the Petroleum Planning Committee, and to other subsidiary bodies, are directed by the Council.

The Secretary-General is appointed by and is responsible to the Council. He has direct access to all NATO agencies and to member Governments, and is responsible for organizing the work of the International Secretariat.

The Secretary-General is supported by one Deputy Secretary-General, M. H. van Vredenburg (Netherlands), and by three Assistant Secretaries-General, who are: Signor S. Fenootalea (Italy), for Political Affairs; M. René Sergent (France), for Economic Affairs; Mr. D. L. Hopkins (U.S.A.), for Defence Production.

The military structure of NATO is headed by the Military Committee (Chiefs of Staff of the member countries), under which the Standing Group is in continuous session in Washington. The Standing Group is composed of one representative each of France, the U.K. and the U.S.A.—currently Lieut.-General Paul Ely (France), Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Whiteley (U.K.), and Vice-Admiral Arthur C. Davis (U.S.A.). It is responsible for higher strategic direction throughout the North Atlantic Treaty area, and works with the Military Representatives Committee.

Of the five original Regional Planning Groups, one remains: the Canadian-U.S.A. Regional Planning Group, with headquarters in Washington. The functions of three of the remainder have been taken over by SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, under General Gruenther, U.S.A.) and its regional commands. The fourth has been absorbed in the Atlantic Command (SACLANT) under Admiral Lynn D. McCormick (U.S.A.). The Allied Commander-in-Chief, Channel, Admiral Sir Arthur John Power (U.K.) is responsible to the Channel Committee.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Threadneedle Street, E.C.2

Incorporated in 1694 under Royal Charter, the Bank of England is the central reserve bank of the country and the Government's banker. On behalf of the Government it manages the National Debt, administers the Exchange Control regulations, and manages the Note Issue; the profits on the last named are paid to the Exchequer. It is also the banker of British banks and, of most overseas central banks; but it no longer undertakes new commercial business.

As from March 1, 1946, the capital stock, amounting to £14,553,000, was transferred to a nominee of the Treasury (the Treasury Solicitor), under the provisions of the Bank of England Act, 1946, holders receiving in exchange 3 per cent. Treasury Stock, to such an amount as provided them with annual interest equal to the annual gross dividend of the previous 20 years, namely, 12 per cent.

STERLING BALANCES

The Economic Survey for 1953 states that one of the main overseas financial commitments of the United Kingdom for the next few years is the reduction of our sterling indebtedness to other countries. These sterling liabilities, which increased considerably in 1950 and in the first half of 1951, comprise the net liabilities in sterling of banks in the United Kingdom to their overseas offices and to other account-holders abroad, including any British Government securities held for account of banks and funds held as cover for overseas currencies; funds held by the Currency Boards and with the Crown Agents for the Colonies; overseas loans to H.M. Government expressed in sterling or sterling area currencies including the capital value of payments due to India and Pakistan under the Pensions Annuities Schemes of 1948; and, so far as known, United Kingdom sterling securities held by official bodies but not those held by private individuals or firms. Holdings of Dominion and Colonial sterling securities are excluded from the following table.

No detailed information is available as to how these balances are distributed throughout the countries of the world. In most cases the holders are free to use them if they need to do so: but in some (e.g. India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Egypt) there are long-term agreements providing for specific annual releases. From the middle of 1951 to the end of 1952 these balances were in the aggregate reduced by nearly £750 million and in many cases are now no more than sufficient to provide normal commercial working balances or to cover Currency Boards' holdings.

Some of the balances consist of "transferable sterling" and during 1952 some countries, particularly Egypt, the Netherlands, the Italian monetary areas and the Scandinavian countries continued to make considerable use of transferability in the finance of their foreign trade. No amendments were made to the list of countries comprising the transferable account area during the year ended

February 28, 1953. No details of the balances held by individual countries are available but the following table shows the amounts transferred during the four years 1949–52, excluding all transfers to and from American account countries and between countries in the same monetary area:—

Year ended 31st December	£ million
Automatic facilities...	1949	1950	1951	1952
Administrative facilities	144	143	241	209
	125	155	222	170
	269	298	463	379

While the United Kingdom sterling liabilities to the non-sterling areas have been decreasing, those to the colonial territories increased by about 10 per cent. during 1952. The principal creditors at December 31, 1952 were West Africa, East and Central Africa, Malaya, Hong Kong and the West Indies.

NAVY, ARMY AND AIR FORCE INSTITUTES

Navy, Army and Air Force Institutes, known to the Services as NAAFI, is the official Canteen Organization for H.M. Forces in peace and war. In addition to the provision of canteens for H.M. Forces at home and overseas and in H.M. Ships, NAAFI is responsible for the provision of a large part of the items required for the messing of H.M. Forces at home. Registered under the Companies Act as an Association not for profit, NAAFI exists for the exclusive benefit of the serving element of H.M. Forces. President of the Council, Air Marshal H. T. Lydford, C.B., C.B.E., A.F.C.; Chairman of the Board of Management, W. F. Beale; General Manager, Major-Gen. Sir Randle G. Feilden, K.C.V.O., C.B., C.B.E.; Secretary, E. W. MacGowan; Headquarters Offices, Ruxley Towers, Claygate, Esher, Surrey; Telephone: Claygate 2121. Telegrams, NAAFI, Telix, Claygate. Registered Address, Imperial Court, Kennington Lane, S.E.11. Telephone, Reliance 1200. For the year ending November 1, 1952, the whole of the profits were distributed to the Services. Rebate and discount amounting to £4,114,820 were paid to the Services, and extra rebate of £288,284, placed at the disposal of the Service Ministries, was paid to Service welfare and benevolent funds, or otherwise made available for the welfare of the Forces.

THE UNION JACK SERVICES CLUBS

(Incorporating The Union Jack Club, The Union Jack Families Club and The Union Jack Women's Services Club.)

Patron-in-Chief: H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester.

Patroness-in-Chief: H.R.H. the Princess Royal.

President: Lieut.-Gen. Sir Sidney Clive, G.C.V.O., K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O.

Vice-President: Admiral Sir William James, G.C.B.

Hon. Treasurer: Capt. S. J. L. Egerton.

Comptroller and Secretary: Major R. S. Walker,
M.B.E.

THE UNION JACK CLUB

Waterloo Road, S.E.1. Tel.: Waterloo 6402.

This is one of our great National institutions, where Sailors, Soldiers and Airmen can go when on leave or passing through London; a place where they may obtain at moderate charges good meals and comfortable bedrooms and where they find the usual amenities of a club, including Library and Writing Room, Billiards Room, Television, Baths, Barber's Shop, and also a Club Shop in which articles of everyday use and almost everything that Service men require may be purchased. It is open throughout the day and night.

The Union Jack Club was erected by public subscription as a National Memorial to those who had fallen in the South African War, and other campaigns, and was opened on July 21, 1907, by His late Majesty King Edward VII. Membership is open to those below the rank of Officer who are serving on the Active List of the Regular Forces, honorary membership being extended to the Colonial Permanent Forces and to the Navies, Armies and Air Forces of Foreign Powers visiting England. A limited number of ex-Service Warrant Officers, Petty Officers, N.C. Officers and men may also be elected members.

The Club, together with the Union Jack Families Club and Women's Services Club, is managed by a Council and a General Committee, which includes representatives of the members.

Successive additions in 1922 and 1928 increased the sleeping accommodation from the original 208 to a total of 800 beds and in July, 1940, a permanent Annexe (almost opposite the Club), providing 200 beds, was opened. This last-mentioned scheme was rendered possible by the generosity of Viscount Nuffield, through the Nuffield Trust for the Fighting Forces. The total accommodation at the Club is now 940 beds; a reduction owing to modernization and improvement of staff and other quarters from a total of 1,010.

THE UNION JACK FAMILIES CLUB

(Formerly the Union Jack Hostel.)

Exton Street, Waterloo Road, S.E.1.

Tel.: Waterloo 4087. Opened June, 1913.

Warden: Miss M. C. Purdy.

CONSTITUTION OF THE BRITISH ARMY, 1952-1953

The Regular Forces include the following Arms and Services:—

Household Cavalry.—The Life Guards and Royal Horse Guards—both Armoured Car Regiments with Mounted Squadrons for ceremonial duties.

Royal Armoured Corps.—Cavalry Regiments and the Royal Tank Regiment.

Artillery.—The Royal Regiment of Artillery (Field, Coast Defence and Anti-Aircraft branches together with the King's Troop, Royal Horse Artillery) and the Royal Malta Artillery.

Engineers.—The Corps of Royal Engineers (Field, Line of Communication and Transportation Services. Military Survey).

Signals.—The Royal Corps of Signals. Provides communications required by the Army and land lines needed by the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force overseas.

Infantry.—(a) Brigade of Guards (Grenadier, Coldstream, Scots, Irish and Welsh Guards); (b) Infantry of the Line; (c) The Glider Pilot and Parachute Corps; (d) The Brigade of Gurkhas.

Services.—include the Royal Army Service Corps, Royal Army Medical Corps, Royal Army Ordnance Corps, Corps of Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, and other corps providing ancillary services.

Two women's Corps were formed on Feb. 1, 1949: the Queen Alexandra's Royal Army Nursing Corps (replacing the Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Nursing Service) and the Women's Royal Army Corps (replacing the Auxiliary Territorial Service).

THE METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE

Air Ministry, Kingsway, W.C. 2.

(Holborn : 3434)

The Meteorological Office is the State Meteorological Service and forms part of the Air Ministry. General policy is controlled by the Meteorological Committee of which the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Air is Chairman. Almost all those Government departments, to which the Meteorological Office provides services, are represented on the Committee, and there are also representatives of the Royal Society, the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and British Universities. The general functions of the Meteorological Office are:—Provision of meteorological services to the Army, Royal Air Force, Civil Aviation, Ministry of Supply and the Merchant Navy; liaison with the Naval Weather Service of the Admiralty and provision of basic meteorological information for use by that Service; meteorological services to other Government departments, public corporations, local authorities, the press and the general public; organisation of meteorological observations in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and in certain colonies; collection, distribution and publication of meteorological information from all parts of the world; maintenance of certain British observations, and publication and distribution of magnetic and seismological information obtained from them; research in meteorology and geophysics.

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND is Presbyterian in constitution, and is governed by Kirk Sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and the General Assembly, which consists of both clerical and lay representatives from each of the Presbyteries. It is presided over by a Moderator (chosen annually by the Assembly), to whom Her Majesty the Queen has granted precedence in Scotland, during his term of office, next after the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. The Sovereign is represented by a Lord High Commissioner (appointed each year by the Crown), who receives the sum of £4,000 towards his expenses. The country, for Church purposes, was, before the union of the Church of Scotland with the United Free Church of Scotland, which was effected at a joint meeting of the General Assemblies of both Churches on October 2, 1929, divided into 16 Synods and 66 Presbyteries, and there were about 2,800 ministers and licentiates engaged in ministerial and other work. There have since been added: (1) The Presbytery of the Synod of England and (2) The Presbyteries of (a) Northern Europe, (b) Southern Europe, (c) Spain and Portugal, (d) a number of Indian and Colonial Presbyteries, making 86 in all. The number of communicants on the roll (Dec. 31, 1928) was (before the union of the Churches) 759,797. The sum of £800,865 3s. 3d. was (apart from Seat Rents levied by Church Authority and amounting to £73,371 6s. 7d., but including legacies, amounting to £45,230 6s. 9d.), raised in 1928 for church and missionary purposes. Within the last 80 years considerably over 500 chapels, at a cost for stipends and supplementary endowments of over £2,450,000, have been endowed and erected into parishes quoad sacra. The parish churches numbered 1,470. There were in addition 245 chapels and mission stations, in all of which worship is regularly conducted. The figures at Dec. 31, 1952, applicable to the Church of Scotland as now re-unioned after a century of separation are:—

Congregations, 2,325; total membership 1,278,468; Sunday Schools, 2,969, with 300,951 scholars and 39,493 teachers. In 17 Foreign Mission fields, excluding China, there are 319 European Mission Agents (and in addition 150 missionaries' wives, many of whom are doing mission work in the various fields) and 17,028 nationals, evangelists and teachers, including in both cases those of the Women's Foreign Mission.

In 1560 the Scots Parliament abolished the jurisdiction of the Pope, proscribed the Mass, and ratified a Confession of Faith drawn up by John Knox and others. In all essentials the articles of the ancient creeds of the Church were adhered to. Ceremonies were declared to be temporary in their nature, and should be altered when they began to foster superstition. Presbytery was settled in 1590. The restoration of the rights of the Bishops, civil and ecclesiastical, was, however, sanctioned by the General Assembly of 1610, and three Scottish Bishops were in that year consecrated in London. Further innovations by King James VI, alarmed the people, and the attempt of Charles I. to impose on the Church a Book of Canons and a Liturgy was met by the National Covenant and the restoration of Presbyterian forms, which culminated in the Westminster Confession of Faith in 1646. At the Restoration the Church again became Episcopal, but in 1690 the Scottish Parliament re-established Presbyterianism. By the Treaty of Union between England and Scotland (ratified by the English Parliament 6 Anne c. 11.) the Church of Scotland was secured in its Presbyterian form of government, and the very first official act of a sovereign of the British Empire on his or her accession is to take an oath to maintain inviolably this settlement. In 1921 Parliament passed the Church of Scotland Act, 1921, to declare the lawfulness of certain Articles declaratory of the constitution of the Church of Scotland. These Articles were framed with a view to facilitating the union of other Churches with the Church of Scotland. A committee, appointed by the Secretary for Scotland enquired into the question of endowments, following upon which the Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments Bill) was introduced and was passed into law (15 and 16 Geo. V. c. 33) in 1925. The primary purpose of this legislative measure was to transfer to and vest in the Church of Scotland General Trustees, incorporated under the Church of Scotland (General Trustees) Order Confirmation Act, 1921, the whole properties and endowments belonging to the Church as it then existed, for behoof the latter. Further legislation with reference to these was embodied in The Church of Scotland Trust Order Confirmation Act, 1932, and The Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments) Amendment Act, 1933.

The total amount of Christian Liberty received by Parishes and Charges in 1952 was £3,045,533.

GENERAL SYNOD

Consisting of House of Bishops (14) and House of Representatives (viz., 208 clerical and 416 lay)

Honorary Secretaries, Ven. H. W. Rennison, M.A.; Ven. E. G. Sullivan, M.A.;

J. D. Smyth; C. G. Carson

Chief Officer and Secretary to the REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH BODY (INCORPORATED 1870), D. W. Pratt, 52 St. Stephen's Green E., Dublin; Deputy Chief Officer and Accountant, D. M. Hudson, Asst. Sec., E. Taylor.

By the Act of Union, 1800, the Church of Ireland was united with the Church of England, the Sovereign, as one of its members, being supreme governor on earth. By the Act of 1869 this union was severed, and on Jan. 1, 1871, the Church of Ireland resumed her independent position. The Act of 1869 not only disestablished the Irish Church, but also took away her endowments, nothing being left but the right to the life services of the annuitant Bishops and Clergy (the annuities provided were commuted for a capital sum), the right to claim churches in use for divine service, the right to buy the Sec and Glebe Houses (with garden and curtilage), and £500,000 in lieu of private endowments.

The supreme governing body of the Church of Ireland is the GENERAL SYNOD, which meets annually.

Subject to the GENERAL SYNOD are 21 Diocesan Synods, which are assisted by smaller elected bodies called Diocesan Councils.

The Bishop of the Diocese is chosen by the clerical and lay members of the Diocesan Synod. The Primate is chosen by the House of Bishops from amongst their own number.

The incumbent of the Parish is appointed by a Board of Nomination, consisting of 7 persons, viz.:—The Bishop, 3 diocesan nominators (2 clerical and 1 lay) appointed by the Diocesan Synod, and 3 parochial nominators (lay) appointed by the registered vestrymen of the parish.

The financial trustees of the Church are the REPRESENTATIVE BODY, composed of the Archbishops and Bishops, 14 clergymen and 28 laymen, chosen by the Diocesan Synods, with 14 co-opted members (clerical or lay). This body holds the property of the Church, and administers its funds, subject to the General Synod.

The first property it held was the capital sum £7,581,075, representing the life annuities of the Bishops and Clergy paid over as commutation money by the Church Commissioners, and also £500,000 compensation for private endowments. The funds, however, in the custody of the Representative Body amount in all to £13,109,379, made up of Parochial Sustentation £9,788,827, General Synod Funds £817,087, Miscellaneous purposes £2,503,465.

Since 1869 members of the Church have paid in to the Representative Body a total sum of £14,545,617. The interest of the Diocesan and Parochial Sustentation and other Funds is approximately £459,008.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

UNDER the general designation of METHODISTS are included all those religious bodies which owe their existence, directly or indirectly, to the efforts of the Revd. John Wesley (born June 17, 1703; died March 2, 1791) and his brother, Revd. Charles Wesley (born Dec. 18, 1707; died March 29, 1788).

THE METHODIST CHURCH

On September 20, 1932, the Wesleyan Methodist Church, the Primitive Methodist Church and the United Methodist Church, were united and became "The Methodist Church."

The Methodist Church is governed primarily by the Conference, secondarily by the Synods (held in September and May), consisting of all the ministers and of selected laymen in each district, over which a chairman is appointed by the Conference; and thirdly by quarterly meetings of the ministers and lay officers of each circuit. The authority of both Synods and Quarterly Meetings is subordinate to the Conference, which has the supreme legislative and judicial power in Methodism.

President of the Conference (July, 1953-54), Rev.

D. O. Soper, M.A., Ph.D. (London).

Vice-President of the Conference (July, 1953-54),

Dr. L. Ward Kay (Sheffield).

Secretary of the Conference, Rev. E. W. Baker, M.A., Ph.D., 2 Central Buildings, Westminster, S.W.1.

President Designate (1954-55), Rev. W. Russell Shearer, M.A. (Birmingham).

Vice-President Designate (1954-55), H. Guy Chester (London).

Statistics.—In 1946 in association with the Conference in Great Britain and Ireland (at home and abroad), there were 5,220 Ministers, 49,034 Lay Preachers, 1,147,379 Members and Probationers, 21,703 Churches, 15,393 Sunday Schools, 130,092 Sunday School Officers and Teachers, and 1,068,775 Sunday Scholars.

The latest statistics of Methodism throughout the world (1939) are: Ministers, 54,340; local preachers, 83,263; members and probationers, 11,666,646; Sunday schools, 76,057; officers and teachers, 820,202; scholars, 7,495,834; churches and other preaching places, 94,175.

Wesleyan Methodists, the original Church founded in 1739 by the two brothers. The first Conference, consisting of six clergymen and four laymen, was held in 1744.

The Primitive Methodists sprang up in Staffordshire, in 1810, under the leadership of Hugh Bourne and William Clowes.

The United Methodist Church was formed by the Union in 1907 of three denominations of Methodists which hitherto had been separate from and independent of each other. These were—The Methodist New Connexion, which owed its origin in 1797 to the Rev. Alexander Kilham, one of the early itinerant Wesleyan preachers. The Bible Christians, founded in 1815 by Wm. O'Bryan, a Wesleyan lay preacher in Cornwall. The United Methodist Free Churches, which was itself an amalgamation of three different secessions—the Protestant Methodists, formed in 1828; the Wesleyan Methodist Association, which sprang out of a controversy in 1834 concerning the need for a trained ministry; and the Wesleyan Reform Association, founded in 1849, during a great agitation.

The act of union of these three denominations into one took place in London on September 17, 1907, when the first united Conference was held.

METHODIST CHURCH IN IRELAND

The Methodist Church in Ireland has 250 Ministers, 405 Lay Preachers, 32,392 Adult and 15,761 Junior Members, 1,936 Sunday School Teachers and 15,836 Scholars.

President (1953-54), Rev. R. M. L. Waugh, M.A., B.D., Strabane.

Secretary, Rev. Joseph B. Jameson, 11 Chlorine Gardens, Belfast.

THE UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

The United Church of Canada is the result of the union (1925) of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches in Canada. Sec. of General Council, Rev. G. A. Sisco, M.A., D.D., LL.D., Wesley Buildings, Toronto.

INDEPENDENT METHODISTS

Independent Methodists.—This body is Congregational in its organization, with an unpaid Ministry. Its first Conference was held in 1805. In 1953 there were in Great Britain 334 Ministers, 8,901 Members, 152 Chapels and 14,075 Sunday School Scholars. Secretary, W. Drummond Brown, 21 Ashley Drive, Swinton, Lancs.

WESLEYAN REFORM UNION

This Union is Methodist in doctrine, Congregational in government, with, if any church desires it, a paid ministry. It is the remnant of the original Reformers expelled from Wesleyan Methodism in 1849. The adherents are mainly in the Midland and Northern counties. In 1952 there were in Great Britain 20 Ministers, 329 Lay Preachers, 6,303 Members, 178 Chapels and 13,853 Sunday Scholars. —President (1952-53), Rev. A. Halladay. President Designate (1953-54), R. Furness. General Secretary and Connexional Editor, Rev. W. H. Jones, D.D., Wesleyan Reform Church House, 87-89 West Bar, Sheffield, 3.

THE CALVINISTIC METHODIST CHURCH OF WALES

THE CALVINISTIC METHODIST OR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF WALES is the only Church of purely Welsh origin, and embraces a very large section of the Welsh-speaking population. Its form of government being Presbyterian, it is a constituent of the Pan-Presbyterian Council or Alliance. It is also a member of the British Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches. It has foreign missions in Assam, India, and in Brittany.

In 1952 the body numbered—churches, 1439; chapels and other buildings for Sunday-school branches, 1,606; ministers and preachers, 882; elders, 7,481; communicants, 155,613; Sunday-school teachers and officers, 13,375; Sunday-school scholars, 94,295; adherents (including communicants), 211,022. Contributions in aid of the Ministry in 1952, £320,849. For various religious purposes (including the ministry), £702,042. Receipts from various funds, £38,732. One of the features of the Welsh churches is the Sunday-school, which is attended by adults as well as children; Welsh is the language used generally in these schools.

The Eastern Association, which now includes nine of the English Presbyteries, was formed in 1947 and has 365 chapels and 29,880 communicants.

On 18 July, 1933, the Calvinistic Methodist or Presbyterian Church of Wales Act, 1933, received the Royal Assent. By this measure the autonomy of the Church in matters spiritual and the establishment of a Properties Board have been secured.

Moderators of Associations (1953)—South Wales, Dan Evans, B.A., Llanybyddie; North Wales, Aneurin Rees, Prestatyn; The East, Rev. T. W. Reese, Mold.

Moderator of General Assembly (1953-54), Rev. J. W. Roberts, B.Sc., Prestatyn.

Chief Secretary, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., Dolgac, Gaerwen, Anglesey.

THE INDEPENDENTS AND THE BAPTISTS

The INDEPENDENTS, or CONGREGATIONALISTS, are the most ancient community of Dissenters. In 1831 the majority of their churches were formed into the Congregational Union of England and Wales, incorporated in 1902, and in 1920 nine districts were formed, each under a Moderator. There are 51 county and other Associations in the British Isles, with 4,267 churches and preaching stations; the number of ministers in the British Isles is 2,587. Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales (1953-54), E. Cunningham, M.A., Chairman Elect (1954-55), Rev. N. Goodall, M.A., D.Phil. Secretary, Rev. Leslie E. Cooke, B.A., D.D. Office and Publication Department, Memorial Hall, Farringdon St., E.C.4.

The Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion, with 37 chapels and mission stations, is governed by nine trustees assisted by an annual conference of ministers and delegates. Most of the churches are affiliated with the Congregational Union.

Secretary, B. Touch. Offices, Huntingdon Lodge, Wormley, Herts.

THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION OF SCOTLAND. In 1795 James and Robert Haldane left the Church of Scotland and founded the Congregational Union, which in 1896 amalgamated with the Evangelical Union (founded in 1843 by James Morison). There

Other Religious Denominations.

The General Assembly of Unitarian and Free Christian Churches has about 243 ministers, 330 chapels and other places of worship in Great Britain and Ireland. Gen. Sec., Rev. John Kicly, 24 Gordon Square, W.C.1.

The Brethren number about 80,000, of whom five-eighths belong to the "Open" body. The Society of Friends (Quakers) consists of 21,018 members in Great Britain, and has 430 places of worship (Recording Clerk, Stephen J. Thorne). The total number in the world is about 160,000 (110,000 are in U.S.A. and Canada). Central Offices (Great Britain), Friends' House, Euston Rd., N.W.1, (Ireland), 6 Eustace Street, Dublin. The Oxford Group ("Moral Re-Armament") (Dr. F. N. D. Buchman, Hdgrs., 4 Hays Mews, Berkeley Sq., W.1. The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, U.S.A. (District Manager, Committees on Publication for Great Britain and Ireland, 30 Norfolk St., Strand, W.C.2), has 346 branch churches and societies in are 149 Churches of the Congregational Union of Scotland with a membership of 34,906. Of the 173 Ministers, 135 are Pastors. President, Rev. T. Carlyle Murphy, O.B.E., B.D., Glasgow. Secretary, Rev. James M. Calder, 217 West George St., Glasgow, C.2.

The BAPTISTS are similar to the Congregationalists except that Baptism is by immersion of believers only. Like the Congregationalists, they are for the most part grouped in associations of churches, and the majority of these belong to the Baptist Union, which was formed in 1813. In the British Isles there were in 1952, 4,078 chapels and 1,972 pastors. The members numbered 332,187, Sunday-school teachers 43,849, and Sunday scholars 326,483. President of the Baptist Union (1953-54), Rev. H. Bonser. Secretary, Rev. E. A. Payne, M.A., D.D. Office, 4 Southampton Row, London, W.C.1.

The Baptist World Alliance (founded in 1905) is a Federation of Conventions and Unions of the Baptist communion throughout the world. Communicant membership in 70 countries totals approximately 18,000,000. Pres., Rev. F. Townley Lord, D.D. General Secretary, Rev. A. T. Ohrn, D.D., Assoc. Sec., Rev. W. O. Lewis, Ph.D. Headquarters, Washington, D.C. London Office, 4 Southampton Row, W.C.1.

Great Britain and Ireland. The Moravian Church, 42 Onslow Gardens, N.10, has in the U.K. 41 congregations and preaching stations, with 2,873 communicants. The New Church (Swedenborgian), 75 societies, with about 6,700 registered members; the Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) have 65 churches. The Churches of Christ have 165 churches in Gt. Britain and Northern Ireland. The Free Church of England (otherwise called The Reformed Episcopal Church) has 50 churches in England. Gen. Sec., Rev. W. Rodgers, 3 Bristol Avenue, Wallasey, Cheshire. The Seventh Day Adventists (Hqrs., Stanborough Park, Watford, Herts) have 107 organized churches, 45 companies, and 6,936 members in the British Isles. At Woking, Surrey, is the Shah Jehan Mosque for Muslims, built in 1889. There are also Mosques at Southfields, S.W.18, Commercial Rd., E.1, Birmingham, Manchester, Cardiff and Glasgow. A Mosque is being erected in the garden of Regent's Park Lodge, Park Road, Regent's Park, on land presented to the Muslim community by the British Government.

THE JEWS

It is estimated that about 400,000 Jews are resident in the British Isles, a little more than half being domiciled in London. The Diaspora (Dispersion) foretold by the prophet Daniel began towards the end of the third century preceding the Christian Era, but there was no appreciable settlement in England until after the Norman Conquest and the anti-Jewish reaction resulting from the Crusades led to their expulsion by edict of Edward I in 1290, the exclusion being maintained until the edict was revoked by Oliver Cromwell in 1655. Since that date there has been a steady flow of Jewish immigrants, increased during the present century owing to Nazi persecution. Of the total number in Great Britain about 90 per cent. are described as adhering to orthodox views.

The Board of Deputies of British Jews, established in 1760, is the representative body of British Jewry and is recognized by H.M. Government. The basis of representation is primarily synagogal, but secular organizations are now also represented. It is a deliberative body and its objects are to watch over the interests of British Jewry, to protect Jews against any disability which they may suffer by reason of their creed and to take such action as may be conducive to their welfare.

President of the Board of Deputies (Woburn House, Upper Woburn Place, W.C.1), Dr. Abraham Cohen. Secretary, A. G. Brotman.

CHIEF RABBI—The Very Rev. Israel Brodie, born 1895, appointed 1948.

Secretary, Michael Wallach, Office, 4 Creechchurch Place, E.C.4.

The Beth Din (Court of Judgment) is a rabbinic body consisting of Dayanim (Assessors) and the Chief Rabbi, who is President of the Court. The Court arbitrates when requested in cases between Jew and Jew and gives decisions on religious questions. The decisions are based on Jewish Law and practice and do not conflict with the law of the land. Dayanim, Dr. I. Grunfeld; L. Grossnass; A. Rapaport; Dr. M. Lew.

Clerk to the Court, Marcus Carr (Adler House, Adler Street, E.1)

Chief Rabbi of the Community of Spanish and Portuguese Jews in London (Established 1657), Dr. Solomon Gaon.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

HIS HOLINESS POPE PIUS XII (Eugenio Pacelli), Roman Pontiff, born in Rome, March 2, 1876; ordained priest April 2, 1899; Archbishop of Sardinia May 13, 1917; Cardinal December 16, 1929; Papal Secretary of State February 7, 1950; elected Pope March 2, 1939; crowned March 12, 1939.

THE SACRED COLLEGE OF CARDINALS when complete, consists of six Cardinal Bishops, fifty Cardinal Priests and fourteen Cardinal Deacons. In July, 1953, there were no vacancies. The Cardinals are the advisers and assistants of the Sovereign Pontiff and form the supreme conciliar or Senate of the Church. On the death of the Pope they elect his successor. The assembly of the Cardinals at the Vatican for the election of a new Pope is known as the Conclave in which, in complete seclusion, the Cardinals elect by secret ballot; a two-thirds majority is necessary before the vote can be accepted as final. When a Cardinal receives the necessary votes the Dean of the Sacred College formally asks him if he will accept election and the name by which he wishes to be known. On his acceptance of the office the Conclave is dissolved and the First Cardinal Deacon announces the election to the assembled crowd in St. Peter's Square. On the first Sunday or Holyday following the election the new Pope is crowned with the tiara, the triple crown, the symbol of his supreme spiritual authority. A new pontificate is dated from the coronation.

In England and Wales there are 4 Archiepiscopal and 14 Episcopal Sees; in Scotland 2 Archiepiscopal and 6 Episcopal Sees; in Ireland 4 Archiepiscopal and 24 Episcopal Sees. In the British Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland there are 58 Archiepiscopal and 214 Episcopal Sees, with 45 Vicariates and 28 Prefectures.

The Catholic Directory estimates the Roman Catholic population of England and Wales at 2,857,200, Scotland (1953) 753,434, Republic of Ireland (Census figures, 1946) 2,786,033, Northern Ireland (1951 Census) 471,329. The figures for Canada (1952) are 6,179,327, Australian Commonwealth (1952), 1,510,388, New Zealand (1952) 216,190, Union of South Africa (1951) 517,273, India (1951) 4,655,000, Pakistan (1952) 236,742, Ceylon (1951) 538,394; and the Roman Catholic population of the world is estimated at 423,000,000.

London Cathedrals, Churches, etc.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, City of London, E.C.4 (1675-1710), cost £747,660. The cross on the dome is 365 ft. above the ground level, the inner cupola 218 ft. above the floor. "Great Paul," in S.W. tower, weighs 17 tons. Organ by Father Smith (enlarged by Willis) in case carved by Grinling Gibbons (who also carved the choir stalls). Nave and transepts free; Fees to the following parts (on weekdays only, 11 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. and—during Summer Time—4.45 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.); Crypt, 6d. Library, whispering gallery, and stone gallery, 1s. golden gallery, 1s.; ball, 1s.; total, 3s. 6d. Service on Sundays at 8, *10.30, *3.15, and *6.30. Weekdays at 8, *10, *4. Also Wednesdays, *12.30 p.m.; Litany; Fridays, *12.30 p.m. short mid-day service. (*Services are choral.) To the S. are remains of the Chapter House and Cloisters of "Old St. Paul's," destroyed by the Fire of London in 1666. Considerable damage was done to the Cathedral during the 1939-45 war. One bomb fell through the north transept, and another in the chancel, destroying the 19th-century high altar and reredos. This is to be rebuilt more nearly in accordance with Wren's original design.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, S.W.1 (built A.D. 1050-1760).—Open on weekdays at 8 a.m. Admission to Royal Chapels by fee of 1s., except on Mondays (open free). Transepts and Nave open on Sundays only between services. Holy Communion at 8; Morning Prayer and Holy Communion at 10.30. Evensong at 3. Evening service with Sermon at 6.30. Daily—Holy Communion at 8 a.m.; School Service at 9.30; choral services at 10 and 3. Chapel of Henry VII, Chapter House, and Cloisters; King Edward the Confessor's shrine, A.D. 1266, tombs of kings (Edward I, Edward III, Henry V, Mary, Queen of Scots, Queen Elizabeth), and many other monuments and objects of interest, including the grave of "An Unknown Warrior" and the Warrior's Chapel at the W. end of Nave (1920), and Poets' Corner. The Coronation Chair encloses the "Stone of Scone," brought from Scotland by Edward I in 1297.

SOUTHWARK CATHEDRAL, south side of the Thames, near London Bridge, S.E.1.—Mainly 13th century, but the nave is largely rebuilt. Known as St. Mary Overie previous to 1540. Open 7.30 a.m. to 6 p.m., free. Sunday services, 8 (said), 10.15 and 11 a.m., 3 and 6.30 p.m. (choral). Weekdays: 7.30, 8, and 5 p.m. (choral except Wednesdays). The tomb of John Gower (1330-1408) is between the Bunyan and Chaucer memorial windows, in the N. aisle; Shakespeare effigy backed by view of Southwark and Globe Theatre in S. aisle; the altar screen (erected 1520) has been restored; the tomb of Bishop Andrewes (died 1626) is near screen. The Early English Lady Chapel (behind the choir), restored 1930, is the scene of the Consistory Courts of the reign of Mary (Gardiner and Bonner); and is still used for this purpose. John Harvard, founder of Harvard University, was baptised here in 1607.

ALL SAINTS, Margaret Street, W.1.—Built by Butterfield in 1859. Anglo-Catholic and noted for its music.

ST. ANDREW UNDERSHAFT, St. Mary Axe, Leadenhall Street, E.C.3.—An early 16th-century church, contains a monument of Stow, the London antiquary (a new quill-pen being placed in his hand at an annual Commemoration Service), and a memorial of Holbein. The organ is by Renatus Harris, the rival of Father Smith.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S Priory Church, Smithfield, E.C.1, the oldest parish church in London (A.D. 1123).—Rector, Rev. N. E. Wallbank, Mus.D. Fine old Norman building, with tomb of the first prior, Rahere. N. transept restored and re-opened in June, 1893. Crypt, Lady Chapel and Cloisters opened 1905-1928. Open daily. Sunday services, 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

ST. EDMUND, KING AND MARTYR, Lombard Street, E.C.3.—Rebuilt by Wren, with altar at north end; organ by Renatus Harris.

ST. ETHELBURGA, Bishopsgate, E.C.2 (14th and 15th century) with two "Hudson" windows.—On April 19, 1607, Henry Hudson (the navigator who gave his name to Hudson's Bay and to the Hudson River), his son John, and his ten sailors took communion in St. Ethelburga's, "purposing to goe to sea foure days after."

ST. GEORGE, Hanover Square, W.1 (18th century; famous for fashionable marriages).

ST. GEORGE, Borough High Street, Southwark, S.E.—(Rebuilt 1736) contains the tombs of Bishop Bonner (1497-1569) and Edward Cocker (1631-1675), the author of Cocker's "Arithmetik." (The expression "according to Cocker" refers to this book.)

ST. HELEN, Bishopsgate, E.C.2.—The "Westminster Abbey of the City" from its numerous monuments; building dates from 13th century. Contains a Shakespeare memorial window presented by Mr. William Prentice, an American. In St. Helen's Place the foundations of an earlier church were uncovered during rebuilding operations in 1922.

ST. KATHERINE CREE, Leadenhall Street, E.C.3.—Rebuilt in early 17th century and ascribed to Inigo Jones. Contains a Catherine wheel E. window, an organ by Father Smith, Archbishop Laud's Prayer Book and Bible, and a monument of Sir Nicholas Throgmorton. The "Lion" sermon is preached here annually before the Lord Mayor and Corporation of London to commemorate the escape of a Lord Mayor (Sir John Gayer) from a lion in Algeria (Oct. 16, 1630).

ST. MAGNUS THE MARTYR, Lower Thames Street, E.C.3.—Rebuilt by Wren, with steeple (185 feet) and lantern of great beauty, contains the tomb of Miles Coverdale (1488-1568), translator of the Bible, who was rector of St. Magnus (1564-1566) and Bishop of Exeter (1551-1557).

ST. MARGARET, Lothbury, E.C.2.—Rebuilt by Wren, contains Grinling Gibbons carvings (font, chancel screen, and pulpit).

ST. MARGARET PATTERNS, Rood Lane, Eastcheap, E.C.3.—Rebuilt by Wren, with a leaden spire, contains two canopied pews and other curious survivals and relics.

ST. MARTIN, WESTMINSTER, S.W.1.—Founded 11th or 12th century; buildings date from 15th century, with frequent "restorations." Since 1614 the parish church of the House of Commons.

ST. MARTIN-IN-THE-FIELDS, Trafalgar Square, S.W.1.—Built by James Gibbs (1721-6) in place of earlier church on same site. In register of burials are the names of Neil Gwynne (1687), Farquhar the dramatist (1707), and Roubiliac the sculptor (1672). A bust of James Gibbs by Rysbrack is in the church. Famous for its broadcast services.

ST. MARY WOOLNETH (above the Bank Tube Station), King William Street and Lombard Street, E.C.3.—Built by Hawksmoor early 18th century. organ by Father Smith.

ST. MICHAEL, PATERNOSTER ROYAL, College Hill, Upper Thames Street, E.C.4.—Rebuilt after the Fire by Strong (a pupil of Wren's), the former church contained the tomb of "Dick Whittington" and a Grinling Gibbons altarpiece.

ST. PAUL, Covent Garden, W.C.2.—Built by Inigo Jones. The tombstones round the exterior of the church record the burial places of Samuel Butler (Hudibras), Sir Peter Lely (painter), Wycherley (dramatist), Grinling Gibbons (wood-carver), Dr. Arne ("Rule, Britannia"), and Macklin (actor); Ellen Terry memorial.

ST. PETER, Cornhill, E.C.3.—Rebuilt by Wren, contains a carved choir screen also ascribed to him. The organ is by Father Smith.

ST. SEPULCHRE, Holborn, E.C.1.—Part of this church escaped the Fire. The organ is by Renatus Harris, in a case attributed to Grinling Gibbons. Memorials in the church to Roger Ascham (Queen Elizabeth's tutor) and Capt. John Smith, "sometime Governour of Virginia and Admirall of New England."

ST. STEPHEN, Walbrook, E.C.4.—Rebuilt by Wren, contains the tomb of Sir John Vanbrugh (architect and dramatist). Although it was much damaged by bombs, 1940-1, repairs have been carried out and it remains open.

SAVOY CHAPEL, Savoy Street, Strand, W.C.2 (rebuilt about 1505, on site of 13th-century Savoy Palace, restored after disastrous fire in 1864).—Graves of Gavin Douglas and George Wither, and memorials of D'Oyly Carte, Laurence Irving.

WREN'S CHURCHES.—Many of the *Churches in the City of London were destroyed by the Fire of London (Sept. 2-6, 1666). Fifty of these were rebuilt by Wren at a total cost of £263,786 20s. 4½d., the most expensive being St. Mary-le-Bow, £15,460 6s. 8½d. (£7,388 8s. 7½d. for "Bow Tower"), and the cheapest, St. Vedast-Foster (£1,853 25s. 6d.).

Bombed Churches

A very large number of churches were either completely destroyed by bombing in the 1939-45 war or were so severely damaged that services cannot at present take place in them. In others a small part of the church has been repaired for worship. Churches in one or other of these categories include the following:

ALL HALLOWS, Barking-by-the-Tower, E.C.3.—This church had survived the Great Fire of 1666.

BOW CHURCH (ST. MARY-LE-BOW), Cheapside, E.C.2.—The Church of "Bow Bells."—The 12th-century crypt remains.

* The City Churches now standing which survived the Fire of London are: St. Andrew Undershaft; St. Bartholomew the Great; St. Ethelburga, Bishopsgate; St. Helen, Bishopsgate, and St. Katherine Cree. Of St. Sepulchre, Holborn, only the south porch and the tower remain; of All Hallows, Staining, only the tower; St. Andrew, Holborn, escaped the Fire, but it was in a ruinous condition at the time and was reconstructed by Wren, the old tower being refaced with Portland stone in 1704. All Hallows, Barking-by-the-Tower, St. Giles, Cripplegate, and St. Olave, Hart Street, all of which escaped the Fire, were severely damaged in the 1939-45 war.

CHELSEA OLD CHURCH, Cheyne Walk, S.W.
CHRIST CHURCH, Greyfriars, E.C.1.

GUARDS' CHAPEL, Wellington Barracks, S.W.1.—Destroyed by a flying bomb with heavy loss of life, during a service, 1944.

ST. ALBAN, Brooke Street, Holborn, E.C.1.—Anglo-Catholic and noted for its music.

ST. ALBAN, Wood Street, E.C.

ST. ANDREW BY THE WARDROBE, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

ST. ANDREW, Holborn, E.C.

ST. ANNE, Wardour Street, Soho, W.1.—The tower is to be preserved, and the rest of the church demolished. The monument of William Hazlitt remains.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Watling Street, E.C.

ST. BRIDE, Fleet Street, E.C.4.—Wren's famous and beautiful spire is still standing.

ST. CLEMENT DANES, Strand, W.C.2.—Dr. Johnson's pew was in the gallery. His monument is outside the E. end of the church.

ST. DUNSTAN IN THE EAST, Idol Lane, E.C.3.

ST. GILES, Cripplegate, E.C.2.—Contains the graves of John Milton, John Foxe, and Sir Martin Froisher. A bastion of the City Wall is in the churchyard.

ST. JAMES, Piccadilly, W.1.—The S. aisle remains open for services.

ST. JOHN, Clerkenwell, E.C.1.—Retains the 12th-century crypt of the ancient priory of St. John.

Education

ENGLAND AND WALES

Education in England and Wales is organized under the Education Act, 1944 (Butler Act). Minor amending Acts were passed in 1946, 1948 and 1953. The main features of the system are (a) that the State school system is highly decentralized, education being the responsibility of 146 local education authorities (62 administrative counties, 83 county boroughs and 1 joint board and London). The County Authorities exercise their powers in many instances through Divisional Executive Committees and the Education Committees of excepted Districts; (b) that voluntary agencies play an important part in educational provision often in co-operation with the state. The Ministry of Education controls the system mainly through the scheme of inspection and with power derived from statute and from its payment of money grants to Local Education Authorities. Constant detailed suggestions to L.E.A.'s. are issued in Ministry circulars and administrative memoranda. There are central advisory councils dealing with education in England and in Wales respectively.

A statutory report is now again published yearly by the Ministry.

The State System

The state system is in transition as the 1944 Act is being implemented. The administrative system has been reorganized and the school-leaving age raised (April 1, 1947) to 15. Attention has been given to the development of special schools and the school meals service, but the major problem at present is the provision of teachers and accommodation for the increased number of children who will be at school between 1952 and 1962 (more than one million more children than in 1947 were in the schools in 1953). Special attention is also being paid to the development of technical education.

Local Authorities are required by the Act to prepare development plans for education in their areas (including school reorganization and necessary building), and this work is nearing completion. Plans approved become binding upon L.E.A.'s., and 120 of the authorities' plans for primary and secondary education have now reached this stage. A total of £104 million of building work was under construction at the end of 1952, £164 million having been completed since December, 1945. 1,122 new primary and secondary departments were completed between April 1945 and October 1953.

Education is divided into three stages:—

Primary Stage (for children up to 11 years). Nursery Schools to age 5 (must be provided by Local Education Authority for all parents who desire them); Infant Schools—from age 5 (compulsory School age); Junior Schools—from age 8 to 11.

About the age of 11 all children go to a secondary school. The suitability of the school may be reviewed at age 13.

Secondary Stage (11 years to 15 years, later to be raised to 16)—Secondary Grammar Schools (giving an academic education); Secondary Technical Schools (for those whose abilities are of a more practical character). Secondary Modern Schools (giving a general and practical education).

These Secondary Schools are intended to be of equal status and can be combined into a single multi-lateral school. Education in Primary and Secondary Schools is free.

Further Stage. [Includes all types of provision for education after 15 (later 16).] County Colleges (which all children not receiving full-time education will attend for the equivalent of one day a week from age 15 (later 16) to age 16 (later to be raised to 18); Technical Schools and Schools of Art and Commerce (providing specialist studies); Evening Institutes (evening classes in vocational and other subjects); Service of Youth (recreational and other services for youth provided in co-operation with voluntary bodies); Adult Education (liberal education for adults provided in co-operation with voluntary bodies); Community Centres, etc.

In January, 1952, 6,034,995 children were present in the schools maintained by Local Education Authorities; 5,970,012 were in 28,102 primary and secondary schools, 22,464 in 457 nursery schools and the remainder in special schools, etc.

Voluntary Agencies

The school system is complicated by voluntary agencies which have assisted greatly in educational development. A number of the primary and secondary schools are still provided by voluntary bodies, mainly religious, but have long been maintained by L.E.A.'s. Under the 1944 Act, where the managers of such schools can obtain half (or in some cases 75 per cent.) of funds required for rebuilding to modern standards, the schools will remain under their partial control as "aided schools" (if 75 per cent. is raised then as "special agreement schools"), the cost of running the schools being met by the Local Education Authority. If the managers cannot raise money necessary for rebuilding, schools become "controlled schools" under the management of the Local Education Authority, though with provisions enabling denominational religious instruction to be given. In England and Wales, by Dec. 1952, of the 9,475 voluntary schools 3,559 had been given controlled and 3,721 aided status.

164 Direct Grant Grammar Schools (non-profit-making and with some non-local characteristics, and usually with day and boarding scholars) occupy a semi-independent position, getting money grants direct from the Ministry. They are run by Boards of Governors with Local Education Authority representatives and take some fee-paying pupils chosen by themselves, but up to 50 per cent. of pupils must be chosen by the Local Education Authority, and pay no fees or fees graded according to the parents' means. There are also 149 other schools receiving grants direct from the Ministry. In all the direct grant schools have 97,339 pupils.

About 90 Public Boarding Schools and 10,000 Private Schools remain independent of the State system, except that many Public Schools give a limited number of places to nominees of Local Education Authorities. Under the 1944 Act all schools are being inspected by the Ministry and can be closed if found inefficient. The total number of children in independent schools is estimated at 500,000. The number of pupils in such schools which are "recognized as efficient" is 234,864.

In the field of Further Education many private bodies, often receiving grants of money from Local Education Authorities and from the Ministry, are associated with the public authorities.

Teachers

The number of teachers in the maintained primary and secondary schools must be further raised from 220,962 (Jan. 1952) to deal with the increasing child population. In particular there is a shortage of women teachers. The ratio of teachers to pupils in primary and secondary schools is now 1 to 26.7 compared with 29.1 in 1939. Teachers are trained in a total of 176 institutions of various types. These include 23 University training departments providing a one year course for graduates. Most of the remainder provide a two-year training course; of these 92 are provided by Local Education Authorities. All teachers recruited into the state system must in future be trained and hold a certificate. 18.5 per cent. of all the teachers in maintained and aided schools and establishments are graduates. Payment of teachers is regulated by the Burnham Scale to provide £415 to £670 per annum and £370 to £536 per annum basic rates for men and women Assistant Teachers respectively, and for Headmasters and Headmistresses according to the size of the school and with, in every case, supplementary payment for degrees, specially responsible posts, etc.

School Meals

School milk is supplied free to all children and was taken by 84.2 per cent. of children in attendance at primary and secondary schools in October, 1952. On the same day 3,009,416 dinners were supplied to 51.5 per cent. of children in attendance.

Cost of Education in England and Wales

The total public expenditure on education (excluding universities) in England and Wales in the year 1953-54 is estimated at:

From Exchequer (including Ministry of Education grants to Local Education Authorities).....	£230,952,000
From Rates.....	£131,821,000
Total.....	£362,773,000

being an increase of £16,958,000 over the revised estimates for 1952-53, more than double the expenditure in 1938. Public expenditure on education excluding universities amounted to approximately 3s. per head of the population per week in 1952. The cost per pupil per year in a maintained primary school averaged £24.3 in 1951-52 compared with £15.16s. in the elementary school in 1937-38. In a maintained secondary school in 1951-52 it was £43.2.

EDUCATION IN SCOTLAND

Scottish education is being brought into line with the system in England and Wales under the Education (Scotland) Acts, 1945 and 1946. Secondary Education having always been more widespread than in England, it will not be necessary to create as many new secondary schools but rather to ensure variety of provision in them. Though education up to the compulsory age must, as in England, be provided free under the Act by the 31 County and 4 Burgh Education Authorities they will be allowed to run fee-paying secondary schools for children whose parents wish it. Exemptions from compulsory education will be granted on grounds of inaccessibility to schools and (over age 14) domestic hardship.

In July 1952, the number of primary and secondary schools provided, maintained and assisted by L.E.A.'s was 3,030 (2,161 primary and 869 secondary) and the number of children on the registers in March was 798,076. The cost to the Exchequer of Education in Scotland in 1953-54 will be £31,422,000; the cost from rates £14,614,000.

EDUCATION IN NORTHERN IRELAND

An Education Act was passed by the Northern Ireland Parliament in March, 1947, broadly in line with that of England and Wales. The main differences are that Local Education Authorities can raise the age for compulsory education from 5 to 5½ or 6, that secondary education will be provided by Local Education Authorities in intermediate Secondary Schools (modern or technical) only, that existing grammar schools will accommodate a proportion of Local Education Authority scholarship holders and that denominational religious instruction will be more general. The date for the raising of the school-leaving age has been again postponed to not later than April 1, 1957.

An important feature of the educational system in Northern Ireland is the strength of the voluntary element in school management, an individuality deriving from the traditions of Irish education. The voluntary schools are generously assisted by grants from public funds, the grant system differing from that obtaining in other parts of the United Kingdom.

At the end of 1951, the number of schools provided, maintained and assisted by L.E.A.'s in Northern Ireland was 1,785 with 242,489 children on the rolls. The estimated cost from the Exchequer for 1953-54 is £7,457,310 and from rates £1,489,689. This is an increase of £1,049,702 in total public expenditure over 1952-53.

THE UNIVERSITIES

There are thirteen degree-giving Universities in England (Birmingham, Bristol, Cambridge, Durham, Leeds, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Nottingham, Oxford, Reading, Sheffield and Southampton); one in Wales (University of Wales with colleges at Bangor, Cardiff, Aberystwyth and Swansea); four in Scotland (Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow and St. Andrews); and one in Northern Ireland (Queen's University, Belfast). There are also four University Colleges (Leicester, Exeter, Hull and a new one in North Staffordshire), also giving degree courses lasting for three or four years. The total number of full-time students in these Universities and other institutions receiving grants from the University Grants Committee in the session 1951-52 was 83,458 of whom 19,488 were women (compared with a total of 85,314 enrolled at the beginning of the session 1950-51 and 50,000 in 1939). 72.4 per cent. of the students were assisted by scholarships from public or private funds. All these institutions are self-governing and receive grants from the Treasury (not the Ministry of Education) through the University Grants Committee. The grants for the year 1953-54 will amount to £27,104,900 (including grants to University Colleges, Teaching Hospitals, Agricultural Colleges, etc.). This includes a provision of £6.5 million for capital expenditure and the total grant is £1.5 million more than that for the session 1952-53. In the year 1951-52, 66.5 per cent. of the income of the universities came from the Treasury, 14.8 per cent. from fees, 5.2 per cent. from endowments and 4.1 per cent. from Local Education Authorities.

THE ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITIES OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH

5, Gordon Square, W.C.1

The Association (formerly the Universities Bureau of the British Empire) holds quinquennial Congresses of the Universities of the Commonwealth, and other meetings in the intervening years, publishes the Commonwealth Universities Yearbook, etc., acts as a general information centre, and provides an advisory service for the filling of staff appointments overseas. It also supplies the secretariat for the Committee of Vice-Chancellors and Principals of the Universities of the United Kingdom.

Secretary, J. F. Foster, M.A., LL.D.

ARCHITECTURE

ARCHITECTS REGISTRATION COUNCIL OF THE U.K., 68 Portland Place, W.1.—Chairman, E. D. Jefferiss Mathews, O.B.E., F.R.I.B.A., A.R.I.C.S.; Registrar, Pembroke Wicks, C.B.E., LL.B.

The Council, which is set up under the Architects (Registration) Acts, 1931–1938, maintains the Register of Architects and has power to remove from the Register an architect found guilty of disgraceful conduct. It consists of representatives of all architectural bodies, organizations of kindred professions and the Government departments concerned. It is an offence punishable on summary conviction by a fine not exceeding £50 for an unregistered person to carry on business under any name, style or title containing the word "Architect." To qualify for registration an applicant must have passed one of the Examinations recognized by the Council on the recommendation of the Board of Architectural Education, set up under the principal Act. One half of the annual fee of £1 paid by Registered Architects is devoted by Section 14 of the Act to the provision of scholarships for the assistance of students in architecture of insufficient means.

THE ROYAL INSTITUTE OF BRITISH ARCHITECTS, 66 Portland Place, W.1, grants the diplomas, F.R.I.B.A., A.R.I.B.A. and L.R.I.B.A. The R.I.B.A. Board of Architectural Education, which is distinct from the Statutory Board of Architectural Education referred to above, controls and guides the whole system of higher education for Architects throughout Great Britain. The following Schools are recognized by the R.I.B.A. for the purpose of exemption from its intermediate Examination, and in the case of those Schools marked "*" from its Final Examination.

VETERINARY

ROYAL COLLEGE OF VETERINARY SURGEONS

9 & 10 Red Lion Square, W.C.1

President, Prof. R. E. Glover.
Registrar, W. G. R. Oates.

The Veterinary Surgeons Acts, 1881-1948, provide that the Council of the Royal College shall maintain the Statutory Register of Veterinary Surgeons. Unless his name appears in that Register, no person may use the title "Veterinary Surgeon," or any name, title, addition or description, calculated to lead to the belief that he is registered in that Register.

Admission to the Register of Veterinary Surgeons may be obtained by taking the Diploma of M.R.C.V.S. at an affiliated veterinary college or under the Veterinary Surgeons Act, 1948, by obtaining the registrable veterinary degree of a recognized University.

Since July 29, 1949, veterinary practice in Great Britain and Northern Ireland (with certain minor exceptions) is illegal if carried out by any person not on the Register of Veterinary Surgeons or the Supplementary Veterinary Register on which have been placed the names of unqualified persons who satisfied the Council of the Royal College under the Veterinary Surgeons Act, 1948.

The University Grants Committee, the Ministry of Agriculture and the Department of Agriculture for Scotland have appointed an inter-departmental committee to inquire into the financial needs of veterinary education in Britain and to make recommendations on the application of any moneys provided by Parliament towards meeting those needs.

The Council of the Royal College is responsible for all registration and discipline of the veterinary profession and persons entered on the Supplementary Veterinary Register.

The following Universities and Teaching Colleges present their students for either the Diploma M.R.C.V.S. or the Veterinary Degree of their University:—

- ROYAL VETERINARY COLLEGE AND HOSPITAL, University of London, Camden Town, N.W.1 (408).—Principal, Prof. J. Basil Buxton, M.A., F.R.C.V.S., D.V.H.

Headmasters' Conference Schools

THE HEADMASTERS' CONFERENCE.—Chairman, E. J. F. James, D.Phil. (Manchester G.S.). Sec., L. W. Taylor, O.B.E., M.A., 29 Gordon Square, W.C.1. The annual meetings are, as a rule, held in September.

Election of a Headmaster to membership requires that certain conditions with regard to his school must be fulfilled: (a) the school must have a certain degree of independence—generally speaking it must either be an independent or a direct grant school, though a limited number of aided schools, whose history and tradition warrant it, may be elected, (b) number of boys over the age of 13, (c) amount of post school-certificate work undertaken, (d) number of former pupils at the Universities.

Certain schools, not fulfilling present conditions, will remain in the list while present Headmaster holds office.

QUEEN ELIZABETH IS CROWNED

(1952) June 2. With traditional ceremony and a religious symbolism that stirred millions of people throughout the world, Queen Elizabeth II was crowned in Westminster Abbey, receiving the acclaim of hundreds of thousands of her subjects as, with the Duke of Edinburgh, she made her royal progress through the capital before and after the impressive service. Great throngs lined the decorated streets but even larger multitudes, in their homes and in places of assembly, saw by means of television or heard by wireless, all but the most sacred and personal portions of the ceremony. In the Abbey the Queen, with superb grace and dignity, made the ancient promises to govern well, and confirmed those promises with solemn oath, and after the anointing beneath canopy of cloth of gold and the presentation of the regalia the Archbishop of Canterbury placed the Crown upon her head to the cry from all over the Abbey of "God Save the Queen" and the sound of fanfares. Her Majesty then ascended the throne and the peers, led by Her Majesty's own consort, swore the oath of homage, after which the whole congregation acclaimed their sovereign. The Coronation was completed and shortly afterwards the Queen, the central figure of a colourful procession, left the Abbey to meet again her people, waiting patiently in showers of rain, to show their affection. All the members of the Royal Family were present, including for a time, which covered the actual crowning, the young Duke of Cornwall, in the care of the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret. The Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth, with Sir Winston Churchill at their head, were also there, as were representatives of all the nations. A great roar of cheering met the Queen when, with her husband and wearing her crown, she set out in the golden coach on the longer return journey to the Palace, and the enthusiasm continued throughout the slow progress home. Afterwards the vast concourse near the Mall flocked to the front of the forecourt and presently Her Majesty, her husband and children and all the members of the Royal Family came to the balcony to watch the brilliantly executed fly-past of the Royal Air Force in honour of their sovereign. Other balcony appearances followed and in the evening Her Majesty broadcast to the Commonwealth and Europe and declared that her abiding memory of the day would be not only the solemnity and beauty of the ceremony but the inspiration of the loyalty and affection of her people. At dusk she pressed switch which turned on illuminations and searchlights and was signal for lighting of bonfires and celebrations all over the United Kingdom. London's loyalty continued to be shown during the four drives which the Queen and the Duke made in various districts during the succeeding week.

THE CENTENARIES OF 1954

At the beginning of 1854, the gradually increasing tension in the Near East was reaching breaking-point, and it did not appear that war against Russia could be long postponed. On February 8, the Russian Ambassador left London, and later in the month Great Britain and France addressed an ultimatum to Russia calling upon her to evacuate the Principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia, which she had occupied in the previous year. Meanwhile the Guards had already embarked for the East, Russia having disregarded the demands of Great Britain and France, the formal declaration of war came on March 22, and was followed on April 10 by an Anglo-French treaty of alliance.

For a long time, however, Lord Aberdeen, the British Prime Minister, was loth to take more aggressive action, and it was the force of public opinion which finally induced him to agree to an invasion of the Crimea and an attack upon Sebastopol. Consequently it was not until September 7 that the Allied forces left Varna. Landing successfully in the Crimea, they obtained quick victories at the Alma (Sept. 20), Balaclava (Oct. 25) and Inkerman (Nov. 5). Their progress was, however, delayed by a disastrous storm on Nov. 14, which did immense damage both on sea and land, and exposed the inadequate arrangements of the commissariat, transport and medical departments, which were already causing consternation at home. The war became a deadlock and the Allied troops suffered the full rigours of a Crimean winter. On November 5, Miss Florence Nightingale, with her nurses, arrived at the base camp at Scutari, and began her famous work of creating order out of chaos.

Meanwhile, these revelations of administrative weakness, and allegations of feebleness in its conduct of the war, rendered Lord Aberdeen's Ministry increasingly unpopular, and indeed it did not long survive the end of the year.

At home, the war caused the withdrawal of the Reform Bill, to the chagrin of Lord John Russell, its chief protagonist in the Government. Early in the year, the increase in the price of the 4-lb. loaf to 9d. caused riots at Exeter, Taunton, Tiverton and Bideford. The cost of the war caused the doubling of the standard rate of income tax for one year—from 7d. in the £ to 1s. 2d.

On June 10, the 1851 Exhibition Building, which had been re-erected at Sydenham and was henceforth known as the Crystal Palace, was opened by Queen Victoria with great ceremony in the presence of 40,000 spectators. One of the first functions to be held there was the Centenary Festival of the Society of Arts on July 3. During the year St. George's Hall, Liverpool, was also formally opened and the British Association held its annual meeting there. The foundation of the Working Men's College, sponsored by F. D. Maurice and Thomas Hughes, may also be noted.

Among disasters of the year were three very tragic accidents at sea, involving the loss of many lives. On Jan. 21 the emigrant ship Taylor was wrecked off Lambay Island, near Howth, with the loss of 290 persons out of 528 on board. On March 1, the City of Glasgow left Liverpool for Philadelphia with a crew of 76 and 404 passengers, and was never heard of again. On April 28, as a result of a collision in the Channel with an American ship, the emigrant ship Favourite went down with all her crew and 191 passengers.

Publications during 1854 included Dickens' Hard

THE UNITED KINGDOM

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

The British Constitution.

The British Constitution.—The British Constitution is mainly unwritten and customary, but its development is marked by certain outstanding and fundamental laws, of which the principal are Magna Carta (1215), which provided (inter alia) for the equal administration of justice; the Habeas Corpus Act (1679), securing the liberty of the person; the Act of Settlement (1701), providing for the Protestant succession to the throne; the Act of Union with Scotland (1707); the Act of Union with Ireland (1800); the Parliament Act (1911), which enabled the Commons to pass certain Acts without the concurrence of the other chamber; the Government of Ireland Act (1920); the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act (1922); the Statute of Westminster (1931), which exempted the self-governing Dominions from the Colonial Laws Validity Act and secured their legislative autonomy; the Indian Independence Act (1947) and the Government of Ceylon Act (1947) which established the Dominions of India, of Pakistan and of Ceylon; the Burma Independence Act, which made Burma an Independent Autonomous State; the Crown Proceedings Act (1947) which brought the Crown in its public capacity into the same position as a private person for the purposes of torts (civil wrong in violation of non-contractual rights), and the Parliament Act, 1949.

THE SOVEREIGN

The Sovereign.—The throne is hereditary in the British House of Windsor with mixed succession, the sons of the Sovereign and their descendants having precedence of daughters, but daughters and their descendants preference over lateral lines. The Monarchy is constitutional and limited.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Legislature.—Parliament consists of two Houses, the Lords and the Commons, constituted as shown on pp. 330-333.

The powers of the House of Lords were much restricted by the Parliament Act, 1911. Thus, if a Money Bill is not passed unamended by the House of Lords within a month of its being sent up, it becomes law upon the Royal assent being signified. A Public Bill other than a Money Bill will become law without the consent of the Lords if it is passed by the Commons, and sent up to the Lords, in three successive sessions, provided two years elapse between the date of the second reading in the Commons in the first session and the date when it is passed by that body in the third session. Passing a Bill with amendments by the House of Lords is equivalent to rejection, unless the Commons approve the amendments. Any Bill by which the maximum duration of Parliament is increased is excepted from this Act. Under the Parliament Act, an amending Act, reducing the Lords' power of veto to two successive sessions, became law in 1949.

The powers of the House of Commons are almost unrestricted.

THE EXECUTIVE

The Executive.—The Crown (the Queen in Council) "makes peace and war, issues charters, increases the peerage, is the fountain of honour, of office, and of justice." The Sovereign entrusts the executive power to Ministers of the Crown (see p. 327).

THE JUDICATURE

The Supreme Judicial Authority for the United Kingdom is the House of Lords, which is the ultimate Court of Appeal from all Courts in England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

England and Wales.

The laws in England and Wales are administered by judges appointed by the Crown, who hold office for life, and cannot be removed save on petition presented by both Houses of Parliament. Two Courts of Appeal hear appeals from the High Court, the ultimate Court of Appeal from all the Courts in Great Britain being the House of Lords. Civil cases arising in London and Middlesex are tried at the High Court in London, but civil cases arising in the country are tried on circuit by judges of the Queen's Bench at the Assizes. The Chancery division has exclusive jurisdiction to try certain classes of actions. To the County Courts is relegated the duty of trying actions where the sum in dispute does not exceed a certain amount. The County Courts, too, have jurisdiction to try cases arising under certain special Acts of Parliament, e.g., the Workmen's Compensation Act. Bankruptcy cases arising in London are heard in the London Bankruptcy Court; those arising out of London are dealt with in the County Courts.

With regard to criminal law it is a general principle that, except for certain minor offences, every person charged is entitled to be tried by a jury. Courts of criminal jurisdiction in England are: (1) The judges of the High Court sitting at Assizes for the trial of cases out of London; and at the Central Criminal Court ("The Old Bailey") for the trial of cases arising in and around London. (2) Courts of Quarter Sessions, held for every county, and formed of justices of the peace, presided over by a chairman or deputy chairman, appointed by the Queen on the advice of the Lord Chancellor (in which case a salary is appended to the office) or elected by the justices of the Peace for the County. The Records of certain cities and boroughs have a jurisdiction similar to that of courts of Quarter Sessions. (3) Courts of Petty Sessions, consisting of at least two justices of the peace or a stipendiary magistrate. (4) The Court of Criminal Appeal has power to hear appeals against convictions and sentences.

Scotland.

Scots civil law is administered by the Court of Session which is a court of law and equity. The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges, and as a rule it is confined to the trial of serious cases. The Sheriff of the county exercises jurisdictions which correspond to those of the English County Court judges and the Chairmen of Quarter Sessions. Burgh magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases.

Northern Ireland.

The Supreme Court consists of a Lord Chief Justice, two Lord Justices, and two Puisne Judges. There are Records in Belfast and Londonderry and Chairmen of Quarter Sessions in each of the six counties.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

ENGLAND AND WALES.—Local Government is carried out by directly elected councils under the general supervision of the appropriate central Department. In London some functions are performed by the London County Council and the remainder by the Common Council of the City of London and 26 Metropolitan Borough Councils. England and Wales outside London is divided into 61 administrative counties and 83 county boroughs. The councils of county boroughs perform all local government functions within their areas, but in the counties there are, besides the county councils, the councils of 309 non-county boroughs, 572 urban districts and 475 rural districts who perform certain functions within their respective areas. In addition, certain minor functions in rural districts are the responsibility of the parish, acting through a parish council or the parish meeting. All these councils are under elected chairmen except borough councils, who are under Lord Mayors or Mayors; all cities are boroughs, with the exception of Ely which is an Urban District, and the term "city" is one of historical and ceremonial rather than administrative significance. The chief official is, in boroughs, the Town Clerk, and elsewhere the Clerk of the Council.

The central Department chiefly concerned with local government is the Ministry of Housing and Local Government, but the Ministry of Health, the Home Office, the Ministries of Education, of Agriculture and Fisheries and of Transport are also concerned with particular services. The principal local government services are education, health, housing, welfare, roads and police, in addition to trading services (passenger transport, harbours, docks and piers), etc. In England and Wales the 62 administrative counties (including the London County Council), and the 83 county boroughs are local planning authorities under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, which came into force on July 1, 1948.

Local Government Allowances.—Regulations have been made pursuant to the Local Government Act, 1948, with regard to allowances to members of local authorities and other bodies when performing approved duties. Maximum rates of travelling and subsistence allowances have been prescribed. Travelling allowances may cover first-class railway fare, the cost of taxi-cabs or hired motor cars, or of travel by private motor car and—in special circumstances only—air travel. The maximum rates of subsistence allowance are 5s. 0d. for an absence from home of more than 4 hours, 10s. 0d. for more than 8 hours, 15s. 0d. for more than 12 hours and 32s. 6d. for absence over night, covering up to 24 hours. A supplementary allowance not exceeding 9s. 6d. is payable for absence over night in London, or in connection with the annual conference of certain of the main Associations of Local Authorities. (Alterations to the above rates were under consideration when this edition went to press.)

SCOTLAND.—Scotland is divided for Local Government purposes into counties, burghs, and districts, administered respectively by county, town, and district councils. There are 33 county councils (although for certain purposes the counties of Perth and Kinross, and Moray and Nairn, are combined), 197 burghs—including 24 large burghs, of which 4 are counties of cities, and 173 small burghs—and 199 districts, which are made up of one or more of the electoral divisions of a county. County and district councils are elected triennially, but in town councils one-third of the members retire every year. County Councils include representatives from the landward areas and from all the burghs which are within the county for any purpose, the burghal representatives being elected from among their own members by the town councils concerned. District Councils are made up of elected members and the County councillors for the district, who are members ex officio. A County Council is presided over by the Convener of the County, a district council by its Chairman, and a town council by the Provost or Lord Provost, all of whom hold office for three years. A town council appoints from its members a number of bailies to be, with the provost, the magistrates of the burgh. The four counties of cities are independent units for the purposes of all local government functions; the other large burghs are independent for all purposes, except that for education, and in some cases, police, they are included in the county; small burghs are within the county not only for education and police, but also for such purposes as classified roads, town planning, etc., but the town councils administer cleansing and drainage, unclassified roads, housing, etc. District Councils deal with recreation grounds, rights of way, allotments and certain other minor functions. County Councils have power to delegate certain functions to the town councils of small burghs, to district councils, and to joint committees of such town and district councils.

NORTHERN IRELAND.—Northern Ireland is divided for Local Government purposes into 6 Counties, 2 County Boroughs, 9 Borough Councils, 24 Urban District Councils, 32 Rural District Councils and 3 Town Commissioners.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ELECTORS (1951).—In England and Wales there are 9,643,761 Electors in County Boroughs, 15,480,095 in Municipal Boroughs and Urban Districts, including the City of London and Metropolitan Boroughs, and 5,605,862 in Rural Districts.—Total, 30,734,718.

In Scotland there are 1,312,473 Electors in Counties of Cities, 556,378 in other large Burghs, 586,104 in small Burghs and 998,353 in landward areas.—Total, 3,453,308.

In Northern Ireland the register published on April 1, 1952, contained the names of 576,387 local government electors. Of this total 188,561 related to the County Borough of Belfast and 19,511 to Londonderry County Borough. A new electoral register will be published on April 1, 1955.

POLICE

The Police of England and Wales are administered by the Home Office, those of Scotland by the Scottish Home Department and those of Northern Ireland by the Ministry of Home Affairs.

The Sinking Funds

Reductions in the Debt are by means of Sinking Funds. The Old Sinking Fund was the application of the surplus revenue of any year for the redemption of debt when so determined by Parliament. In 1875 Sir Stafford Northcote set up the New Sinking Fund, consisting of the balance of the Annual Charge after providing for interest and cost of management. Debt reduction is also made by means of Terminable Annuities, the capital value of which is deducted from the Debt upon the expiration of the term for which the annuities are payable and by other means shown above.

The Suez Canal Shares

In Nov. 1875, the British Government authorized Messrs. Rothschild to buy the Khedive Ismail's shares in the Canal Maritime de Suez (176,602 shares out of a total of 400,000) for £4,080,000, the Khedive to receive the dividends thereon until July 1, 1894. Since that date the dividends have accrued to the British Treasury. Dividends received during 1952-53 on 204,160 ordinary shares and 149,344 "Actions de Jouissance" were £1,756,031 and £1,105,464. On March 31, 1953, the British holdings were valued at £26,986,068.

The National Fund

This National Fund was established in 1927 by a gift from an anonymous donor of approximately £500,000, viz. £338,909 cash and securities of the value of £160,969. Messrs. Barling Brothers and Co., Limited, were chosen by the donor as Trustees and the gift was made on condition that it should be retained and accumulated until either alone or with other funds it was sufficient to discharge the National Debt. The Trustees have, however, power, if in their opinion national exigencies require, to transfer part of it to the National Debt Commissioners at an earlier date to be applied in reduction of the Debt, provided they keep a substantial part in hand with the object of ultimately fulfilling the donor's wishes. In accordance with the donor's wish the Trustees have complete discretion to invest the Fund in investments of any nature whatsoever (whether authorized by law for the investment of Trust Funds or not) or to use it in any trade, business or adventure, or in any way in which moneys are for the time being commonly applied by financiers in the City of London. The donor also expressly desired that the Trustees should have power to accept further gifts on similar conditions. The audited balance sheet, as at March 31, 1953, shows the following net additions during the year:—Contributions received, £6,595; net revenue, £69,265; net profit on investments realized £2,253. The amount of the Fund (investments at cost) on March 31, 1953, was £2,038,432. Under the provisions of Clause 30 of the Finance Act, 1928, the Fund is exempt from Income Tax.

The Elsie Mackay Fund

The sum of £527,808 was set aside in 1929 by Lord and Lady Inchcape in memory of their daughter, to accumulate for not more than 50 years and then to be applied to reduction of the National Debt. The fund stood on March 31, 1953, at £1,379,025.

The John Buchanan Fund

This Fund was established in 1932 under the will of Dr. John Buchanan who died in 1930 and left the residue of his estate, subject to certain annuities, to be accumulated for fifty years beginning two years after his death and then to be applied in reduction of the National Debt. The money is paid over from time to time as it falls in. The fund stood on March 31, 1953, at £12,341.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT DEBTS

In addition to the National Debt there are considerable amounts outstanding as Loans of Local Authorities. These amounts were raised for the provision of dwelling-houses, baths, cemeteries, electricity supply, gasworks, highways, hospitals, markets, parks, sewerage works, transport (tramways, etc.), harbours, docks, canals, waterworks and other purposes. On March 31, 1951, there were outstanding loans in England and Wales to the amount of £2,252,107; against this total the sum of £37,451,000 stood at the credit of various Sinking Funds. The total amount of outstanding loans and capitalized annuities in Scotland (on May 15, 1948) was £232,333,788, and in Northern Ireland (on March 31, 1950) £29,290,165 (excluding Hospitals).

CENSUS POPULATION OF THE BRITISH ISLES

Before 1801 there existed no official return of the population of either England or Scotland; nor was it till 1813 that statesmen had anything more than surmise to guide them respecting Ireland, and the census then taken of that country was far from correct. The estimate formed of the English population at various periods, calculated from the numbers of baptisms, burials, and marriages, was in the years—

1570.....	4,160,221	1670.....	5,773,646
1600.....	4,811,718	1700.....	6,045,008
1630.....	5,600,517	1750.....	6,517,035

The first general Census of Great Britain and Ireland was taken in 1801, and since that date there has been a fresh numbering every ten years (except in 1941). Results since 1851 are as follows;—

1851.....	27,513,551	1901.....	41,609,091

THE FIFTEENTH CENSUS

The Fifteenth Census of the population of England and Wales was taken on April 8, 1951. Censuses were also taken on the same date in Scotland, Northern Ireland, the Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands. Simultaneous counts of these areas were last taken in 1911.

The 1951 Census schedule contained 24 questions, compared with 13 in 1931. Most of the questions were repeated from previous censuses. A new question, designed to give a broad indication of the type and level of education received, asked persons returned as gainfully occupied to state at what age their full-time education had ceased. To give further information on housing conditions, new questions inquired whether each household had exclusive use of, shared with another household, or lacked entirely, a piped water supply, cooking stove or range, kitchen sink, water closet and fixed bath.

According to preliminary summaries furnished by Local Census Officers, the total population of England and Wales at midnight on Sunday, April 8, 1951, was 43,744,024, compared with 39,986,000 in 1931, and of Scotland 5,095,969, compared with 4,823,000 in 1931. This represents a density of population in England and Wales of 750 persons per square mile and in Great Britain of 550 persons per square mile.

Tourists in Great Britain

The total number of foreign visitors arriving in this country rose from 712,000 in 1951 to 733,000 in 1952, not including tourists from the Republic of Ireland. The increase of 21,000 was due almost entirely to a 28 per cent. increase in the number of United States visitors. There was a small increase in the number of Commonwealth visitors, while the number of foreign visitors from Europe fell slightly from the very high figure of 1951.

164,000 United States citizens and 41,000 Canadians visited the United Kingdom during the year. Tourist earnings from the Dollar Area totalled $77,000,000 (£27,500,000 approximately). Most residents of other countries in the Western Hemisphere, however, also finance their visits in dollars and the total expenditure of dollars in the United Kingdom by visitors in 1952 may be taken as about $82,000,000 compared with $70,000,000 in 1951.

There was again a substantial increase in the number of visitors from Germany and the number has more than doubled in the two years since 1950, approaching the average of 56,000 in 1935-38.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

The National Health Service was inaugurated on July 5, 1948, by the Minister of Health under the National Health Service Act, 1946, "to promote the establishment in England and Wales of a comprehensive Health Service designed to secure improvement in the mental and physical health of the people of England and Wales and the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of illness." There are separate Acts for Scotland and Northern Ireland, where the Health Services are run on very similar lines.

The National Health Service is available to every civilian in the country and is a charge on the National Income. Everyone is entitled to use any complete part or all of the services and no insurance qualification is necessary. The cost of the Service is met by the National Exchequer, by a small contribution made from the National Insurance Fund and by charges for the Service. About half the expenses of the local health services fall on local rates.

Under the 1946 Act, the only charges falling on the patient for any of the services were in certain cases for the renewal or repair of glasses or for the replacement of dentures; for domestic help, extra food at home, blankets, etc.; and for accommodation and treatment in private wards in hospitals. It was open to anyone, if they wished, in certain cases to pay the extra cost of more expensive glasses, more expensive dental treatment than is clinically necessary, and artificial limbs. In 1950, the Chancellor of the Exchequer decided that the estimate for 1950-51 was to be treated as a "ceiling" above which total expenditure must not rise. Since then the "ceiling" for the National Health Service for England, Wales and Scotland has remained at about £400,000,000. In May, 1951, and May, 1952, charges were introduced for certain items in the National Health Service.

The National Health Service (Amendment) Act, 1949, had empowered the Minister inter alia to introduce a charge for prescriptions, and a charge of 1s. for each prescription form was introduced on June 1, 1952. The National Health Service Act, 1951, authorized the making of charges to meet part of the cost of dentures and spectacles supplied through the Service. These charges came into force on May 21, 1951. The National Health Service Act, 1952, authorized the making of charges for medicines and certain appliances supplied to hospital out-patients, for dental treatment (excluding examination) provided under the General Dental Services and for day-nurseries run by local health authorities. These charges were effective from June 1, 1952. Patients who are unable without hardship to meet charges under these Acts may apply to the National Assistance Board and there are also some exemptions from charges made to out-patients and for dental treatment.

THE HEALTH SERVICES

Family Doctor Service

The Family Doctor Service is organized by 138 Executive Councils which also organize the Dental, Pharmaceutical and Supplementary Eye Services for their areas. There is an Executive Council for each County and County Borough area, but in some cases one Council covers two areas. Members, who serve voluntarily, are appointed by local doctors, dentists and pharmacists (12), the Local Health Authority (8) and the Minister of Health (5). All doctors may take part in the Family Doctor Scheme and between 18,000 and 19,000 out of some 21,000 general practitioners do so. They may at the same time have private fee-paying patients. Health Service doctors are paid on a capitation basis, i.e. an annual fee in respect of each patient accepted.

Everyone aged 16 or over can choose his doctor (parents or guardians choose for children under 16) and the doctor is also free to accept a person or not as he chooses. A person may change his doctor if he wishes, either at once if he has changed his address or obtained permission of the doctor on whose list he is, or by informing the local Executive Council. When people are away from home they can still use the Family Doctor Service if they ask to be treated as "temporary residents," and in an emergency, if a person's own doctor is not available, any doctor in the service will give treatment and advice.

Patients are treated either in the doctor's surgery or, when necessary, at home. Doctors may prescribe for their patients all drugs and medicines which are medically necessary for their treatment and also a certain number of surgical appliances (the more elaborate being provided through the hospitals).

Drugs and Medicines.—Almost all the 13,000 chemists in England and Wales have joined the Service. Approximately 216,700,000 prescriptions were dispensed in 1952. Since June 1, 1952, there has been a charge of 1s. in respect of each prescription form made out by the family doctor and presented for dispensing. The only exception is where the doctor prescribes elastic hosiery, in which case the patient pays 5s. or 10s. on each article. In those country areas where the doctor does his own dispensing, the 1s. is paid to the doctor.

Dental Service

Dentists, like doctors, may take part in the Service and may also have private patients. About 9,500 of the dentists available for general practice have joined the National Health Service. They are responsible to the Executive Councils in whose areas they provide services.

Patients are free to go to any dentist taking part in the Service and willing to accept them, and do not require to register with any particular dentist. Dentists receive payment for items of treatment for individual patients, instead of the capitation fee received by doctors. There is no need for the patient to obtain a recommendation before seeking dental treatment. The dentist is able to carry out at once all normal conservative treatment (e.g. fillings), emergency treatment and ordinary denture repairs; he seeks prior approval from the local Dental Estimates Board before undertaking treatment when it involves the removal of teeth necessitating replacement by dentures; provision of dentures; extensive and prolonged treatment of the gums; gold fillings; inlays; crowns; special appliances and oral surgery.

A dentist may, with the approval of the Board, charge his patient a prescribed sum for gold fillings or metal dentures where these are not clinically necessary, if the patient wishes to have them. Where a denture supplied under the Service has to be replaced because of loss or damage the whole or part of the cost may be charged to the patient if he has been careless. In May, 1951, charges were introduced for dentures whereby the patient has to pay an amount corresponding roughly to half the cost to the Exchequer. In June, 1952, a charge of £1, or the full cost of any treatment if less than £1, was introduced. No charge is made for the clinical examination of a patient's mouth. Charges for dental treatment (other than the usual charges for dentures) are not made in the case of anyone under 21 years of age or expectant mothers or mothers who have had a child during the preceding twelve months.

Supplementary Ophthalmic Service

A Supplementary Ophthalmic Service is being run by the Executive Councils until such time as all necessary Eye Services can be made available at the clinics planned as part of the Hospital and Specialist Services. On the advice of the family doctor, the patient's sight can be tested by ophthalmic medical practitioners or ophthalmic opticians and spectacles supplied if necessary.

Until 1951 there were no charges under the Supplementary Ophthalmic Service except, in certain cases, for the renewal or repair of glasses or where the patient chose a more expensive spectacle frame than one of the standard frames available free, or asked to be supplied with special lenses where only flat lenses were necessary. In May, 1951, charges to patients of 10s. for each lens, plus the actual cost of the frames, were introduced. Children's glasses in the standard type of children's frame remain free of charge.

Hospitals and Specialists

On July 5, 1948, ownership of 2,688 out of 3,040 voluntary and municipal hospitals in England and Wales was vested in the Minister of Health. The remaining hospitals were disclaimed. The hospital service, of which the specialist and consultant facilities are a part, includes general and special hospitals; maternity accommodation; tuberculosis sanatoria; infectious diseases units; provision for chronic sick; mental hospitals and mental deficiency institutions; accommodation for convalescent hospital treatment and medical rehabilitation, and all forms of specialized treatments—for example, plastic surgery, cancer, orthopaedic and ear, nose and throat treatment, together with the provision of most surgical and medical appliances.

In the main, this part of the Service is organized by 14 Regional Hospital Boards (see p. 404); in each hospital region there is a University having a teaching hospital or medical school. Hospitals are administered on behalf of the Board by 387 Hospital Management Committees. The only hospitals in the Service directly outside the Regional Boards' immediate responsibility are the teaching hospitals which provide facilities for under-graduate and post-graduate medical or dental education and which are administered by Boards of Governors. There are 26 Boards of Governors in London and 20 in the rest of the country.

Specialists and consultants who take part in the Service (and nearly all of them are doing so) hold hospital appointments. They can take up whole-time or part-time service and those who have part-time appointments can still accept fee-paying patients outside the Service.

Certain hospitals have accommodation in small wards or single rooms which, if not required for patients who need privacy for medical reasons, may be made available to patients who desire it as an amenity. Amenity bed charges are fixed under Regulations at 6s. to 12s. per day. In such a case the patient pays nothing for the cost of treatment or the normal cost of maintenance. In some hospitals a number of pay-beds has been placed at the disposal of part-time specialists taking part in the Service for use by private patients who agree to pay full hospital maintenance costs, and (usually) private fees to the specialist as well. The fees that may be charged by specialists to patients occupying private pay-beds are restricted to 75 Guineas to cover everything. For exceptionally long or complicated treatment this limit may be raised to 125 Guineas and special arrangements may be made in a limited proportion of pay-beds for patient and doctor to agree to fees outside these limits.

Arrangements to obtain the service or advice of a hospital specialist are made by the patient's family doctor as in the past. A specialist usually sees a patient at the hospital or clinic at which he works, but arrangements will be made for the specialist to visit the patient at home if he is unable, for medical reasons, to be taken to hospital. No charges are made to National Health Service in-patients (except for amenity beds as above), but since June, 1952, a charge of 1s. has been made to out-patients for each prescription form for drugs and medicines (unless administered at hospitals). Exemptions from this charge are made in the case of patients receiving National Assistance or their dependants; war pensioners receiving medicines for their accepted disability; and patients attending V.D. clinics who receive medicines as part of their treatment. Also since June, 1952, hospital out-patients have to pay fixed charges for elastic hosiery, surgical abdominal supports, surgical footwear (and healing and soling repairs) and wigs. Exceptions are made in the case of a child under 16 years of age or at full-time attendance at school, to National Assistance recipients and their dependants and to war pensioners in respect of their accepted war disabilities.

There are about 240 hospitals where diagnostic clinics have been established for testing applicants for hearing aids, and 49 hospitals provide distribution centres where the aid can be obtained after recommendation by a specialist.

Local Health Authority Services

The Local Health Services, mainly concerned with the care of patients in their own homes, are the responsibility of the major local authorities—County Councils and County Borough Councils. There are 146 Local Health Authorities in England and Wales.

Local Health Services provide such services as midwifery; ante-natal, post-natal and infant welfare clinics, and dental services where practicable for expectant and nursing mothers and young children; health visiting; home nursing; ambulances; provision of domestic help on health grounds; special care and after-care of the sick; local mental health services; and also vaccination and immunization. It will also fall to the Local Health Authorities to develop Health Centres.

All these services are free of charge except for domestic help and, in certain cases, provision of residential accommodation, meals, nursing requisites, bedding, etc., for which a charge may be made according to means. Since June, 1952, Local Health Authorities have also had power to make charges for the use of day nurseries. The Local Health Authorities may only charge what is reasonable, having regard to the means of the users.

NATIONAL INSURANCE AND ASSISTANCE

The three State compulsory insurance schemes in force up to July 5, 1948, financed by contributions from insured workpeople, their employers and the Exchequer, provided the following cash benefits:

Unemployment Insurance.....	Unemployment benefit.
National Health Insurance.....	Sickness and disablement benefits; maternity benefit.
Contributory Pensions	Old age and widows' (over 60) pensions; widows' (under 60) pensions; orphans' pensions.

The National Health Insurance scheme also gave medical benefit, and the Health and Pensions schemes made provision for certain classes of voluntary contributors. Other national schemes gave assistance out of State funds, subject to a means test, in three forms—unemployment assistance, non-contributory old age and blind persons' pensions, and supplementary pensions to old age pensioners and to widow pensioners under 60 in receipt of allowances for dependent children. Under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945, compensation for industrial accidents and prescribed industrial diseases was payable by employers without contribution by workpeople or the Exchequer. The Public Assistance Authorities remained responsible for the administration of poor relief on a local basis.

These services, except for non-contributory old age pensions, were replaced after the Second World War by schemes of National Insurance and Industrial Injuries Insurance, National Assistance and Family Allowances. The two insurance schemes and the family allowances scheme are administered by the Ministry of National Insurance, and the national assistance scheme and non-contributory old age pensions by the National Assistance Board.

The Ministry of National Insurance, which was instituted in November, 1944, under the Ministry of National Insurance Act, 1944, took over the functions of other departments with respect to the existing State schemes and was responsible for their administration until the new insurance schemes came into force. Local offices of the Ministry (National Insurance Offices) have been established throughout the country.

NATIONAL INSURANCE

The National Insurance Scheme operates under the National Insurance Act, 1946, as amended by the National Insurance Acts of 1949, 1951 and 1953, and the Family Allowances and National Insurance Act, 1952, and Regulations made by the Minister under these Acts.

INSURED PERSONS AND CONTRIBUTIONS

Subject to certain statutory exceptions, every person living in Great Britain who is over school leaving age and under pensionable age becomes insured under the Acts and continues throughout his or her life to be so insured.

There are three classes of insured persons namely:

- Class 1. Employed persons, i.e. persons who work for an employer under a contract of service or are paid apprentices.
- Class 2. Self-employed persons, i.e. persons gainfully occupied but not working under the control of an employer.
- Class 3. Non-employed persons, i.e. persons who are not gainfully occupied.

Regulations made under the Acts give married women and widows, upon certain conditions, the choice whether to pay contributions or not.

During the year 1951, the estimated number of contributors in each class was as follows: employed, 21,350,000; self-employed, 1,460,000; non-employed, 540,000.

Contributions are payable by insured persons, by employers of employed persons, and out of moneys provided by Parliament. The normal weekly rates of contribution for the three classes of insured persons and for employers of employed persons are shown below:

	Employed Person		Employer of Employed Person		Self-employed Person		Non-employed Person
	s.	d.	s.	d.	s.	d.	s.	d.
Men 18 and over.....	5	9	5	0	7	5	5	7
Women 18 and over.....	4	6	3	11	6	2	4	5
Boys under 18	3	5	3	0	4	4	3	3
Girls under 18.....	2	9	2	4	3	9	2	8

These rates include, in addition to the National Insurance contributions, contributions to the National Health Service (viz. man 10d., woman 8d., boy or girl 6d.), and, for employed persons, contributions under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Acts.

In the case of employed persons over 18 earning 30s. or less per week, the employee's contribution is 3s. 6d. (man) or 2s. 10d. (woman) and the employer's contribution 7s. 3d. (man) or 5s. 7d. (woman). Men aged 70 and over and women aged 65 and over in classes (1) and (2) pay no National Insurance contribution. Men aged 65 to 70 and women aged 60 to 65 in these classes, with certain exceptions, are liable to pay contributions if they have not retired from regular employment. Normally no contributions are payable by men over 65 or women over 60 in class (3).

Increases in contribution rates as provided in the Act of 1946 took effect in October, 1951, and further increases laid down in the Act of 1952 became payable on October 6, 1952.

Regulations state the cases in which insured persons may be exempted from paying National Insurance contributions, and the conditions upon which contributions are credited to persons who are exempted.

Normally contributions are paid by means of stamps on a single insurance card; in the case of employed persons the stamp also covers the Industrial Injuries contribution.

As from October 1, 1952, the Exchequer contribution is a supplementary payment ("the Exchequer supplement") in respect of each contribution paid by an insured person or employer, in accordance with the following table:—

Person by or in respect of whom contribution is paid	For contribution as employed person	For employer's contribution	For contribution as self-employed person	For contribution as non-employed person
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Men over age 18.....	9	9	9½	9
Women over age 18.....	7	6½	7½	7
Boys under age 18.....	5	5	5	5
Girls under age 18.....	4	4	4	4

BENEFITS

The Acts give the following benefits:

Unemployment benefit.

Sickness benefit.

Maternity benefit, including maternity grant, home confinement grant and maternity allowance.

Widow's benefit, including widow's allowance, widowed mother's allowance and widow's pension.

Guardian's allowance.

Retirement pension.

Death grant.

The benefits available to the various classes of insured persons are as follow:

Employed persons....	All benefits.
Self-employed persons.	All benefits except unemployment benefit.
Non-employed persons	All benefits except unemployment and sickness benefits and maternity allowance.

There is one system of adjudication on all claims for benefit under the Acts; with certain exceptions, questions as to the right to benefit are decided by independent statutory authorities, consisting of insurance officers, local tribunals and the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioners.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT

The standard weekly rates of benefit from July 24, 1952, are as follows:

	s.	d.
Man, single woman or widow over 18...	3a	6
Married woman over 18: ordinary rate	26	0
If maintaining an invalid husband, or not living with and unable to obtain any financial assistance from her husband..	3a	6
Person under 18 (other than a married woman): ordinary rate.....	20	0
If entitled to an increase of benefit in respect of a child or adult dependant.	3a	6
Married women under 18: ordinary rate.	20	0
If entitled to an increase of benefit in respect of a child or adult dependant...	26	0
If supporting an invalid husband, or if entitled to an increase of benefit in respect of a child or adult dependant other than her husband and not residing with and unable to obtain any financial assistance from her husband.....	3a	6
Increase of benefit for only child or elder or eldest child (where payable).....	20	6
Increase of benefit for each additional child (where payable).....	2	6
Increase of benefit for adult dependant (where payable).....	21	6

Normal Contribution Conditions.—The claimant must have paid 26 Class 1 contributions since July 5, 1948, and, to be entitled to benefit at the full rate, must have paid or had credited 50 Class 1 contributions during the preceding contribution year.

Waiting Period.—Benefit is not payable for the first three days of a spell of unemployment or sickness unless the claimant has twelve days or more of unemployment or sickness within a period of 13 weeks beginning with the first of these days. Odd days of unemployment or sickness count for benefit only where any two or more of them fall within a period of six consecutive days, excluding Sundays, and such spells of two or more days are treated as "linked up" if not separated by more than 13 weeks.

Duration of Benefit.—A claimant can draw in respect of any period of interruption of employment 180 days of unemployment benefit, together with additional days of benefit, assessed on his record of contributions and benefit.

Requalification for Benefit.—A person who has exhausted his standard benefit, including any additional days, requalifies therefor when he has paid 13 Class 1 contributions.

Disqualifications.—As in the former scheme, there are disqualifications for receiving benefit, e.g. for a period not exceeding six weeks if a person has lost his employment through his misconduct, or has voluntarily left his employment without just cause, or has, without good cause, refused an offer of suitable employment.

Numbers Unemployed.—During the year 1952 the average number of persons registered as unemployed in Great Britain was 414,245.

SICKNESS BENEFIT

Standard Rates of Benefit.—Same as for unemployment benefit, except that the ordinary rate for a married woman over 18, and the rate for a married woman under 18 if entitled to an increase of benefit in respect of a child or adult dependant, is 22s. instead of 26s.

Normal Contribution Conditions.—Same as for unemployment benefit, except that Class 2 as well as Class 1 contributions are counted.

Waiting Period.—Same as for unemployment benefit. Days of sickness are "linked up" with days of unemployment falling within the same period of 13 weeks.

Duration of Benefit.—A person who has paid 156 Class 1 or Class 2 contributions receives sickness benefit of unlimited duration. If he has paid less than 156 such contributions, benefit is limited to 312 days (one year); but he will requalify for benefit when he has paid contributions for 13 weeks.

Disqualifications.—Regulations provide for disqualifying a person for receiving sickness benefit for a period not exceeding six weeks if he has become incapable of work through his own misconduct, or if he fails without good cause to attend for or submit himself to prescribed medical or other examination or treatment, or if he acts in a way which would retard his recovery.

Number of Claims.—During 1951, 7,545,000 new claims for sickness benefit were received. The number of insured persons incapacitated owing to sickness varied during the year from about 750,000 in August to over 1,500,000 in January.

MATERNITY BENEFIT

The National Insurance Act, 1953, makes changes as from the appointed day or days in the structure and the amount of the maternity benefits provided by the principal Act.

Maternity Grant.—A cash grant of £9 for each child born is payable on the mother's own insurance or on her husband's. The normal contribution conditions for this grant are (i) that the mother or her husband has paid not less than 26 contributions of any class since his or her entry into insurance, and (ii) that not less than 26 contributions of any class have been paid by or credited to that person during the previous contribution year, or the mother has satisfied the contribution conditions for a maternity allowance at the standard rate or at a reduced rate.

Home Confinement Grant.—An additional grant of £3 is payable to women whose confinement takes place elsewhere than in accommodation provided under the National Health Service.

Maternity Allowance.—A woman who is gainfully occupied receives in addition a maternity allowance of 32s. 6d. a week normally for 18 weeks beginning eleven weeks before the expected week of confinement, provided that she abstains from work. The rate of allowance is increased where the woman has dependants. The normal contribution conditions for this benefit are (i) that the claimant has paid or had credited 50 Class 1 or 2 contributions during the 52 weeks ending 13 weeks before the expected week of confinement; and (ii) that in the same 52 weeks at least 26 Class 1 or 2 contributions have been paid.

Transitional arrangements have been made under the Act of 1953, with the object of ensuring, inter alia, that no woman will be debarred from receiving maternity benefits, to which she would have been entitled under the old qualifying conditions, until she has had time to qualify under the new conditions.

During 1950, maternity benefit was paid for about nine-tenths of the confinements. Of the 709,000 women who received benefit in that year, about 119,000 qualified for maternity allowances.

WIDOW'S BENEFIT

This benefit in any of its three forms is payable to the widow of any class of insured person. The normal contribution conditions to be satisfied by the husband are (a) that he had paid not less than 156 contributions since his last entry into insurance (104 contributions in most cases if he was already married, and insured for pensions, on July 4, 1948), and (b) that the yearly average of the contributions paid by or credited to him was not less than 50.

Widow's Allowance.—A woman who at her husband's death is under 60, or, if the husband had not qualified for a retirement pension, is over 60, receives (during the first 13 weeks of widowhood) a cash allowance usually of 42s. 6d. a week, with an increase of 10s. 6d. for the first or only child and 2s. 6d. for each other child.

Widowed Mother's Allowance.—When the 13 weeks of widow's allowance have elapsed, a widow who is left with one or more children of school age receives a cash allowance usually of 43s. a week so long as she has a child of school age, and in addition 2s. 6d. a week for each child other than the first.

Widow's Pension.—A widow under pensionable age receives a widow's pension usually of 32s. 6d. a week (i) when widow's allowance ends, if she was over 50 at the time of her husband's death and had been married for not less than 10 years; or, (ii) when her widowed mother's allowance comes to an end, if she is then over 40 and not less than 10 years have elapsed since marriage.

Where on the termination of either allowance the widow is pregnant by her late husband, she receives the pension in any case until the birth of the child. And if, when either allowance comes to an end, she is by reason of any infirmity incapable of self-support and is under pensionable age, she is in any case entitled to the pension so long as she is so incapable by reason of that infirmity.

Widow's benefit of any form ceases upon remarriage. A widow's pension is reduced by the amount of any earnings in excess of 40s. a week. A widowed mother's allowance is reduced by the amount of any earnings in excess of 60s. a week; but the total reduction cannot exceed 32s. 6d. whatever the earnings.

If a woman, who was married before July 5, 1948, to a man insured under the old scheme, does not qualify for widow's benefit under the new scheme, she may qualify for a widow's pension, usually of 10s. a week, as under the old scheme.

At March 31, 1952, about 440,000 widows were receiving widowed mother's allowance, widow's pension or widow's "basic" pension (at the old scheme rate), and in addition 21,000 widow's allowances were in payment.

GUARDIAN'S ALLOWANCE

Where the parents (including step-parents) of a child are dead, and one at least of them was an insured person, any person who has the child in his family receives a guardian's allowance of 15s. 0d. a week while the child is of school age. At March 31, 1951, approximately 6,800 allowances were being paid.

RETIREMENT PENSIONS

A retirement pension is payable for life to an insured person who (a) is over pensionable age (65 for a man and 60 for a woman), (b) has retired from regular employment, and (c) has paid the prescribed number of contributions. Men aged 70 and over and women aged 65 and over are not required to satisfy condition (b).

The basic rate of pension is 32s. 6d. a week, plus 21s. 6d. for a dependent wife under 60, plus 10s. 6d. for the first or only child and 2s. 6d. for each other child.

Where the insured person postpones retirement beyond pensionable age, the weekly rate of pension is increased, when he or she finally retires or reaches the age of 70 (65 for women), in respect of contributions paid as an employed or self-employed person during the five years after reaching pensionable age. The increment to pension is 1s. for every 25 contributions paid before July 16, 1951, and 1s. 6d. for every 25 contributions paid after that date.

A man aged 65 to 70 (or a woman aged 60 to 65) who has qualified for pension will have it reduced by 1s. for every 1s. earned over 40s. in any week.

The Normal Contribution Conditions for persons who entered insurance before September 30, 1946, are (a) that 104 contributions have been paid, and (b) that the yearly average of contributions paid or credited is not less than 50.

Special Provisions as to Women.—Subject to certain conditions, a married woman on reaching 60 or a woman on marriage after that age receives by virtue of her husband's insurance a retirement pension of 21s. 6d. a week. A widow over the age of 60 when her husband dies will usually qualify for a retirement pension of 32s. 6d. a week from her husband's insurance instead of a widow's pension. A retirement pension payable to a woman by virtue of her husband's insurance is increased by 1s. for every 25 contributions paid by the husband as an employed or self-employed person while he is over 65 and under 70 and she is over 60, but if he should die before her, any 1s. increase he earns for her after July 16, 1951, will then be paid at the 1s. 6d. rate. Her pension is reduced by 1s. for every 15s. she earns over 40s. in any week while under 65.

Special provisions apply to persons who enter insurance late in life. For persons who entered before September 30, 1946, the qualifying insurance period is five years, and for persons who entered on or after that date, ten years.

Unemployment and sickness benefit is payable (at rates not exceeding the retirement pension) to men between 65 and 70 and women between 60 and 65 who have not retired from regular employment if they would have been entitled to a retirement pension had they been retired from regular employment.

At March 31, 1952, retirement pensions, or contributory old age pensions under the old Acts, were being paid to approximately 4,100,000 persons. At March 31, 1951, 67 per cent. of the male population over age 65 and 61 per cent. of the female population over age 60 were in receipt of retirement pensions or contributory old age pensions.

DEATH GRANT

A death grant is paid for expenses in connection with the death of an insured person or of his wife, child or widow or, if the insured person is a woman, of her husband, child or widower. The normal grant is for an adult £20, a child aged 6-17 £15, a child aged 3-5 £10, a child under 3 £6. For the deaths of people who on July 5, 1948, were over 55 (men) or over 50 (women) the grant is £10.

The normal contribution conditions for death grant are that (a) not less than 26 contributions of any class have been paid by or credited to the deceased or the person by virtue of whose insurance the grant is claimed since July 5, 1948, and (b) either not less than 45 contributions have been paid by or credited to him in the previous contribution year, or the yearly average of the contributions paid or credited since July 5, 1948 (or 16th birthday if later) is not less than 45. Not more than one person is entitled to a death grant in respect of the same death. No grant is payable for deaths of persons already over pension age on July 5, 1948, or of children born before July 5, 1948, if they die under the age of 10.

Up to December 31, 1949, about 60,000 grants were paid.

FINANCE

Under the Act of 1946 two funds are set up, viz. the National Insurance Fund, and the National Insurance (Reserve) Fund. The income from contributions, Exchequer grants and interest from both funds are paid into the National Insurance Fund, and the payments to be made out of the Fund include, in addition to the cost of benefits and administration, a contribution to the National Health Service. At the outset of the new scheme, the assets of the existing National Health, Contributory Pensions and Unemployment Insurance Funds, with a total value of about £786 millions, were carried to the Reserve Fund, and £100 millions were transferred from it to the National Insurance Fund, the remaining assets being maintained as a reserve for the National Insurance Fund.

Approximate receipts and payments of the National Insurance Fund for the year ended March 31, 1952, were as follows:—

Receipts	£'000

(a) The whole cost of administration of the National Insurance Scheme.

The increase of about £477 millions on the initial balance up to March 31, 1952, was mainly due, first, to a lower rate of unemployment and (to a lesser extent) sickness than was assumed, which not only affected the cost of benefit but also resulted in larger receipts from contributions; and, second, to the proportion of the population at the contributing ages in the employed class being larger than before the war. The cost of retirement pensions, which already accounts for two-thirds of the total expenditure on benefits and administration, is expected to be doubled in the next twenty-five years, the bulk of the increase falling on the Exchequer.

The balance in the Reserve Fund at March 31, 1952, was £783.0 million. During the year ended March 31, 1953, £300 million was transferred from the Insurance Fund to the Reserve Fund.

The estimated net effect during the year ended March 31, 1952, of the changes introduced by the National Insurance Act, 1951, and of the increase in contribution rates in October, 1951, was to reduce the income of the Insurance Fund by £29,200,000 and to increase the expenditure thereof by £26,100,000.

INDUSTRIAL INJURIES INSURANCE

The National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, substituted for the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945, a system of insurance against personal injury caused by accident arising out of and in the course of a person's employment and against prescribed diseases and injuries due to the nature of a person's employment. The scheme, which insures against personal injury caused and prescribed diseases and injuries developed on or after July 5, 1948, operates under the Act of 1946, as amended by the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Acts, 1948 and 1953, the National Insurance Act, 1951, and the Family Allowances and National Insurance Act, 1952, and Regulations made by the Minister under those Acts.

The Workmen's Compensation Acts, including the Workmen's Compensation (Temporary Increases) Act, 1943 (which is now made permanent) continue to apply, subject to certain amendments, to cases arising before the new scheme started.

The Workmen's Compensation (Supplementation) Scheme, 1951, which came into operation on July 11, 1951, provides for the payment out of the Industrial Injuries Fund of allowances supplementing workmen's compensation where the accident or disease happened before 1924.

The Pneumoconiosis and Byssinosis Benefit Scheme, 1952, which came into operation on March 10, 1952, provides for payment of benefits out of the Industrial Injuries Fund for those totally disabled by pneumoconiosis or byssinosis, and for dependants of those who died from one of those diseases, after December 31, 1949, if they are not covered by either the Workmen's Compensation Acts or the Industrial Injuries Acts.

INSURED PERSONS

The persons covered by the Industrial Injuries scheme correspond closely to the class of "employed persons" under the National Insurance Act, 1946, and numbered in 1950 about 20½ million.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions are payable by insured persons and their employers, unless exempted, and the Exchequer contributes an amount equal to one-fifth of the combined contributions of insured persons and employers.

The normal weekly rates of contributions payable by insured persons and employers respectively are 4d. and 5d. for men over 18, 3d. and 3d. for women over 18, 3d. and 3d. for boys under 18, and 2d. and 2d. for girls under 18. Normally contributions are paid by means of stamps on a single insurance card, the same stamp covering insurance under the National Insurance Act as well as Industrial Injuries Insurance.

There are no contribution conditions for the payment of benefits. Persons employed in insurable employment are covered from the time of starting work, but if employed while of school age pay no contributions.

BENEFITS

The main types of benefit are (i) injury benefit, (ii) disablement benefit, and (iii) death benefit.

Injury Benefit is payable for not more than the first 26 weeks of incapacity; no payment is made for the first three days unless there are a further nine days of incapacity within the injury benefit period. Benefit is payable to persons over 18 and to juveniles with dependant's allowances, at the weekly rate of 55s. (days being paid for at one-sixth of the weekly rate), plus 21s. 6d. for one adult dependant, plus 10s. 6d. for the first or only child and 2s. 6d. for each other child. Juveniles not entitled to a child or adult dependant's allowance receive benefit at half the adult rate if under 17 and at three-quarters the adult rate if 17 and under 18.

Disablement Benefit is payable if at or after the end of the injury benefit period the insured person suffers from loss of physical or mental faculty such that the resulting disablement is assessed at not less than one per cent. The amount of disablement benefit varies according to the degree of disablement (in the form of a percentage) assessed by a medical board or medical appeal tribunal by reference to the claimant's disabilities (incurred as a result of the loss of faculty) as compared with a normal person of the same age and sex. In cases of disablement of 1 per cent. and below 20 per cent. a gratuity is paid according to a prescribed scale, but not exceeding £185. Where the degree of disablement is 20 per cent. or more, the benefit is a weekly pension payable either for a limited period or for life according to the following scale:

Degree of disablement	Weekly Rate
100 per cent	55	0
90 " "	49	6
70 " "	38	6
50 " "	27	6
40 " "	23	0

These are basic rates applicable to adults and to juveniles entitled to an increase for a child or adult dependant; other juveniles receive one-half the adult rate if under 17, and three-quarters of the adult rate if between 17 and 18.

Basic rates of pension are not related to the pensioner's loss of earning power, and are payable whether he is in work or not. Upon prescribed conditions, however, pension is supplemented for unemployability and in cases of special hardship. There is provision also for increases of pension during approved hospital treatment or if the pensioner requires constant attendance. An increase of 21s. 6d. for an adult dependant and of 10s. 6d. for the first or only child and 2s. 6d. for each other child is also payable where the pensioner is either entitled to an unemployability supplement or receiving approved hospital treatment. Subject to certain exceptions, a pensioner who is not in receipt of unemployability supplement can draw other national insurance benefits in full in addition to disablement pension.

Death Benefit, in the form of a pension, allowance or gratuity, payable to dependants in fatal cases, depends in amount upon their relationship to the deceased and their circumstances at the time of death, and not upon the deceased's earnings.

Regulations impose certain obligations on claimants and beneficiaries and on employers, including, in the case of the former, that of submitting to medical examination and treatment and attending vocational training courses or industrial rehabilitation courses provided under the Disabled Persons (Employment) Act, 1944.

Industrial Diseases, etc.—The Act of 1946 extends insurance to prescribed industrial diseases and prescribed personal injuries not caused by accident, which are due to the nature of an insured person's employment and developed on or after July 5, 1948.

Determination of Questions and Claims.—Provision is made for the determination of certain questions (e.g., as to insurability and liability to contribute) by the Minister, and of "disablement questions" by a medical board (or a single doctor) or medical appeal tribunal. Claims for benefit and certain questions arising in connection with a claim for or award of benefit (e.g., whether the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment) are determined by an insurance officer appointed by the Minister, or a local appeal tribunal consisting of a chairman appointed by the Minister and equal numbers of members representing employer and insured persons, or, on appeal, by the Commissioner.

During 1951, new claims for injury benefit totalled 767,000. In the same period, claims for disablement benefit numbered about 84,000. The estimated number of disablement pensions in payment rose during 1950 from 33,300 to 55,000; of those in payment at the end of the year about 75 per cent. resulted from accident, 18 per cent. from pneumoconiosis, and 7 per cent. from other diseases. The number of awards of death benefit made in 1950 was 3,131.

FINANCE

Contributions from employers, insured persons and the Exchequer are paid into, and benefits and administrative expenses are paid out of, a fund established under the Act of 1946, viz. the Industrial Injuries Fund.

The approximate receipts and payments of the Fund for the year ended March 31, 1952, were as follows:—

Receipts	£'000
Balance, April 1, 1951.....	59,105

(a) The division has been estimated.

(b) Allowances paid under the Workmen's Compensation (Supplementation) Scheme, 1951, and under the Pneumoconiosis and Byssinosis Benefit Scheme, 1952.

(c) The whole cost of administration of the Industrial Injuries Scheme.

As the scheme in general applies to cases arising after July 4, 1948, expenditure on benefits will not reach maturity for many years.

NATIONAL ASSISTANCE

The National Assistance Act, 1948, was designed to complete the break-up of the Poor Law, and to substitute for certain existing services a comprehensive scheme of assistance and welfare services. Under this Act, from July 5, 1948, the following existing services provided by either the State or local authorities were replaced by a unified State service of financial assistance according to need:

(1) Unemployment Assistance and Supplementary Pensions, previously paid by the Assistance Board;

(2) Blind Domiciliary Assistance, Tuberculous

Treatment Allowances, and Outdoor Relief under the Poor Law, previously paid by local authorities. From the same date, the Assistance Board, renamed the National Assistance Board, was charged with the administration of the new service, the ultimate responsibility to Parliament resting with the Minister of National Insurance.

Application for assistance may be made by any person aged 16 or over who is in need, including a person who needs assistance in supplementation of a pension or insurance benefit. The National Assistance (Determination of Need) Regulations, 1948, 1950, 1951 and 1952, lay down how the need of an applicant shall be determined, and for this purpose how his requirements and resources shall be computed.

The scale rates for requirements other than rent, prescribed by the Amendment Regulations which came into operation on June 16, 1952, are as follows:

	s. d.	s. d.
Husband and wife.....	59 0	77 0 (b)
Single householder.....	35 0	53 0
Other persons:—
Aged 21 or over.....	31 0	45 0
Aged 18–21.....	26 0	41 0
Aged 16–18.....	21 6	32 6
Aged 11–16.....	16 0	16 0
Aged 5–11.....	13 6	13 6
Aged under 5.....	11 0	11 0

(a) For blind and certain tubercular persons.

(b) 89s. when both husband and wife are in the special classes.

The amount to be added for rent, if the applicant, or his wife or her husband, is a householder, or if the applicant is living alone, will be the net rent payable, or such part thereof as is reasonable having regard to the general level of rents in the locality. If the applicant is a member of a household but is not himself the householder, the amount to be added for rent will be a reasonable share of the rent payable by the householder, subject to a minimum addition of 2s. 6d. a week and a maximum of 10s. a week.

The rules for the computation of resources contain provisions for the treatment of capital and earnings and certain statutory disregards.

The amount to be paid by way of assistance is settled by the local officer of the Board; an applicant who is dissatisfied with the amount granted has a right of appeal to the local Appeal Tribunal, whose decision is final.

On July 5, 1948, national assistance had to be given to some 800,000 persons who had previously been receiving unemployment assistance (31,000), supplementary pensions (512,000), outdoor relief (200,000), blind domiciliary assistance (40,000), or tuberculous treatment allowances (20,000). At the end of 1951 the number of weekly assistance allowances in payment was 1,461,626, covering the needs of over two million persons. At that date, 64,237 recipients were registered at the Employment Exchange; most of the rest were old, sick or otherwise incapable of work. More than two-thirds of the allowances were paid in supplementation of insurance benefits. During 1951 the Board also made about 1,530,000 single payments and 152,686 exceptional needs grants. Up to December 18, 1951, 57,700 grants had also been made to meet the new National Health Service charges for dentures (11,000 grants), and spectacles (46,700 grants). The total number of persons receiving national assistance, or non-contributory old age pensions, or both, at the end of 1951 was 1,735,740, as compared with 1,666,001 at the end of 1950 and 1,376,058 at the end of 1948.

The total net expenditure of the Board during 1951 was about £96,855,000, as compared with £86,375,000 in 1950 and £60,760,000 in 1948. Included in the figure for 1951 were payments of national assistance £67,910,000, and payments of non-contributory old age pensions £23,760,000.

NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS

The maximum non-contributory old age pension payable under the Old Age Pensions Act, 1936, to persons aged 70 and over, and under the Blind Persons Act, 1938, to blind persons aged 40 and over, was increased in October, 1946, from 10s. a week to 26s. a week for single persons of either sex and married men, and 16s. a week for married women. Pension was payable at the maximum rate where the yearly means, calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Act, did not exceed £26 5s. od. Where the yearly means were between £26 5s. od. and £89 5s. od., pension was payable at rates varying from 24s. (16s. for married women) to 2s. Where the yearly means exceeded £89 5s. od., no pension was payable.

The National Assistance Act, 1948, which charged the National Assistance Board with the administration of non-contributory old age pensions, assimilated the pensions procedure to the national assistance procedure, and the Board have power to supplement old age pensions by national assistance in case of need.

The number of pensions in payment fell from 453,417 at the end of 1948 to 421,953 at the end of 1950, and declined further to 397,943 by the end of 1951. At the latter date, pensions were supplied by national assistance in 123,829 cases. The award of new non-contributory pensions will eventually be brought to an end by the provisions of section 74 of the National Insurance Act, 1946, under which sighted persons will not qualify unless they reach the age of 70 by October 1, 1961.

By March 31, 1951, more than four out of every five persons over the age of 70 were receiving either contributory or non-contributory pensions.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES

The Family Allowances Act, 1945, which was brought into operation from August 6, 1946, provided for a payment by the Minister of National Insurance out of moneys provided by Parliament of an allowance of 5s. a week for each child in a family other than the elder or eldest. From September 2, 1952, under the Family Allowances and National Insurance Act, 1952, the allowance was increased to 8s. The allowance is payable (through the Post Office) while a child is of school age and up to the 1st August next following his or her sixteenth birthday if undergoing full-time instruction in a school or if an apprentice. Claim forms for allowances can be obtained at any post office. Claimants have a right of appeal to an independent Referee.

At the end of 1950, about 4,756,000 allowances were in payment for nearly 3,050,000 families. The cost to the Exchequer since the inception of the scheme has been as follows:—

	Allowances	Administration
1946 (from Aug. 6)....	19,329,000	656,000
1947.....	55,450,000	1,790,000

1950.....	61,690,000	1,900,000

METHODS OF CLAIMING BENEFITS OR ASSISTANCE

The Ministry of National Insurance has distributed a booklet explaining the Schemes to every household in the country. A series of official leaflets on the Schemes and further information and advice can be obtained from local National Insurance Offices. The address of that office can be obtained at the Post Office.

Forms of application for national assistance or non-contributory old age pensions can be obtained at any Post Office and posted to the Local Office of the National Assistance Board. Able-bodied persons can also obtain forms at the Local Offices of the Ministry of Labour. In addition, anyone wanting assistance can apply in person at the Local Office of the Board.

WORLD COMMODITIES

The following table shows world production and main producers of some of the most important foods and raw materials, together with their domestic consumption in the United Kingdom and United States. Figures are given for 1951 and 1952 and for a pre-war year or average according to availability. In the case of rubber, natural production and consumption only are shown. World production of synthetic rubber amounted to 878,000 tons in 1952 compared with 908,000 tons in 1951; pre-war production was almost negligible. The United States produces over 90 per cent. of the world's synthetic rubber and is also the largest consumer, using 807,000 tons in 1952 out of its total rubber consumption of 1,261,000 tons.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

The object of chambers of commerce may be summarized briefly as being the promotion of trade and industry, with special emphasis on the interests in their respective localities. Chambers collect and disseminate trade and statistical information for the benefit of their subscribers. Membership of a Chamber of Commerce in the United Kingdom is voluntary.

Affiliated to the Association of British Chambers, there are chambers in more than 100 of the cities and large towns in the United Kingdom. Essential qualifications for membership of the Association are that a chamber shall be widely representative of local industry and commerce, and actively interested in national as distinct from solely local affairs; in more recent years it has also been stipulated that incorporation is a pre-requisite of membership.

The affiliated chambers, whose combined membership exceeds 62,000, embody all sections of the industrial and commercial community and the professions. The industrial members, numbering about two-thirds of the total, range from the largest of the great combines to the many small manufacturers who employ only a few people. Membership of the chambers includes most of the export merchants, a section of the business community by whose efforts about two-thirds of British overseas trade in consumer goods is carried on.

The Association of British Chambers of Commerce was established in 1860 to provide a means whereby, at the national level, the opinions of its member chambers could be co-ordinated. Since then, the A.B.C.C. has enjoyed recognition by successive governments as the mouthpiece of the chamber of commerce organization in the United Kingdom. In addition to approximately 100 chambers at home for which it speaks, 17 British chambers in foreign countries are affiliated to it.

The Association is represented on Government Committees and is frequently consulted by Government departments. It is in day to day touch with these departments and is in frequent communication with representatives of foreign Governments in London. The A.B.C.C. keeps the economic situation of the United Kingdom constantly under review and frequently makes representations to the Government on matters of policy. In its attention to overseas trade affairs, the Association benefits from the help given to it by those British chambers in foreign countries which are affiliated to it and from the close relations enjoyed with its counterpart organizations in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa the U.S.A. and elsewhere.

Apart from the numbers of chambers of commerce in the United Kingdom, the broad recognition which the chamber of commerce organization has achieved internationally is indicated by the fact that in Canada there are over 700 chambers, that there are more than 2,000 in the U.S.A. and that organizations bearing the title are to be found in every civilized land.

Chambers of commerce in the United Kingdom study all draft laws and regulations of concern to their members and the A.B.C.C. co-ordinates and presents their opinions to the Government. The broad interests covered by chambers ensure that the representations they initiate are unbiased by any sectional opinions.

The A.B.C.C. frequently combines with other leading national trade organizations in considering and making representations on major problems of mutual interest. Examples of this are found in the Dollar Exports Council (successor to the Dollar Exports Board) and the British Productivity Council, of which the Association is one of the sponsoring bodies.

The first chamber to be formed in the British Isles was founded in Jersey in 1768. Glasgow and Belfast followed in 1783. The Edinburgh Chamber was established in 1785 and the Manchester Chamber in 1794. The London Chamber, the largest in the world, was formed in 1881. Fifty-seven United Kingdom chambers were founded in the nineteenth century and three of these celebrated their centenary in 1951.

The address of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce is 14 Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S.W.1. (Whitehall: 2494.) President (1953-54), Harry Yates; Deputy President, Sir Percy Mills, Bt., K.B.E.; Secretary-General, A.R. Knowles, C.B.E.

The Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, of which the A.B.C.C. and many United Kingdom chambers are constituents, has about 160 federated chambers.

Internationally, chambers of commerce come together under the aegis of the International Chamber of Commerce. Fifty-four countries are within the membership of the International Chamber and 34 of these, including Britain, have National Committees.

in respect of Lighthouses Abroad and £13,577 miscellaneous expenditure, including the cost of collecting dues. The surplus of £919,541 was carried to the Net Revenue Account. In September 1940, United Kingdom Light Dues were increased from 150 per cent. of the statutory rates laid down in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1898, to 200 per cent., and in March, 1942, to 300 per cent. The dues were reduced to 200 per cent. in January, 1946, but general increases in costs and heavy expenditure in connection with the post-war programme of renewals and replacements necessitated increases to 300 per cent. in July, 1947, and to 400 per cent. in June, 1948.

BRITISH RAILWAYS IN 1952

Railways of Britain in Six Regions

The British Transport Commission set up by the terms of the Transport Act, 1947, organized the Railways of Britain in six Regions under the control of the Railway Executive.

(1) The London Midland Region, corresponding to the system of the London, Midland and Scottish Company in England and Wales.

(2) The Western Region, corresponding to the system of the Great Western Railway.

(3) The Southern Region, corresponding to the system of the Southern Railway.

(4) The Eastern Region, corresponding to the Southern Area of the London and North Eastern Railway.

(5) The North Eastern Region, corresponding to the North Eastern Area of the London and North Eastern Railway.

(6) The Scottish Region, corresponding to the Scottish systems of the London, Midland and Scottish and London and North Eastern Railways.

Certain revisions in the Regional boundaries have subsequently taken place, notably in the cases of the London Midland, Southern and Western Regions.

The Transport Act, 1953, which received the Royal Assent on May 6, provides inter alia for abolition of the Railway Executive; within twelve months of the passing of the Act, or such longer period as the Minister of Transport shall allow. The British Transport Commission is enjoined by the Act to submit to the Minister a scheme for the reorganization of British Railways involving decentralization of management. The Act stipulates that the scheme shall provide a railway management authority for the whole of Scotland.

The Minister of Transport stated in the House of Commons on July 29, 1953, that, with the exception of the London Transport Executive, all the Executives of the British Transport Commission would be abolished as from September 30, 1953.

The compensation terms to the stock holders of the various Railway Companies were as follows: Government Stock (which is to be freely negotiable) equivalent to the market price on the Stock Exchange of the various stocks involved, based on the daily mean quotations from Nov. 1 to Nov. 8, 1946, or the mid-monthly mean quotations for the pre-election period February to July, 1945. The value of Railway and Canal stocks not quoted during the six-day period was settled by arbitration. This means that £910,000,000 was paid for the four main-line railways and £130,000,000 for the London Passenger Transport Board in stock carrying interest at 3 per cent.

Gross Receipts, 1952:

Railway Passenger and Freight Services of British Railways

Passengers.....	£111,881,296
Freight, parcel and mails....	£286,541,413
Miscellaneous.....	£4,935,173
Total.....	£403,357,882

Road Collection and Delivery and Other Road Services of British Railways:

Freight, parcels and mails, etc.	£11,317,647
----------------------------------	-------------

Ships and Vessels: Passenger and Cargo Services of British Railways:

Passengers.....	£5,479,853
Freight, parcels and mails....	£6,141,779
Miscellaneous.....	£545,530
Total.....	£12,167,162

The gross receipts of British Railways (excluding Road Collection and Delivery and other Road Services) for 1952 at £403,357,882 compare with £372,772,962 for 1951. Working expenses were £363,756,185 (£337,769,821); so that net traffic receipts were £39,601,697 (£34,953,141) and the operating ratio 90 per cent (91 per cent).

British Railways Road Collection and Delivery and other Road Services showed a deficit for 1952 of £2,582,893, compared with a deficit for 1951 of £3,310,486. The net traffic receipts for 1952 of the Passenger and Cargo Shipping Services of British Railways were £1,885,393 (against £2,887,033 for 1951) and the operating ratio 85 per cent (77 per cent).

British Railways made the biggest contribution to British Transport Commission revenues for 1952; the total net traffic receipts of the Commission from all its carrying activities were £45,267,934 of which £37,018,804 represents the net traffic receipts of British Railways including Collection and Delivery and other Road Services.

The operating ratio of 90 per cent for the railway passenger and freight services, excluding Collection and Delivery Services, etc., is one of the lowest in the world for a State-owned system of such size with comparable statutory obligations.

INCREASE AND REVISION OF FARES, 1946-1953

As from July 1, 1946, the basic passenger fare was increased to 33½ per cent above pre-war figure, bringing the ordinary third class single fare up to 2.1d. a mile, and the monthly return to 1.4d. a mile. London Transport fares were increased from Feb. 9, 1947. On Oct. 1, 1947, ordinary main-line passenger fares were increased by 16½ per cent or 55 per cent above their pre-war level. The basic third-class fare then became 2.44d. and the monthly return about 1.63d. a mile.

On Oct. 1, 1950, fares in the London area were revised, resulting, in general, in an increase in the ordinary rail and road fares on the London Transport system. New day return fares below both the ordinary and the monthly return fares were introduced on the British Railways lines within the London area. On Jan. 1, 1952, British Railways monthly return fares were increased to 1.79d. per mile, and on March 2, 1952, British Railways ordinary fares within the London area were reduced to 1.75d. per mile, the ordinary fares outside London being reduced similarly on May 1, 1952. Monthly return fares were discontinued where the new ordinary returns were less.

On Aug. 31, 1952, certain abnormally low fares on British Railways were increased and the longer mileage by certain alternative routes charged for. Workmen's fares outside the London Area were replaced by the slightly more expensive early morning return fares. Season tickets outside the London area were increased by varying amounts, generally not exceeding 20 per cent. Within the London area, early morning fares and season ticket rates which had been sub-standard and increased by more than about 20 per cent on March 2, 1952, were reduced by varying amounts to conform with increases in standard charges.

On Aug. 16, 1953, day return fares on British Railways within the London area were altered so as to be exactly twice the London Transport single fare between the same places; the increase on any individual fare was in no case more than 2d. for the return journey. Early morning fares and season tickets on British Railways throughout the country were on the same day increased by varying small amounts; thus three-monthly season tickets were increased by not more than 5s. 6d. Ordinary fares were not altered.

1953 INDIAN RAILWAY CENTENARY

The first section of railway in India was opened for traffic between Bombay and Thana on April 16, 1853. The centenary celebrations in India included an Indian Railways Exhibition at New Delhi.

THE CINQUE PORTS

As their name implies the Cinque Ports were originally 5 in number, Hastings, Sandwich, Dover, New Romney and Hythe. They were in existence before the Norman Conquest and were the Anglo-Saxon successors to the Roman system of coast defence organized from the Wash to Spithead to resist Saxon onslaughts. William the Conqueror reconstituted them and granted peculiar jurisdiction, most of which was abolished in 1855. Only jurisdiction in Admiralty still survives.

At some time after the Conquest the "ancient towns" of Winchelsea and Rye were added with equal privileges. The other members of the Confederation, known as Limbs, are:—Lydd, Faversham, Folkestone, Deal, Tenterden, Margate and Ramsgate.

The Barons of the Cinque Ports have the ancient privilege of attending the Coronation and of carrying a Canopy over the Sovereign at that Ceremony. In latter times, the use of a Canopy at Coronations has been dispensed with, but the Barons still retain their privilege of attending the Ceremony and are allotted special places in Westminster Abbey.

ROADS

The total mileage of public roads in Great Britain is 185,523 miles, of which 158,654 are in England and Wales and 26,869 in Scotland. The cost of maintenance, improvement (widening, etc.) and new construction in 1914-15 was £18,800,000, and in 1950-51 approximately £76,800,000, excluding Trunk Roads. The roads of Great Britain have been classified by the Ministry of Transport, and out of the total mileage of 185,523, 8,248 have been included in Trunk Roads, 19,563 in Class I (totalling 27,811 miles), 17,691 in Class II, and 48,678 in Class III.

Highway Authorities.—Under the Local Government Act, 1929, county councils in England and Wales, became (from April 1, 1930), the highway authorities for all roads in rural districts and all classified roads (i.e. Class I, Class II and Class III Roads) outside the county and metropolitan boroughs. The county borough, borough and urban councils are the highway authorities for roads other than county roads which lie within their areas. In Scotland similar provisions have been made. As from April 1, 1937, in England and Wales (May 16, 1937, in Scotland) the Minister of Transport became the Highway Authority for 4,460 miles of road in Great Britain, and as from April 1, 1946, in England and Wales (May 10, 1946, in Scotland) for a further 3,729 miles. These roads are known as Trunk Roads, and the Minister is responsible for their maintenance and improvement.

The total gross receipts from the taxation of road vehicles between December 1, 1951, and November 30, 1952, amounted to £67,302,179. The number of mechanically-propelled vehicles for which licences were current at Feb. 28, 1953, was 4,446,751. The average receipt in respect of a whole year licence to Dec. 31, 1952, was £12 4s. 2d. for cars taxed on horse-power and at flat rate; £2 5s. 11d. for motor-bicycles; £27 os. for internal combustion and steam-driven vehicles; £15 17s. 8d. for electric goods vehicles; £52 7s. 9d. for motor hackneys, including taxi-cabs, which were officially known for many years as "mechanical clarences," a "clarence" being a four-wheeled closed carriage with seats for 4 inside and 2 on the box, named after the Duke of Clarence (afterwards King William IV).

The Road Fund.—The motor licence duties were paid into a Road Fund until the close of financial year 1936-37, when the liability of the Exchequer to transfer licence duties, apart from the Exchequer share, to the Road Fund ceased. Amounts are now paid into the Road Fund from moneys provided by Parliament. Grants are made from the Road Fund to highway authorities towards the cost of maintenance, improvement and construction of roads and bridges.

Grants from the Road Fund to Highway Authorities for the year ended March 31, 1952, amounted to £19,149,000 (an increase of £3,097,000 on previous year's figure). Payments for work carried out on trunk roads totalled £10,059,000 (as compared with £8,581,000 for previous financial year).

Under Local Government Acts, 1929, grants hitherto made out of the Road Fund towards the maintenance of classified roads in London and the county boroughs (England and Wales) and large burghs (Scotland), and of unclassified roads in counties, were discontinued as from April 1, 1930 (May 16—Scotland).

MOTORING OFFENCES

A total of £687,514 was paid in fines by motorists in 1952. The number of persons charged in respect of 564,417 offences was 482,072, and they included 150,721 who received written warnings for 170,025 offences. Of the 331,351 persons prosecuted 4,742 were arrested.

Convictions numbered 319,987 (against 292,253 for 1951) and a sentence of imprisonment without the option of a fine was passed on 914 motorists for 1,609 offences. The number of motorists fined was 309,827 for 361,104 offences. Licences endorsed numbered 124,226, of which 15,144 involved disqualification.

INLAND WATERWAYS

About 2,400 miles of inland waterways are in use in Great Britain. Since Jan. 1, 1948, the Docks and Inland Waterways Executive of the Transport Commission have taken over about 2,050 miles of the system and organized them into four divisions, exclusive of Scotland, each of which is based on a major river estuary. These divisions have headquarters at Leeds, Liverpool, Watford and Gloucester. The Commission was set up under the provisions of the Transport Act, 1947.

LONDON FIRE BRIGADE

Headquarters: Albert Embankment, S.E.1.

Before the formation of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade the churchwardens and overseers in every parish were required, under Acts passed in 1707 and 1774, to provide fire engines and ladders, and the leading insurance companies also organized private fire brigades, which were amalgamated in 1832 to form the London Fire Engine Establishment. On January 1, 1866, under the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865, the Metropolitan Board of Works took over these responsibilities and established "The Metropolitan Fire Brigade," which (Jan. 1, 1867) also took over the fire escapes provided by the Royal Society for the Protection of Life from Fire, a voluntary body which had been founded in 1836. Under the Local Government Act, 1888, the London County Council assumed control of the Fire Brigade, and in 1904 the title of the Brigade was altered to "London Fire Brigade."

The Brigade was augmented very considerably during the 1939-45 war, and an Auxiliary Fire Service established. The London Fire Brigade and London Auxiliary Fire Service in common with all fire brigades in England, Wales, and Scotland were taken over by the State and formed part of the National Fire Service, from August 18, 1941.

The London Fire Brigade returned to the London County Council, April 1, 1948.

The number of calls to which the Brigade responded during the year ending December 31, 1952, totalled 20,328, the fires numbered 7,760, chimney fires 5,544, false alarms 5,039 (including 3,407 malicious false alarms), and the calls to perform special services numbered 1,985.

Under the provisions of the Civil Defence Act, 1948, an Auxiliary Fire Service has been re-established.

AIR TRANSPORT

In 1952 the United Kingdom Airways Corporation, British European Airways and British Overseas Airways, together with companies operating scheduled services under Associate Agreements, flew respectively 23,537,000, 31,600,000 and 2,497,000 aircraft miles and carried 1,338,000, 267,000 and 95,000 passengers. Passenger miles flown were 356,760,000, 847,475,000 and 25,162,000 respectively. Total freight and mail ton-miles flown were 8,211,000, 39,370,000 and 873,000.

In the figures given above and in the following table, "tons" and "ton-miles" refer to short tons.*

ELECTRICITY AND GAS

Production of both electricity and gas in Great Britain was higher in 1952 than in any previous year. Electricity generation in 1952 was more than double that of 1938 and 4.1 per cent. higher than in 1951, while total gas available in 1952 had increased by 63.6 per cent. over 1938 and 1.2 per cent. over 1951.

FUEL USED

Electricity.—Consumption of coal in the production of electricity rose from 14,004,000 tons in 1938 to 34,488,000 tons in 1952. Coke, including coke breeze, consumed in 1938 was 180,000 tons; in 1952, 852,000 tons. Oil consumption rose from 24,000 tons in 1938 to 72,000 tons in 1952.

Gas.—Consumption of coal in the production of gas rose from 19,084,000 tons in 1938 to 27,508,000 tons in 1952. Gas oil consumed rose from 124,000 tons in 1938 to 436,000 tons in 1952.

AGRICULTURE

NUMBER OF AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS IN GREAT BRITAIN, 1952

Of the total number of agricultural holdings in Great Britain in 1952, 80 per cent. were of 100 acres or less in area. In England the average size was 68 acres, compared with Scotland's 59 acres, and an average of 46 acres in Wales. In 1950, 36 per cent. of the farms in England had a mains electricity supply; in Wales, 10 per cent. and an estimate of 16 per cent. was made for Scotland. According to the National Farm Survey of England and Wales which was carried out in the early years of the last war, 47 per cent. of the holdings with farm-houses have a piped water supply, while 45 per cent. rely on wells as the principal source of water.

U.K. CROP ACREAGE AND PRODUCTION

During the 1939-45 war, production of most arable and fodder crops was increased. Since the war there has been a change back towards the pre-war pattern and the total tillage area has fallen.

NUMBERS OF LIVESTOCK—UNITED KINGDOM

The national dairy herd is now 35 per cent larger than it was in 1939, having increased in the last year. Sheep numbers are still below pre-war but the number of pigs increased by 5 per cent.

between 1952 and 1953 and to 18 per cent, above 1939. Poultry numbers, which fell very sharply during the war, now exceed the 1939 total by 7 per cent.

PRICE FIXING

The Agriculture Act, 1947, provides farmers with an assured market at guaranteed prices for cereals, potatoes, sugar beet, fat cattle, sheep and lambs, pigs, eggs and milk. These products represent nearly 80 per cent. of the total of the agricultural output of the United Kingdom. Prices are reviewed in February of each year by Government Departments in consultation with the Farmers' Unions. The prices fixed at these reviews operate in the following April for livestock and livestock products, and for crops they apply to the produce of the harvest of the next year. The Act also provides for fixing minimum prices for four years ahead for livestock and livestock products. Special price reviews may be held at any time if justified by a substantial rise in production costs.

As a result of the 1953 Annual Review, fixed prices and subsidies have been increased by approximately £15½ million; against this, costs have risen by about £26½ million for all commodities and £17 million for those subject to fixed prices.

U.K. PRODUCTION OBJECTIVES

In March, 1953, the Government confirmed the production objectives for agriculture announced the previous year. Net output in 1951-52 showed a rise of 49 per cent. over the pre-war level compared with 43 per cent. the year before. Provisional figures for 1952-53 show hopes of a slight rise, 51 per cent. above pre-war level, but the effect on production caused by flooding in the Eastern counties cannot be fully assessed. The target is to increase output to a level of 60 per cent. above pre-war by 1956.

The Government proposed to increase money available under marginal production schemes by £1,250,000, to increase the lime subsidy by £1 million and to continue in Scotland the additional subsidy payable on hill cows. It is hoped that these measures will help the smaller farmers to overcome any problems resulting from the de-control of feedingstuffs. The subsidy on hill cows which the Government also hoped to introduce in the remainder of the United Kingdom should improve the production of meat.

THE CROPS OF 1953

The Times (September 7, 1953) published the following table showing the condition of the principal crops in Great Britain on September 1, 1953, compared with the previous five years, and with the 10-year averages. 100 is taken to represent healthy condition, full growth and freedom from injury.

In spite of harvesting troubles the yield forecasts for 1953 were well above the 10-year averages. In particular it was an exceptionally good year for sugar beet.

Cases of Murder

England and Wales

In 1951 there were 123 cases of murder of persons aged one year or over. In 7 cases the charge was reduced to one of manslaughter. In 41 cases, involving 46 victims, the murderer or suspect committed suicide. In cases involving 65 victims, 63 persons were arrested. In 5 cases, involving 5 victims, no arrest was made. Of the 63 persons arrested, 7 were acquitted, 19 were found unfit to plead, and 9 were found guilty but insane. Of the 27 convicted of murder 19 were executed, 5 death sentences were commuted to penal servitude; 2 were certified insane and removed to Broadmoor; and one conviction was quashed by the Court of Criminal Appeal.

In 1951 there were also 9 cases of murder of infants under one year.

Scotland

Thirteen cases of murder were made known to the police in 1952. 5 persons were proceeded against and of these 2 were found insane and unfit for trial. Three persons were convicted of murder, sentenced to death and executed.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS (T.U.C.)

Transport House, Smith Square, S.W.1.

Chairman (1953-54), J. Tanner.General Secretary, Sir Vincent Tewson, C.B.E., M.C.Assistant General Secretary, George Woodcock, C.B.E.

The Trades Union Congress, founded in 1866, is a voluntary association of Trade Unions, the primary purpose of which is to enable the representatives of unions to meet annually to consider matters of common concern to their members. The Congress has met annually since its foundation (with the exception of 1914, when the First World War interrupted its sequence), and in recent years has met normally on the first Monday in September, its sessions extending through the succeeding four days. Congress is constituted by delegates to the affiliated unions on the basis of one delegate for every 5,000 members, or fraction thereof, on whose behalf affiliation fees are paid. Affiliated unions (in 1952-53) totalled 183 with an aggregate membership of 8,088,450.

The main business of the annual Congress is to consider the report of its General Council dealing with the activities of the Congress year, along with resolutions from affiliated societies on questions of policy and organization. Each union is entitled to put two resolutions on the Agenda, but many unions do not exercise their full rights in this respect. Although 183 trade union organizations are affiliated to Congress, some of these, especially in cotton, are themselves federal bodies including in total 150 more unions. Only two British unions with large membership are not affiliated to the T.U.C. Nearly 70 per cent of the 8,088,450 members in the T.U.C. early in 1953 were accounted for by the 13 largest unions, all of which have 100,000 or more members.

One of the important responsibilities of the Annual Congress is to elect a General Council to keep watch on all industrial movements, legislation affecting labour and all matters touching the interest of the Trade Union Movement, with authority to promote common action on general questions, and to assist Trade Unions in the work of organization. The General Council is elected by Congress and is composed of 35 members (33 representing 18 trade groups and two representing women workers). Following is a list of these trade groups with the aggregate membership of unions in each group (the woman membership included in the total being shown separately), and with the number of representatives each group is entitled to have on the General Council:—

The General Council exercises considerable powers vested in it by consent of the Unions in Congress. Among these powers is the responsibility of adjusting disputes and differences between affiliated organizations; such matters being dealt with by a Disputes Committee of the General Council which investigates matters referred to it and issues its findings thereon, which are invariably accepted by the parties to the dispute. The General Council has power also, if there appears to be justification, to institute an investigation into the conduct of any affiliated organization on the ground that its activities are detrimental to the interests of the Trade Union Movement or contrary to the declared principles and policy of the Congress; but membership of the Congress is voluntary and Unions retain full control of their own affairs, and a penalty of suspension from membership of the Congress or exclusion from membership is the only measure that can be taken to enforce Congress decisions. Through the General Council the Trade Union Movement maintains organic relations with the Government and Government Departments, and with a large number of outside bodies. The principal instrument for Government relations is the National Joint Advisory Council which functions on the Cabinet level; in this body the British Employers' Confederation and the Boards of nationalized industries are represented along with the T.U.C. for purposes of consultation and advice on matters of governmental policy and administration affecting industry. The Joint Consultative Committee to the Minister of Labour functions as a sub-committee of this Council. The same bodies, together with the chairmen of the eleven Regional Boards for Industry and representatives of the Federation of British Industries, serve on the National Production Advisory Council on Industry which meets under the chairmanship of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is accompanied by Ministers of Departments concerned with aspects of production, to advise the government on production questions. Most other Government Departments have consultative and advisory committees for similar purposes. The General Council nominates members to serve on numerous other bodies, e.g. the National Savings Committee, Dollar Exports Council, National Insurance Advisory Committee, British Institute of Management, Advisory Council of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Consumers' Councils and numerous educational and miscellaneous bodies. With the Labour Party the T.U.C. maintains contact through the National Council of Labour which represent the General Council, the Labour Party's National Executive, the Administrative Council of the Parliamentary Labour Party and the Co-operative Union. The National Council usually meets once a month before the regular monthly meetings of the General Council and the Party Executive, which are held normally on the fourth Wednesday of each month. Close association exists between the T.U.C. General Council and the local Trades Councils and Federations, through a Joint Consultative Committee, and with such bodies as the National Federation of Professional Workers, the British Medical Association and the Royal Institute of International Affairs. There are also a number of national advisory bodies for various groups of industries, including the engineering and shipbuilding trades, the non-manual workers, local Government employees and the nursing profession. In the international sphere the T.U.C. was instrumental in 1949 in taking the initiative to set up the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions to represent the free trade unions of the world, following their withdrawal from the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

SCOTTISH TRADES UNION CONGRESS

12, Woodlands Terrace, Glasgow, C.3.

[Douglas 4216.]

Chairman (1953-54), J. G. Bothwell.

General Secretary, George Middleton, C.B.E.

The Scottish Trades Union Congress was established in 1897 and it is pointed out that it is in no way a competitor of the British Congress, nor does it "justify its existence on strictly nationalist lines." Its objects are parallel to those of the T.U.C., with which it works in the closest co-operation.

In 1953 the Congress had 87 affiliated Unions and 47 Trades Councils with a membership of 750,780. The Annual Conference is held in April and a General Council of twelve members is elected.

FEDERATION OF BRITISH INDUSTRIES F.B.I.

21, Tothill Street, S.W.1.

[Whitehall 6711.]

The Federation of British Industries was founded in 1916, and in 1923 was granted a Royal Charter. In the Charter, the F.B.I. is defined as an association of manufacturers founded for the "encouragement, promotion and protection of British Industries of all kinds."

The Federation has two main functions—to promote policies serving British Industry as a whole, providing the means by which such policies can be formulated, and to supply its individual members with information and practical assistance. With the exception of labour relations, the whole range of industrial activity is covered. F.B.I. has no connection with any political party.

Its membership consists of individual firms engaged in productive industry (excluding the nationalized industries) and trade associations. There are over 6,600 firms in membership and the Federation's 285 affiliated trade associations collectively represent thousands more.

In addition to discussion and representations at the national level (for example, on the economic situation, overseas trade policy, productivity, taxation, transport, town and country planning, industrial research and design, and fuel and power), the Federation performs many diverse services as adviser on the day to day problems of member firms. An expert staff deals each year with more than 30,000 enquiries from member firms.

The Federation is represented on many Government committees, the most important of which is the National Production Advisory Council on Industry, of which the Chancellor of the Exchequer is chairman.

It also plays a large part in the work of the British Productivity Council (successor to the Anglo-American Council on Productivity) and of the Dollar Exports Council, of both of which it is one of the constituent organizations.

Overseas Activities.—The F.B.I. has its own representatives in over 100 countries, and among the many overseas services rendered to members are: advice on the appointment of agents; interpretation of export documents and exchange control regulations; advice on foreign and local competition in particular markets; introductions for representatives visiting overseas markets; regular reports on trading conditions.

Regional Organization.—In this country, the F.B.I. has a regional organization with offices in the following centres of industry: Birmingham, Bradford, Bristol, Cambridge, Glasgow, Leeds, Leicester, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Newcastle, Nottingham, Reading and Sheffield. Ten Regional Councils have been established in the main industrial areas.

President (1953-54), Sir Harry Pilkington.

Director-General, Sir Norman Kipping.

General Secretary, D. L. Walker, C.B.E.

Overseas Director, Peter Tennant, O.B.E.

Economic Director, R. Glenday, M.C.

Technical Director, J. E. G. Harris, D.Sc.

[City 6031-5; 3474-6]

The National Union of Manufacturers (Incorporated) was formed in 1915 as the Association of British Manufacturers and incorporated under its present title in 1917. Its membership, now numbering 5,400 individual firms with 75 affiliated Trade Associations, is restricted to British manufacturers. It is regarded both by Government and by industry as the national representative of medium-sized and smaller firms in particular. It has no party-political affiliations.

The National Union is permanently represented on the British Productivity Council, the National Production Advisory Council for Industry, the Dollar Exports Advisory Council, the Census of Production Advisory Committee, the Consultative Committee for Industry, and on the various consumers' councils for coal, gas, electricity, oil and transport.

In addition to its numerous activities conducted at Government and ministerial level, the National Union gives advice and assistance on problems arising from the Town and Country Planning Act, raw materials, taxation, purchase tax, contract terms and conditions, supplies of materials, shipping freights, tariffs, patents, trade marks and exports. Its individual service on exports has become so important that a special department, the Export Assistance Department, has been created to handle the work.

The conduct of policy rests in the hands of the Executive Council which consists of representatives of branches, area committees and affiliated trade associations, together with a proportion of directly elected members.

Regional Organization.—The National Union has nine Branch Offices in Birmingham, Glasgow, Cardiff, Sheffield, Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Nottingham and Newcastle-on-Tyne. In addition, Area Committees have been established in East Surrey, Kingston-on-Thames, West and North Middlesex, West Essex, Wigan, Preston, Warrington, St. Helens, Southport, Wolverhampton, Dudley, Coventry, Stoke-on-Trent, Walsall, Leicester, Swansea, Sunderland, Sussex, Keighley and Stockport.

President, The Lord Rochdale, O.B.E., T.D.

Director, C. F. V. Williams, C.I.E.

Deputy Director and Secretary, Col. V. I. Robins, O.B.E.

Chief Executive Officer, London, R. A. L. Lawder.

Export Assistance Dept., B. F. Boothby; R. C. R. Oliver, T.D.

Press Officer and Journal Editor, Douglas Warner.

BRITISH EMPLOYERS' CONFEDERATION

21, Tothill Street, S.W.1.
[Whitchall: 9827]

The British Employers' Confederation was established in 1919. Its membership consists of the National Employers' Organizations in the various industries which deal with labour questions in those industries and which cover approximately 70 per cent. of the total industrial population employed by private enterprise industry in this country.

The Confederation provides the opportunity for the Employers' Organizations to consult together on the wide range of general labour questions in which they have a common interest, and represents the point of view of employers on such questions before Royal Commissions and Departmental Committees and to Government departments. It also keeps Employers' Organizations informed regarding the general industrial position, both nationally and internationally, and regarding the operation of existing legislation and legislative proposals affecting the interests of employers.

The Employers' representatives on the National Joint Advisory Council (N.J.A.C.) to the Minister of Labour are nominated through the Confederation. The N.J.A.C., which was established at the outbreak of war in 1939 to "advise the Government on all matters in which employers and workers have a common interest," consists of representatives of the Confederation, the Trades Union Congress and the nationalized industries. The Confederation is also represented on the National Production Advisory Council on Industry, on the Economic Planning Board and on many other Government committees.

Representatives of the Confederation together with representatives of the Federation of British Industries, the Trades Union Congress, the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, the National Union of Manufacturers and the Nationalized Industries, constitute the British Productivity Council which was set up in 1952 to take the place of the U.K. Section of the Anglo-American Council on Productivity.

The Confederation is officially recognized by the Government for the purpose of the representation of British employers at the conferences of the International Labour Organization. It is also a member of the International Organization of Employers (I.O.E.) which is recognized by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations as an international organization with Grade "A" consultative status. That body secures the co-operation of the central employers' Organizations in the various countries in dealing with general labour questions arising at meetings of the International Labour Organization and the Economic and Social Council.

Hon. President, The Viscount Weir, G.C.B.

President, A. G. Stewart.

Vice Presidents, Charles Connell; Sir Colin Anderson.

Secretaries, F. J. C. Honey; K. J. Burton.

THE KINGDOM OF ENGLAND

Position and Extent.—The Kingdom of England occupies the southern portion of the island of Great Britain and lies between $55^{\circ} 46'$ and $49^{\circ} 57' 30''$ N. latitude (from the mouth of the Twyd to the Lizard), and between $1^{\circ} 46'$ E. and $5^{\circ} 43'$ W. (from Lowestoft to Land's End). England is bounded on the north by the summit of the Cheviot Hills, which form a natural boundary with the Kingdom of Scotland; on the south by the English Channel; on the east by the Straits of Dover (Pas de Calais) and the North Sea; and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, Wales and the Irish Sea. Area, 50,337 square miles. Population (1931) 37,354,977; 1951 Census preliminary figures, 41,147,938.

Relief.—There is a natural orographic division into the hilly districts of the north, west and south-west, and the undulating downs and low-lying plains of the east and south-east. In the extreme north the Cheviot Hills run from east to west, culminating in the Cheviot, 2,675 feet above mean sea level. Divided from the Cheviots by the Tyne Gap is the Pennine Chain, running N. by W. to S. by E., with its highest point in Cross Fell, 2,930 feet above mean sea level. West of the Pennines are the Cumbrian Mountains, which contain in Scafell Pike (3,210 feet) the highest land in England, and east of the Pennines are the Yorkshire Moors, their highest point being Urre Moor (1,489 feet). South of the Pennines are the Peak of Derbyshire (2,088 feet) and Dartmoor (High Willhays, 2,039 feet). In the western county of Shropshire are the isolated Wrekin (1,335 feet), Longmynd (1,696 feet), and Brown Clee (1,792 feet); in Herefordshire the Black Mountain (2,325 feet); in Worcestershire the Malvern Hills (1,395 feet); in Monmouthshire (now usually grouped with Wales) the Sugar Loaf (1,955 feet) and Coity (1,905 feet), and the Cotswold Hills of Gloucestershire contain Cleeve Cloud (1,134 feet).

Hydrography.—The Thames is the longest and most important river of England, with a total length of 210 miles from its source in the Cotswold Hills to its outflow into the North Sea, and is navigable by ocean-going steamers to London Bridge. The Thames is tidal to Teddington (69 miles from its mouth) and forms county boundaries almost throughout its course; on its banks are situated London, the capital of the British Empire; Windsor Castle, the home of the Sovereign; Eton College, the first of the public schools, and Oxford, the oldest university in the kingdom. The Severn is the longest river in Great Britain, rising in the north-eastern slopes of Plinlimmon (Wales) and entering England in Shropshire, with a total length of 220 miles from its source to its outflow into the Bristol Channel, where it receives on the left the Bristol Avon, and on the right the Wye, its other tributaries being the Vyrnwy, Tern, Stour, Teme and Upper (or Warwickshire) Avon. The Severn is tidal below Gloucester, and a high bore or tidal wave sometimes reverses the flow as high as Tewkesbury (13½ miles above Gloucester). The scenery of the greater part of the river is very picturesque and beautiful, and the Severn is a noted salmon river, some of its tributaries being famous for trout. Navigation is assisted by the Gloucester and Berkeley Ship Canal (16½ miles), which admits vessels of 350 tons to Gloucester. The Severn Tunnel, 24 miles below the Sharpness Bridge, begun in 1873 and completed in 1886 (at a cost of £2,000,000) after many difficulties from flooding, is 4 miles 6¼ yards in length (of which 2½ miles are under the river). The construction of a road bridge over the Severn estuary.

between Haysgate, Mon., and Almondsbury, Glos., (which will be the largest in Europe and the third largest in the world, with a centre span of 3,300 ft.) was authorized on Aug. 1, 1947, the estimated cost being £9,000,000. Of the remaining English rivers those flowing into the North Sea are the Tyne, Wear, Tees, Ouse and Trent from the Pennine Range, the Great Ouse (260 miles) from the Central Plain, and the Orwell and Stour from the hills of East Anglia. Flowing into the English Channel are the Sussex Ouse from the Weald, the Itchen from the Wiltshire and Hampshire Hills, and the Axe, Teign, Dart, Tamar and Exe from the Devonian Hills; and flowing into the Irish Sea are the Mersey, Ribble and Eden from the western slopes of the Pennines and the Derwent from the Cumbrian Mountains. The English Lakes are noteworthy rather for their picturesque scenery and poetic associations than for their size. These lie mainly in Cumberland, but partly in Westmorland and Lancashire, the largest being Windermere (10 miles long), Ullswater and Derwentwater.

Islands.—The Isle of Wight is separated from Hampshire by the Solent, total area 147 sq. miles; population (1931), 88,400; 1951 (Census preliminary) 95,594. The climate is mild and healthy, and many watering places have grown up during the last century. Capital, Newport, at the head of the estuary of the Medina, Cowes (at the mouth) being the chief port; other centres are Ryde, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor, Freshwater, Yarmouth, Totland Bay, Seaview and Bembridge. The Scilly Islands, 25 miles from Land's End, consist of about 40 islands, with a total area of about 4,000 acres, only St. Mary's Treco, St. Martin's, St. Agnes and Bryher being inhabited, population (1931), 1,732. The capital is Hugh Town, in St. Mary's. The climate is unusually mild, and vegetation luxuriant, semi-tropical plants flourishing in the open. Lundy (=Island), 11 miles N.W. of Harland Point, Devon, is about 2 miles long and about ½ mile broad (average), with a total area of about 1,050 acres (mainly picturesque), and a population of about 20; it contains the seat of the proprietor of the island and 3 lighthouses (one disused).

Climate.—The mean air temperature reduced to sea-level varies from 52° F. at Penzance and the Scilly Islands to 47.5° F. near Berwick-on-Tweed. In January the south and west are warmer than the east, the mean temperature reduced to sea-level being less than 40° F. from London to the Cheviots and over the eastern half of the country. In July the warmest districts are more definitely in the south and inland, the range being from 63° F. around London to less than 59° F. in the extreme north. The decrease of mean temperature with height is about 1° F. per 300 ft. The extreme readings are -11° F. at Buxton on February 22, 1895, and 100° F. at Greenwich on August 9, 1911. The average annual rainfall decreases from west to east, owing to the preponderance of south-west winds, and also increases with altitude. Of the total area 55 per cent. has an average less than 30 in., 20 per cent. between 30 in. and 40 in. and 16 per cent. more than 40 in. In the neighbourhood of the Thames Estuary the average is only 20 in.; at Seathwaite, Cumberland, 22 in.; and at the wettest spot in the Lake District 28½ in. The extreme range of recorded annual values is from 9.29 in. at Margate in 1921 to 250 in. at The Sty, above Seathwaite, in 1928. The largest amount recorded in a day was 9.56 in. at Bruton, Somerset, for June 28, 1917. The mean annual number of hours of bright sunshine varies from 2,750 hours along the south-east coast to less than 1,300 hours in the neighbourhood of the Pennine Range.

EARLY INHABITANTS

Prehistoric Man.—Palaeolithic and Neolithic remains are abundantly found throughout England. The Neolithic period is held to have merged into the Bronze Age about 2000 to 1500 B.C., and a date between these years has been given to Stonehenge (10 miles N. of Salisbury, Wiltshire) which consists of two circles of menhirs (the largest monolith being 22½ feet in height). The village of Avebury and its surroundings were scheduled in 1937, and in 1943 about 1,000 acres at Avebury were purchased by the National Trust, thus preserving the Circle of megalithic monuments, the Avenue, Silbury Hill, etc., relics of Stone Age culture of 1900–1800 B.C., which make this one of the most important archaeological sites in Europe. The Devil's Arrows, near Boroughbridge, Yorkshire, are regarded as the finest remaining megalithic monoliths in northern Europe; the tallest arrow is 30 ft. 6 in. high and its greatest circumference is 16 ft. In the latter part of the Bronze Age the Goidels, a people of Celtic race, and in the Iron Age other Celtic races of Brythons and Belgae, invaded the country and brought with them Celtic civilization and dialects, place names in England bearing witness to the spread of the invasion over the whole kingdom.

The Roman Conquest.—Julius Caesar raided Britain in 55 B.C. and 54 B.C. The Emperor Claudius, nearly 100 years later (A.D. 42), dispatched Aulus Plautius, with a well-equipped force of 40,000 all arms, and himself followed with reinforcements in the same year. The British leader from A.D. 48–51 was Caratacus (Caractacus), who was finally captured and sent to Rome. By A.D. 70 the conquest of South Britain was completed, a great revolt under Boadicea (popularly "Boadicea"), Queen of the Iceni, being crushed in A.D. 61. In A.D. 122, the Emperor Hadrian visited Britain and built a continuous rampart, since known as Hadrian's Wall, from Wallsend to Bowness (Tyne to Solway). The work was entrusted by the Emperor Hadrian to Aulus Platorius Nepos, legate of Britain from 122 to 126, the work being now regarded as "the greatest and most impressive relic of the Roman frontier system in Europe." The Romans administered Britain as a Province under a Governor, with a well-defined system of local government, each Roman municipality ruling itself and the surrounding territory. Colchester, Lincoln, York, Gloucester and St. Albans stand on the sites of five Roman municipalities, while London was the centre of the road system and the seat of the financial officials of the Province of Britain. Well-preserved Roman towns have been uncovered at (or near) Silchester (Calleva Atrebatum), 10 miles south of Reading, Wroxeter (Viroconium), near Shrewsbury, and St. Albans (Verulamium) in Hertfordshire. Four main groups of roads radiated from London, and a fifth (the Fosse) ran obliquely from Ermine Street (at Lincoln), through Leicester, Cirencester and Bath to Exeter. Of the four groups radiating from London one ran S.E. to Canterbury and the coast of Kent, a second to Silchester and thence to parts of Western Britain and South Wales, a third (now known as Watling Street) ran through Verulamium to Chester, with various branches, and the fourth reached Colchester, Lincoln, York and the eastern counties. Christianity reached the Roman province of Britain from Gaul in the 3rd century (or possibly earlier), Alban, "the protomartyr of Britain," being put to death as a Christian during the persecution of Diocletian (June 22, 303), at his native town Verulamium. The Bishops of Londinium, Eboracum (York), and Lindum (Lincoln) attended the Council of Arles in 314. The Roman garrison of Britain was much harassed in the 4th century by Saxon pirates, who invaded the eastern counties. A system of coast defence was organized from the Wash to Southampton Water, with forts at Brancaster, Burgh Castle (Yarmouth), Walton (Felixstowe), Bradwell, Reculver, Richborough, Dover, Stutfall, Pevensey and Porchester (Portsmouth). About A.D. 350 incursions in the north of Irish (Scotti) and Picts became most formidable, and towards the end of the 4th century many troops were removed from Britain for service in other parts of the Roman Empire. Early in the 5th century Gaul was taken from the Romans by Teutonic invaders and Britain was cut off from Rome. The last Roman garrison was withdrawn from Britain in A.D. 442 and the S.E. portion was conquered by the Saxons. The Latin-speaking Celts of England were replaced by their heathen and Teutonic conquerors, to the submergence of the Christian religion and the loss of Latin speech. According to legend, the British King Vortigern called in the Saxons to defend him against the Picts, the Saxon chieftains being Hengist and Horsa, who landed at Ebbsfleet, Kent, and established themselves in the Isle of Thanet. Bede, a Northumbrian monk, author of the Ecclesiastical History at the opening of the 8th century, described these settlers as Jutes, and there are traces of differences in Kentish customs from those of other Anglo-Saxon kingdoms.

Anglo-Saxons and Normans.—What happened in Britain during the 150 years which elapsed between the final break with Rome and the coming of St. Augustine is shrouded in the deepest mystery. The Jutes, the Saxons and the Angles (whose gods Twi, Woden, Thunor and Frigg are commemorated in "Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday") were converted to Christianity by a mission under Augustine (dispatched by Pope Gregory in 597), which established Archbishoprics at Canterbury and York, and England appears to have been again converted by the end of the 7th century. In the 8th century Offa, King of Mercia, is stated to have built a wall and rampart, afterwards known as Offa's Dike, from the mouth of the Dee to that of the Wye, as a protection against the Welsh. The greatest of the English kingdoms was Wessex, with its capital at Winchester, and the greatest of the Wessex kings was Alfred the Great (871–901), who resisted the incursions of the Northmen (Danes) and fixed a limit to their advance by the Treaty of Wedmore (878). In the 10th century the Kings of Wessex recovered the whole of England from the Danes, but subsequent rulers were unable to resist the invaders, and England paid tribute (Danegelt) for many years, and was ruled by Danish Kings from 1016 to 1042, when Edward the Confessor was recalled from exile. In 1066 Harold (brother-in-law of Edward and son of Earl Godwin of Wessex) was chosen King of England, but after defeating (at Stamford Bridge, Yorkshire, Sept. 25) an invading army under Harald Hadrada, King of Norway (aided by the outlawed Earl Tostig, of Northumbria, younger son of Earl Godwin), he was himself defeated at the Battle of Hastings on Oct. 14, 1066, and the Norman Conquest secured the throne of England for Duke William of Normandy.

(a) Administrative Counties, excluding County Boroughs, named in the First Schedule of the Local Government Act, 1933; (b) Geographical Counties, including County Boroughs; in each case as estimated by the Registrar-General on June 30, 1952; (c) Includes value of property occupied by the Crown for public purposes upon which contributions in lieu of rates are paid.

The Title of Lord Lieutenant

Lords Lieutenant of Counties.—The actual words used in the Letters Patent relative to these appointments are "Her Majesty's Lieutenant of and in the County of . . ." and this is the official title whether the individual appointed be a Peer or a Commoner. In documents of the highest formality the proper term is therefore "Her Majesty's Lieutenant." In less formal and informal documents and colloquially, the style "Lord Lieutenant" has been applied to H. M. Lieutenants, Peers and Commoners alike, for a great many years.

THE GOVERNMENT OF LONDON

LONDON, the capital of England and of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and the greatest city in the world, is situated on both banks of the River Thames, 50 miles from the North Sea.

The City of London (see pp. 644-7) represents London within its ancient boundaries.

The City of Westminster, which is bounded by the City of London on the east, by Chelsea and Kensington on the west, by Paddington, St. Marylebone and Holborn on the north, and by the Thames and Chelsea on the south, was formed into a borough by the London Government Act of 1899, and was created a city by Royal Charter of Oct. 29, 1900, the Council consisting of a Mayor, 20 Aldermen and 60 Councillors. It is notable, however, that since 1540 when a Bishopric of Westminster was established (abolished 1550) the Royal Writ of Summons to Parliament has always referred to "Our City of Westminster." Extending from the eastern end of the Strand to Kensington Gardens, and from Oxford Street to the Thames, it includes within its boundaries a large number of the finest buildings in London. The Abbey and the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the Houses of Parliament and the Law Courts, Buckingham Palace and St. James's, and the principal Government offices, Clubs and Theatres are situated in Westminster, which also includes the fashionable district of Mayfair and Belgravia.

Metropolitan Boroughs.—Under the London Government Act of 1899, the administrative functions of the various vestries in the Metropolitan districts surrounding the City of London were transferred to 28 Metropolitan Boroughs, of which one became afterwards the City of Westminster. The area covered by these boroughs extends northwards to include Stoke Newington, southwards to Wandsworth and Lewisham, eastwards to Woolwich, and westwards to Hammer-smith.

London County Council.—For County purposes the affairs of London are administered by the London County Council (see pp. 648-52), which was created by the Local Government Act of 1888.

Miscellaneous Authorities.—For Police purposes the administration is invested in the Corporation of London as to the City Police and in the Home Office as to the Metropolitan Police. The water authority is the Metropolitan Water Board; while the River Thames is administered as to its tidal portion by the Port of London Authority and above Teddington by the Thames Conservancy; the Port Health Committee of the Corporation is the Health Authority for the River, the lighthouse and pilotage authority being Trinity House. The bridges are maintained in the City of London by the Bridge House Estates Committee of the Corporation and in the remaining area by the London County Council. London Transport controls passenger transport in the metropolitan area (omnibuses and metropolitan above- and underground railways).

THE CORPORATION OF LONDON

THE CITY OF LONDON represents London within its ancient boundaries and is governed by the Corporation of London, which consists of the "Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens" and acts through the Common Council, which comprises the Lord Mayor, 25 other Aldermen and Common Councilmen. The Corporation, by an Act of Common Council passed on Nov. 27, 1952, decided to reduce the number of Common Councilmen by 25 per cent. (i.e. from 206 to 159) as at St. Thomas's Day, 1959, casual vacancies occurring by death or resignation between January 1, 1953, and St. Thomas's Day, 1959, not being filled so long as the representation of any Ward does not fall below the number specified in the Act. The City of London is the financial and business centre of London and includes the head offices of the principal banks, insurance companies and mercantile houses, in addition to buildings ranging from the historic interest of the Roman Wall, the Norman Tower and the 15th century Guildhall, to the massive splendour of St. Paul's Cathedral and the architectural beauty of Wren's spires.

The city of London at the time of the revolt of the Iceni (A.D. 61) was described by Tacitus (born A.D. 55; died A.D. 120) as "a busy emporium for trade and traders." In Saxon times it was, in reality, a small independent federated State of Wards (holding wardmotes) with a folk mote, predecessor of the present Common Council, for general affairs. Its burgesses maintained their independence even after the Battle of Hastings. William the Norman only gained possession of their city by means of a treaty with them, and granted a charter, which is still preserved. The mayoralty was established on the recognition of the corporate unity of the citizens by Prince John in 1191, the first Mayor being Henry Fitzailwyn, who filled the office for 21 years and was succeeded by Fitz Alan (1212-15). A new charter was granted by King John in 1215, directing the Mayor to be chosen annually, which has ever since been done, though in early times the same individual often held the office more than once. A familiar instance is that of "Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of London" (in reality four times, A.D. 1397, 1398, 1406, 1419); and many modern cases have occurred. The earliest instance of the phrase "Lord Mayor" in English is in 1414. It is used more generally in the latter part of the 15th century and becomes invariable from 1535 onwards. At Michaelmas the Liverymen in Common Hall choose two Aldermen who have served the office of Sheriff for presentation to the Court of Aldermen, and one is chosen to be Lord Mayor for the ensuing mayoral year. The Lord Mayor is sworn into office on November 8, and on the following day presented to the Lord Chief Justice at the Royal Courts of Justice to make the final declaration of office—the pageant being popularly known as the Lord Mayor's Show.

Aldermen are mentioned in the 11th century and their office is of Saxon origin. They were elected annually between 1377 and 1394, when a charter of Richard II. directed them to be chosen for life. The Common Council, elected annually on St. Thomas's Day (Dec. 21), was, at an early date, substituted for a popular assembly called the Folkmote. At first only two representatives were sent from each ward, but the number has since been greatly increased, some wards having at present as many as 16 members, and none fewer than four. Sheriffs were Saxon officers; their predecessors were the wic-reeves and portreeves of London and Middlesex. At first they were officers of the Crown, and were named by the Barons of the Exchequer; but Henry I. (in 1132) gave the citizens permission to choose their own Sheriffs, and the annual election of Sheriffs became fully operative under King John's charter of 1199. The citizens lost this privilege, as far as the election of Sheriff of Middlesex is concerned, by the Local Government Act, 1888; but the Liverymen continue, as heretofore, to choose two Sheriffs of the City of London, who are appointed on Midsummer Day, and take office at Michaelmas.

* The above is abstracted from the 320th "City's Cash Account" of the series extant—A.D. 1633 to 1952-53. (The Accounts earlier than A.D. 1633 were believed to have been destroyed in the Fire of London; but two years' Accounts, temp. Queen Elizabeth I, have been discovered among the Corporation Archives, as exceptions to that belief. The Volumes are in full detail, signed by the Auditors and in perfect preservation.) The above extract is from the 168th Annual Printed Account of the Corporation, A.D. 1784 to 1952-53.

Officers.—The Recorder was first appointed in 1298. The office of Chamberlain is an ancient one. There were at one time two Chamberlains—the King's Chamberlain and the Chamberlain of the Guildhall. The former appears to have fallen into abeyance circa 1319. The first contemporary record of the office of City Chamberlain is 1276. The Town Clerk (or Common Clerk) is mentioned in 1275 and the Common Serjeant in 1291.

Activities.—The work is assigned to Ward Committees consisting of 4 Aldermen and 29 Common Councilmen, and to Committees specially appointed. These Committees present reports to the Court of Common Council. The Ward Committees are :—City Lands, Bridge House Estates, Coal and Corn and Finance, Rates Finance, Improvements and Town Planning, Streets, Public Health, Central Markets, Cattle Markets, Billingsgate and Leadenhall Markets, Spitalfields Market, Police, Port of London Health, County Purposes, Library (Library, Records, Art Gallery and Museum), City of London Schools, Freeman's School, Music (Guildhall School of Music and Drama), General Purposes, Officers and Clerks, Law and City Courts, Civil Defence, and Airport. The Committees specially appointed are :—Gresham (City side), Epping Forest, West Ham Park, Special, Primary Education, Privileges, Food Control, Special (Labour), and Licensing Planning.

The Honourable the Irish Society, which manages the Corporation's Estates in Ulster, consists of a Governor and 5 other Aldermen, the Recorder, and 19 Common Councilmen, of whom one is elected Deputy Governor.

The City's Estate, in the possession of which the Corporation of London differs from all other municipalities in the Kingdom, is managed by the City Lands Committee, the Chairmanship of which carries with it the title of "Chief Commoner."

The Coal and Corn and Finance Committee manages the funds derived from the City's Estate and other sources and receives accounts of the Bridge House Estates (which are employed in the provision and maintenance of London, Blackfriars, Southwark and Tower Bridges). The cost of Civil Government and other public services, including the maintenance of open spaces, are met from the City's Cash, which also provides for the expenses of Epping Forest and West Ham Park, open spaces under the management of separate Committees, and the net expense of the City of London School, the City of London School for Girls, the City of London Freeman's School, and the Guildhall School of Music and Drama.

The Rates Finance Committee supervises the expenditure of all moneys derived from the Rates. Expenditure chargeable to the Poor Rate, unlike that from funds under the management of the Coal and Corn and Finance Committee, is subject to audit by the Ministry of Housing and Local Government. The bulk of the Poor Rate is paid to the London County Council and the General Rate is charged with the public health services, part of the cost of the Police, the net expense of Spitalfields Market, and the cost of the Library, Museum and Art Gallery.

THE CITY GUILDS (LIVERY COMPANIES)

The Livery Companies of the City of London derive their name from the assumption of a distinctive dress or livery by their members in the 14th century.

The order of precedence (according to 2nd Report of Municipal Corporations' Commissioners, 1837) and omitting extinct companies, is given in parentheses after the name of each Company. There are 80 Guilds in existence. The Combmakers, Silk-throwers, Silkmen, Pin-makers, Soapmakers, Hatbandmakers, Tobacco Pipe Makers, Long-bow Stringmakers, Wood-mongers, Starchmakers and Fishermen are extinct.

About 10,000 Liverymen of the Guilds are entitled to vote at elections in Common Hall.

The Liveries of the Stationers and Newspaper Makers (415), Shipwrights (500), Feltmakers (350), Merchant Taylors (354), and Carmen (350), are the most numerous, the Bowyers (33) and Waxchandlers (38) the smallest.

FREEDOMS AND ADDRESSES (CITY OF LONDON)

The Freedom of the City of London may be acquired after strict compliance with regulations made from time to time pursuant to resolutions of the Court of Common Council. The names of applicants by Redemption who have complied with the regulations are submitted to the Court of Common Council for approval, those applying through the medium of a Livery Company being submitted to the Court of Aldermen in a similar manner. Persons entitled to the Freedom of the City by Patrimony or Servitude (according to the Custom of London) may be admitted without application to either Court. The fees payable upon admission to the Freedom are applied towards the maintenance of the City of London Freemen's School at Ashted, Surrey, to which the Orphan sons and daughters of Freemen are eligible for election as resident Foundation Scholars, free of all cost. Freemen of the City of London are themselves eligible for admission to Almshouses at Brixton.

The Freedom of the City of London is conferred by Presentation as a mark of high distinction for exceptional services to the Country, the Commonwealth or to the world at large. As only those persons who owe allegiance to the Crown may be admitted to the Freedom, they alone can be recorded as Freemen. Foreign personages of eminence are, however, occasionally voted the Honorary Freedom, but their names cannot be entered on the Roll of Freemen in view of their nationality. Their names, together with those of the recipients of the Freedom by Presentation, are recorded in the Roll of Fame. Upon occasions when it is desired to honour a person who is already a Freeman of the City, his name is added to the Roll of Fame with a record of the resolution to present him with the Honorary Freedom.

Addresses of Welcome are occasionally offered to Foreign Sovereigns and Presidents pursuant to resolutions of the Court of Common Council.

The Arms of the City of London are heraldically described as Argent, a cross gules (the Cross of St. George), in the first quarter a sword in pale point upwards (the sword of St. Paul), of the last. The erroneous statement on the plinth of the statue of Sir William Walworth in Fishmongers' Hall that "Walworth's dagger" appears in the City Arms, is disproved by copies of the Seal of the Corporation of London on documents prior to Walworth's mayoralty with the sword of St. Paul in the first quarter.

THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL

Offices, The County Hall, Westminster Bridge, S.E.1.

Hours 9.30 to 5 (Monday to Thursday; 5.30 Friday), 9.30 to 12.30 (Saturday).

Meets on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m.

The London County Council was constituted under the Local Government Act of 1888. London is an administrative county, covering an area of 117 square miles.

The City of London is a county for non-administrative purposes, such as justices, &c., and the Metropolis outside the City is also a county for non-administrative purposes, by name the County of London, in which the justices continue their judicial duties.

The Council comprises a chairman, 21 aldermen, and 129 councillors, together 150, or, if the chairman be also an elected member or alderman, 149. The term of office for aldermen is 6 years, and ten retire every 3 years. The councillors are elected directly by the ratepayers for 3 years, and they elect the aldermen. The position of aldermen and councillors is the same, except as to the term of office.

The method by which the Council discharges the multitudinous duties entrusted to it is a generous delegation of powers to committees under well defined rules, subject to the reservation to the Council itself of all questions of principle, and to periodical reports of action taken. In addition to members of the Council, co-opted members are included on the following committees: Children's, Education, Health, Housing and Welfare.

Meetings of the Council are held fortnightly in session time, and the Standing Committees meet fortnightly, except the Public Control, Parks, Rivers and Drainage, Welfare, Supplies, and Restaurants and Catering Committees, which meet monthly.

The Finance Committee has important statutory powers. No costs, debt or liability exceeding £100 may be incurred by the Council except upon a resolution passed on an estimate submitted by the Finance Committee. The Council is normally the principal money-raising body for all the local authorities in the county, and has a net debt, according to the latest returns, of £178,610,000 (£147,295,000 represents debt incurred for housing). Its annual expenditure on revenue account is about £72,000,000 and on capital account about £30,000,000. Advances amounting to £6,600,000 have been made on loan under the Housing and Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts in respect of the building and purchase of houses by private enterprise.

The General Purposes Committee is responsible for the conduct of the administrative work of the Council or of any of its Committees or departments, the consideration of new proposals as to their bearing on the law of the land or the Council's general lines of action, standing orders and orders of reference to committees, determination of differences between committees, alterations of boundaries, etc. It is also responsible for the redevelopment of the South Bank.

The Children's Committee is charged with the care of deprived and neglected children.

The Education Committee comprises thirty-eight members of the Council and twelve co-opted members. Women as well as men must be included. The Council has adopted the "London School Plan, 1947" as its Development Plan under Section 11 of the Education Act, 1944, and this has been approved by the Minister of Education. This ambitious project envisages capital expenditure of over £187,000,000.

The Establishment Committee is charged with the direction of the central administrative staff (with certain exceptions). It also deals with rates of pay and conditions of appointment and service of all staff in the Council's employment (except teaching staff and certain trade employees).

The Fire Brigade Committee is responsible for carrying out the duties laid on the Council by the Fire Services Act, 1947.

The Health Committee, set up under the National Health Service Act, 1946, is responsible for health services provided under that Act and for discharging the functions of the Council under the Lunacy, Mental Treatment and Mental Deficiency Acts. Under this committee are nine Divisional Health Committees, the majority of whose members are drawn from the Corporation of the City of London and the Metropolitan Borough Councils. These divisional committees are entrusted with considerable responsibilities for the day-to-day administration of the personal health services.

The Housing Committee performs the duties cast upon the Council by the various Housing Acts, including the clearance of insanitary areas and the relief of overcrowding. The total capital expenditure incurred up to March 31, 1953, in respect of all schemes was approximately £170,000,000. The income (rents, &c.) for 1953-54 in respect of dwellings and housing estates of the Council is estimated at £10,514,580. The total of the Exchequer subsidy in respect of the Council's housing operations is estimated at £2,532,615.

The Restaurants and Catering Committee manages some 40 Civic Restaurants with a turnover of about £320,000 a year.

The Rivers and Drainage Committee administers the Metropolitan Main Drainage system which covers about 179 square miles, including certain districts outside the county, and comprises about 420 miles of main, storm-relief, intercepting and outfall sewers, twelve pumping stations, two sewage outfalls, and three sluice vessels. The total capital outlay on main drainage is about £20,000,000, and further expenditure is in progress. This committee is also responsible for the upkeep of the tunnels and bridges, and Woolwich Ferry.

The Town Planning Committee deals with questions relating to town-planning, the carrying out of street improvements and construction of bridges, tunnels and ferries and also regulates under statute such matters as the construction and safety of buildings, building lines, space about buildings, means of escape in case of fire, and dangerous structures.

The Council has a provisional plan of redevelopment for the County of London prepared by J. H. Forshaw, M.C., F.R.I.B.A., and Sir Patrick Abercrombie, F.R.I.B.A., and approved certain of its principles. These include a system of three major ring roads linked with radial roads, three principal density zones, a standard of open space per 1,000 population of 4 acres within the County plus 3 outside, and the recognition of the community structure of London. It has authorized in principle several immediate projects, including a programme of road works, the redevelopment of certain reconstruction areas and of the South Bank of the Thames, as well as the provision everywhere of 2½ acres of open space per 1,000 population as a step towards the ultimate standard of 4 acres. It has submitted to the Minister its Development Plan under the Town and Country Planning Act of 1947, and a public enquiry has been held, lasting over 8 months, and hearing some 6,000 objections.

Among the Other Powers and Duties of the Council may be mentioned the following: acquisition and maintenance of parks and open spaces, including the Crystal Palace and Holland Park; the naming of streets and numbering of houses; appointment of district surveyors; controlling storage of explosive substances and petroleum; the management of its Royal Festival Hall; testing weights and measures; the granting of licences for music, dancing, boxing and wrestling; maintenance of historic buildings and monuments; administration of the Shops Acts; licensing and inspection of employment agencies; registration of massage establishments; licensing of premises under the Cinematograph Act; registration of motor cars; collection of duties on motor cars, dog, game, gun and certain other local taxation licences.

The Expenditure of the Council, including loans to other local authorities, is met by two chief sources of supply—capital money raised by external borrowing, or by the use of the Sinking Fund of the Council's debt, the Superannuation

Fund, etc., and current income raised in a county rate or by the revenue of undertakings. Substantial contributions are received from the Exchequer by way of housing subsidies and grants in respect of education, health, children's and fire services. All borrowings by the Council are subject to the provision of a sinking fund, under Treasury approval, sufficient to repay all expenditure generally within a period of 60 years (in a few cases the limit is 80 years). The total Stock outstanding at March 31, 1953, was £101,742,590.

The Rating for the year 1953-54, as shown by the statement below (which relates to rate accounts only), amounted to 10s. 10d. in the pound over the whole county, including the City, and a further rate over the county outside the City of 2d. in the pound, together 11s. 0d. The total rate for 1952-53 was 9s. 3d. The Rateable Value of the County of London, on April 6, 1953 (excluding electricity, railway, etc., hereditaments de-rated under the Local Government Act, 1948), was estimated to be approximately £56,640,000—a 1d. rate over the whole county producing £236,000.

Public and Private Buildings in London

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C.2.—Adelphi Terrace and district commemorate the four architect brothers, James, John, Robert and William ADAM, who laid out the district (formerly Durham House) at the close of the 18th century. Four of the streets in the Adelphi were formerly called James, John, Robert and William Streets to commemorate these founders of the Adam style of architecture and internal decoration. They are now Adam Street, John Adam Street, Robert Street and Durham House Street. Extensive rebuilding took place between the two World Wars, and there are now few 18th-century houses left in the district. In the neighbourhood of the Adelphi was York House, built by the Duke of Buckingham in 1625 (the Water Gate of which still stands in Embankment Gardens), the commemorative streets being Charles Street, Villiers Street, Duke Street, Of Lane, Buckingham Street (Of Lane is now "York Buildings").

AUSTRALIA HOUSE, Strand, W.C.2.—A handsome and imposing building, erected 1911-14 by the Commonwealth of Australia as the offices of the High Commissioner for the Commonwealth. NEW SOUTH WALES, QUEENSLAND, VICTORIA and WESTERN AUSTRALIA have separate offices in the Strand; TASMANIA at Golden Cross House, Charing Cross and SOUTH AUSTRALIA at S.A. House, Marble Arch.

BANK OF ENGLAND, Threadneedle Street, E.C.2. (Not open to sightseers.)—The Bank of England, founded in 1694, has always been closely connected with the Government. The present building, completed in 1940 to the designs of Sir Herbert Baker, incorporates features reminiscent of the earlier architects, Sampson (1734), Sir Robert Taylor (1765) and Sir John Soane (1788). A Bank picnic is mounted every evening by the Brigade of Guards.

BRIDGES.—The bridges over the Thames (from East to West) are the Tower Bridge (built by the Corporation of London and opened in 1894), with its bascules, affording a fine view of the Pool and of the metropolis; London Bridge (opened after rebuilding in 1831, and until 1750 the only bridge over the Thames in London), with the London Monument (q.v.) and Fishmongers' Hall; Southwark Bridge (opened in 1819, and rebuilt by the Corporation of London, 1921); Blackfriars Bridge (opened in 1869 and widened by the Corporation of London in 1908); width, 105 ft.; Waterloo Bridge (Rennie), width, 42 ft. 6 ins. (opened in 1817) commanding a fine view of western London (rebuilt by L.C.C. and re-opened 1946); Hungerford Bridge (for pedestrians only); Westminster Bridge (built in 1750 and then presenting a view that inspired Wordsworth's sonnet; re-built and re-opened in 1862; width, 84 ft.) with Thornycroft's Houdica at the north-western end; this bridge leads from Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament to the County Hall (q.v.) and St. Thomas's Hospital; Lambeth Bridge (rebuilt by L.C.C. and opened in 1932) leading from Lambeth Palace to Millbank; Vauxhall Bridge (rebuilt in 1906) leading to Kennington Oval; Chelsea Bridge, leading from Chelsea Hospital to Battersea Park (reconstructed and widened 1937); and Albert Bridge (1873); Battersea Bridge (opened in 1890); Wandsworth Bridge (opened in 1873); Putney Bridge (opened in 1886 and widened in 1933) where the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race is started for Mortlake; Hammersmith Bridge (rebuilt 1887); Barnes Bridge (for pedestrians only, 1933); Chiswick Bridge (opened in 1933); King Edward VII. Bridge, Kew (rebuilt in 1902), leading to the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew; Twickenham Lock Bridge; Twickenham Bridge (opened in 1933); Richmond Bridge (opened in 1777); Kingston Bridge and Hampton Court Bridge (rebuilt, 1933).

BUCKINGHAM PALACE, St. James's Park, S.W.1. (Not open to the public.)—Was purchased by King George III. in 1762 from the Duke of Buckingham, and was altered by Nash for King George IV. The London home of the Sovereign since Queen Victoria's accession in 1837. Re-fronted in stone (part of the Queen Victoria Memorial) by Sir Aston Webb in 1913.

CANADA HOUSE, Trafalgar Square, S.W.1.—A conspicuous building on the Western side of the Square, in which are the Offices of the High Commissioner of the Dominion and Officials dealing with Trade, Emigration, etc. Designed by Sir Robert Smirke in 1820, it was renovated and embellished when vacated by the Union Club. Certain interior features of the original building are preserved, and the spacious, richly furnished room now occupied by the High Commissioner is much admired. Surrounded by Offices of Canadian Banks, Steamship, Railway and other Dominion Companies, the Canadian Building is one of London's landmarks. It was opened by H.M. King George V. in June, 1925.

CANONBURY TOWER, Canonbury, N.1.—Till recently a club for boys and girls from the vicinity (in the remains of the 16th-century house of the Priors of St. Bartholomew), but at the moment partly in use as headquarters of a theatre company. Contains the "Spencer" and "Compton" oak-panelled rooms. Other relics of Canonbury House can be seen in the vicinity.

CARLYLE'S HOUSE, 24 Cheyne Row, Chelsea, S.W.3. The home of Thomas Carlyle for 47 years until his death in 1881, and containing much of his furniture, etc. Now the property of the National Trust. Open on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., or dusk, if earlier. Admission, 1s.; Parties of 10 or over half price.

CEMETERIES.—For Bunhill Fields, see p. 511. In Kensal Green Cemetery, North Kensington, W.10 (70 acres), are tombs of W. M. Thackeray, Anthony Trollope, Sydney Smith, Shirley Brooks, Wilkie Collins, Tom Hood, W. Mulready, George Cruikshank, John Leech, Leigh Hunt, Brunel ("Great Eastern"), Ross (Arctic), Charles Kemble and Charles Mathews (Actors), Robert Owen (Social Reformer). In Highgate Cemetery, N.6, are the tombs of George Eliot, Herbert Spencer, Michael Faraday, and G. J. Holyoake. In Abney Park Cemetery, Stoke Newington, N.16, are the tomb of General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and memorials to many Nonconformist Divines. In the South Metropolitan Cemetery, Norwood, S.E.27, are the tombs of C. H. Spurgeon, Lord Alverstone, Douglas Jerrold, John Belcher, R.A., Theodore Watts-Dunton, Dr. Moffat (Missionary), Sir H. Bessemer, Sir H. Maxim, Sir J. Barnby, Sir A. Manns, and J. Whitaker, F.S.A. (Whitaker's Almanack). In the churchyard of the former Marylebone Chapel are buried Allan Ramsay (poet), Hoyle (whist), Ferguson (astronomer), Charles Wesley (hymn writer) and his son Samuel Wesley (musician). The chapel itself was demolished in 1949. CREMATORIA.—Ilford (City of London); Norwood; Hendon; Streatham Park; and Golders Green (12 acres), near Hampstead Heath, with "Garden of Rest" and memorials to famous men and women.

CENOTAPH, Whitehall, S.W.1.—(Literally "empty tomb"). Monument erected "To the Glorious Dead," as a memorial to all ranks of the Sea, Land and Air Forces who gave their lives in the service of the Empire during the First World War. Erected as a temporary memorial in 1919 and replaced by a permanent structure in 1920. Unveiled by King George V. on Armistice Day, 1920. An additional inscription was added after the 1939-45 War, to commemorate those who gave their lives in that conflict.

CHARTERHOUSE, Charterhouse Square, E.C.1 (Master, vacant; Registrar and Clerk to the Governors, N. Long-Brown, M.A., I.L.B.), a Carthusian monastery until 1535, purchased from the Earl of Suffolk in 1611 by Thomas Sutton as a home for aged "Brothers" and a School (at Godalming since 1874). The buildings are partly 14th (but mainly 16th) century. They suffered much damage during the 1939-45 War. Repairs will take until 1955, but 28 "Brothers" are in residence. The maximum will be about 40. No visitors at present. Roger Williams, the founder and governor of Rhode Island, U.S.A., was on June 25, 1621, elected a scholar of Sutton's Hospital. Other famous Carthusians are John Wesley; the poets Crashaw and Lovelace; Addison and Steele; Sir William Blackstone and Thackeray, who described "Greyfriars' School" (Charterhouse) in "The New-

CHELSEA PHYSIC GARDEN, Royal Hospital Road, S.W.3.—A garden of general botanical research, established in latter part of 17th century by the Society of Apothecaries, occupies site presented in 1722 by Sir Hans Sloane. Transferred in 1899 to the Trustees of the London Parochial Charities. Tickets of admission for approved students obtainable from the Clerk to the Trustees, 3, Temple Gardens, E.C.4.

CHELSEA ROYAL HOSPITAL (founded by Charles II. in 1682, and burnt by Wren; opened in 1694), Royal Hospital Road, Chelsea, S.W.3, for Old and Disabled Soldiers. Flags and other War Trophies in the Great Hall. Much damaged by bombs in the Second World War. The extensive grounds include the former Ranelagh Gardens. Open daily 10 to 12 and 2 to 4, and on Sunday afternoons. Governor, General Sir Bernard C. T. Paget, G.C.B., D.S.O., M.C. Lieut.-Governor and Secretary, Major-Gen. Sir Percy Hobart, K.B.E., C.B., D.S.O., M.C.

COLLEGE OF ARMS OR HERALDS' COLLEGE, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.4.—The Royal "Officers of Arms" ("Kings, Heralds and Pursuivants of Arms") were incorporated by Richard III. and granted "Derby House" on the site of the present College building by Queen Mary I. The building now in use was rebuilt after the Fire of London. The Powers vested by the Crown in the Earl Marshal (The Duke of Norfolk) with regard to all State ceremonial, and the granting and use of Armorial Bearings, are exercised by this College. Enquiry may be made to the Officer on duty in the Public Office every day between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturdays, 10 to 1.

COUNTY HALL, Westminster Bridge, S.E.1.—The Headquarters of the London County Council (see pp. 648-51) built on the Pedlar's Acre, Lambeth, from the designs of Ralph Knott, with a river facade of 750 ft. Cost about £4,000,000. The building contains, in addition to office accommodation, a council chamber, conference hall, committee and conference rooms; education library for teachers; county record office; and a member's library with maps, prints, drawings, books and manuscripts on London, which is open to the public for reference purposes. Literarian, Miss

I. Darlington, M.A., F.I.A. Foundation stone laid by His late Majesty King George V., March 9, 1912, and the ceremonial opening of the first three sections of the building by His late Majesty, July 17, 1922. The fourth (or final) section opened January 27, 1923. The Council, when in session, meets in public in the council chamber fortnightly on Tuesday afternoons at 2.30 p.m. The times for public inspection of the building are, on Saturdays from 10.30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1.30 p.m. to 3.30 p.m.; and on Easter Monday, Whit Monday and August Bank Holiday, from 10.30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1.30 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. Admission free.

CUSTOM HOUSE, Lower Thames Street, E.C.3.—Built early in 16th century, with a wide quay on Thames. The Long Room is 100 ft. long.

DICKENS HOUSE, 48 Doughty Street, W.C.1.—In this house Charles Dickens lived from 1837 to 1839, and here he completed Pickwick Papers. It is the headquarters of The Dickens Fellowship, and contains many relics of the novelist. It is open to the public daily, 10 to 12.30 and 2 to 5 (Sundays and Bank Holidays excepted); admission 1s.

DR. JOHNSON'S HOUSE, Gough Square, Fleet Street, E.C.4.—An imposing late 17th-century house, in the garret of which, with the aid of six amanuenses, Samuel Johnson compiled his Dictionary. Open daily (except Sundays and Bank Holidays) from 10.30 to 4.30 or 5 (according to season). Admission 1s.

ELY PLACE, Holborn Circus, E.C.1.—The site of the London house of former Bishops of Ely. The 14th-century chapel, now St. Etheldreda's (R.C.) Church, is open daily until dusk; a small charge is made for admission to the crypt.

FULHAM PALACE, Bishop's Avenue, Fulham, S.W.6.—The courtyard is 15th century, remainder 16th-century. Residence of the Bishop of London. Grounds of 37 acres, surrounded by ancient moat. Previous application to visit should be made to the Bishop's Secretary.

GEFFREY MUSEUM, Kingsland Road, E.2. Open on Tuesdays to Saturdays 10 to 5, Sundays 2 to 5. Closed on Christmas Day and on Mondays except Bank Holidays. Admission free.

The Museum is housed in an early 18th-century building, originally almshouses, purchased by the London County Council and opened in 1914. The permanent exhibits (English social and domestic history from 1600 to the present day) are arranged in a series of period rooms, containing representative furniture and equipment. Other exhibits: an interesting collection of early ironwork and woodwork, a downhearth kitchen, 18th-century architectural features. Temporary exhibitions are shown in the Lecture Hall and periodic series of evening lectures given. Reference library of books on furniture and social history. Special arrangements for children who wish to visit the Museum in school parties and in their leisure time. Curator, Mrs. M. Harrison.

GUILDHALL, King Street, City, E.C.2 (dating from early 13th century).—Burnt out by incendiary bombs, 1940. The main hall has been largely restored. The Library, Museum and Art Gallery adjoining largely escaped damage, and are in part open to the public. Admission free. The Library (with Newspaper Room adjoining) contains Plan of London, 1570; Deed of Sale with Shakespeare's signature; first, second and fourth folios of Shakespeare's plays, etc., is open free on week-days, 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Keeper of the Guildhall, W. C. Turner (1950).

HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY'S HEAD-QUARTERS, City Road, E.C.1.—The H.A.C. (Sec.,

Brig. E. Foster Hall, M.C.) received its charter of incorporation from Henry VIII. in 1537, and has occupied its present ground since 1641. The Armoury House dates from 1735. Four of its members who emigrated in the 17th century, founded in 1638 the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts. The H.A.C. is the senior regiment of the Territorial Army.

HORNIMAN MUSEUM AND LIBRARY, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.23. Open daily except Tuesdays and Christmas Day, 10.30 to 6, Sundays 2 to 6. Admission free. The Museum was presented in 1901 to the London County Council by the founder, Mr. F. J. Horniman, M.P. The Museum has two main departments, one devoted to ethnology and the other to zoology. In the former department the very large collections include exhibits illustrating man's progress in the arts and crafts from primitive times and an outstanding collection of musical instruments. The Zoological department includes an aquarium. The reference library contains twenty thousand volumes dealing with the subjects represented in the Museum. Curator, O. W. Samson.

HORSE GUARDS, Whitehall, S.W.1.—Archway and offices built about 1750. The mounting of the guard (Life Guards, or Royal Horse Guards) at 11 a.m. (10 a.m. on Sundays) and the dismounting at 4 p.m. are picturesque ceremonies. Only those on the Lord Chamberlain's list may drive through the gates and archway into Horse Guards' Parade (300,000 sq. ft.), where the Colour is "trooped" on the King's Birthday. (Trafalgar Square is 168,850 sq. ft.; Parliament Square, 136,900 sq. ft.; Leicester Square, 100,000 sq. ft.).

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT, Westminster, S.W.1.—The "Palace of Westminster" was re-built in 1840-50 from the designs of Sir Charles Barry and Augustus Pugin, at a cost of £2,198,000.—Open to visitors on Saturdays, and on Easter and Whit Mondays and Tuesdays and August Bank Holiday if neither House be sitting. Admission at the Norman Porch, House of Lords, on the above-mentioned days, from 10 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. Admission to the Strangers' Gallery of the House of Commons, during session, by members' order, or order obtained on personal application at the Admission Order Office in St. Stephen's Hall. The Commons Chamber was destroyed by bombs in 1941, and until 1950 the Commons sat in the House of Lords, the Lords using the King's Robing-Chamber. The rebuilt House of Commons was used for the first time on October 26, 1950. The Victoria Tower (House of Lords) is 336 ft. high, and when Parliament is sitting the Union Jack flies by day from its flagstaff. The Clock Tower of the House of Commons is 320 ft. high and contains "Big Ben" (13½ tons), named after Sir Benjamin Hall, First Commissioner of Works when it was hung in 1856. The original Horn Bell, weighing 16 tons 11 cwt., was found cracked in 1857. The present bell is a recasting of the original and was hung in 1858. A light is displayed from this tower when Parliament is sitting.

INNS OF COURT.—The Inner and Middle Temple, S. of Fleet Street, E.C.4. and N. of Victoria Embankment, to which the gardens extend, have occupied (since early 14th century) the site of the buildings of the Order of Knights Templars, the Temple Church (see p. 510), though now badly bombed, surviving in part. Middle Temple Hall, damaged by bombing but since repaired and reopened, is Elizabethan, and in Middle Temple Gardens Shakespeare (Henry VI., Part I.) places the incident which led to the "Wars of the Roses" (1455-85). Lincoln's Inn, from Chancery Lane to Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.2, occupies the site of the palace of a former Bishop of Chichester and of a Black Friars monastery. It was founded early in the 14th century. The new Hall is modern, the Library is 15th century, and the old Hall early 16th century, the Chapel (Inigo Jones) early 17th century. Lincoln's Inn Fields (7 acres); the Square contains many fine old houses with handsome interiors. Gray's Inn, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.1, was founded in the late 14th century. The 16th-century Hall, where the "Comedy of Errors" was performed in 1594, was reduced to a shell by bombs. The Gardens were laid out (according to tradition) by Lord Chancellor Bacon (died 1626). No other "Inns" are active, but what remains of Staple Inn is worth visiting as a relic of Elizabethan London; though heavy damage was done by a flying-bomb, it retains a picturesque gabled front on Holborn (opposite Gray's Inn Road). Clement's Inn (near St. Clement Dane's Church), Clifford's Inn, Fleet Street, and Thavies Inn, Holborn Circus, are all rebuilt. Serjeants' Inn, Fleet Street (damaged by bombing), and another (now demolished) of the same name in Chancery Lane, were composed of Serjeants-at-Law, the last of whom died in 1922.

KEATS HOUSE AND MUSEUM, Keats Grove, Hampstead, N.W.3.—In one of two houses here, now made into one, John Keats lived at various times between 1818 and 1820. The house and the museum are open, free, weekdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The special student's library in the adjoining building is open free on weekdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Monday and Thursday to 8 p.m.)

KENSINGTON PALACE, W.8.—Enlarged by Christopher Wren for King William III. (1691), and continued as a royal residence until 1760. The birthplace of Queen Victoria in 1819. The State Apartments are open on Saturdays and Sundays (March-Sept., 2 to 6). A part of the London Museum Collection is now exhibited at Kensington palace. Kensington Gardens (q.v.) adjoin.

LAMBETH PALACE, S.E.1.—The official residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury, on south bank of Thames; the oldest part is 13th century, the house itself is early 19th century. Some of the heavy bomb damage done to the Palace was made good in time for the Lambeth Conference of 1948. For leave to visit the historical portions, applications should be made by letter to the Archbishop's Secretary.

LIVERY COMPANIES' HALLS.—The Principal Companies (see pp. 645-6) have magnificent halls, but admission to view them has generally to be arranged beforehand.

LLOYD'S, Leadenhall Street, E.C.3.—Housed in the Royal Exchange for 150 years; new building opened by King George V., March 24, 1928. Central room for brokers and underwriters 160 ft. square. Captains' room on upper floor.

LONDON MONUMENT (commonly called "The Monument"), Pudding Lane, Eastcheap, E.C.3.—Built from designs of Wren, 1671-77, to commemorate the Great Fire of London, which broke out in Pudding Lane, Sept. 2, 1666. The fluted Doric column is 120 ft. high (the flames of fire 42 ft. in addition), and is based on a square plinth 40 ft. high, with fine carvings on W. face (making a total height of 202 ft.). Splendid views of London from gallery at top of column. Admission 6d., 9 to 6 (Oct.-March to 4). Parties of 20 or more school children in charge of an adult 3d. each.

LORD'S CRICKET GROUND, St. John's Wood Road, N.W.8.—The headquarters (since 1814) of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the premier cricket club in England and the governing body of cricket, the scene of some of the principal matches of the season and Middlesex County headquarters. Tennis Court in building behind members' pavilion, where interesting games are played.

The Foundation contains the collections of Chinese ceramics made by Sir Percival David and the Hon. Mount Stuart Elphinstone and the Library of books on the subject collected by Sir Percival David. Hours of opening: Galleries, Mon. 2 to 5 p.m.; Tues. to Fri. 10.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sat. 10.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Library, Mon. 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.; Tues. to Fri. 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.; 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.; Sat. 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. Curator, Miss S. Yorke Hardy.

PORT OF LONDON.—The Port of London comprises the tidal portion of the River Thames from Teddington to the sea, a distance of 69 miles and five dock systems covering an area of 4,246 acres, of which 722 acres are water. The governing body is the Port of London Authority, whose Head Offices in Trinity Square, E.C.3, were designed by Sir Edwin Cooper. Particulars of the docks are as follow:—London & St. Katharine Docks, E.1.—Area 123½ acres including 45 acres water. Chief commodities handled are Wool, Ivory, Spices, Shells, Tea, Rubber, Wine, Marble, Canned Goods, Hides, Perfumes, etc., and general cargo from Continental and coastwise ports. St. Katharine Dock, badly damaged by bombing, is not at present in use. Surrey Commercial Docks, S.E.16.—Area 38½ acres, including 134 acres water. The chief centre of the London and Provincial Soft-wood Trade. Also handles Grain, Canadian Dairy Produce, etc. West India & Millwall Docks, E.14.—Area 466 acres including 133½ acres water. Principal commodities handled are Rum, Sugar, Grain, Hardwood, Fruit, Plywood and Wood pulp. In Millwall Dock a special feature is the Granary. East India Dock, E.14.—Area 67½ acres including 31½ acres water. Royal Victoria & Albert & King George V. Docks, E.16.—Area 1,108½ acres including 246 acres water—have special facilities for handling Frozen and Chilled Meat, Grain, Tobacco. Large quantities of Wool, Fruit, Dairy Produce and general cargo are also dealt with. The King George V. Dock, opened in 1921, provides accommodation for vessels up to 30,000 tons. Tilbury Docks, Essex.—Area 725 acres, including 104½ acres water. These docks are 26 miles below London Bridge and are used principally by vessels plying on the Australian, Indian and other Eastern routes. The Cargo Jetty in the River at Tilbury is available for vessels to discharge or load part cargoes. Tilbury Passenger Landing Stage provides accommodation for liners at all states of the tide and adjoins Tilbury Riverside Station, giving direct rail connection with London, the Midlands and the North.

PRINCE HENRY'S ROOM, 27, Fleet Street, E.C.4.—Bought by the L.C.C. in 1900, and open free on weekdays from 2.45 p.m. to 5 p.m. (Saturdays 4.30). It is a timbered 17th-century house, and contains a Jacobean plaster ceiling and Jacobean and Georgian panelling. (Available for evening lettings.—Apply Architect, County Hall, S.E.1.)

ROMAN LONDON.—Visible remains of the Roman city are now very few. The most striking is a fine piece of the city wall, including an angle bastion, beneath the pavement of the yard of the General Post Office at Giltspur Street. Other portions of this three-mile wall which encircled the city may be seen at Roman Wall House, Crutched Friars, and near the White Tower of the Tower of London. The fragments showing in the churchyards of St. Giles, Cripplegate, Saint Alphage, London Wall, and All Hallows, London Wall, are mediæval reconstructions; the actual Roman masonry of the lower portion being here concealed beneath the soil. Recent excavations in the N.W. angle of the old city, in an area between Cripplegate and Aldersgate devastated by bombing, have revealed further sections of the wall, and this area, where the City Corporation has erected informative notice-boards, is worth a visit. Excavations in Jewry Street, where the wall crossed the bed of a small stream, give good grounds for supposing that it was built about 75 to 85 A.D. In the basement of the Coal Exchange in Lower Thames Street are the remains of a hypocaust, perhaps once forming part of public baths. The governmental headquarters of the town was a great basilica, more than 400 ft. long from east to west, the massive walls of which have been encountered, extending from Leadenhall Market across Gracechurch Street as far as St. Michael's, Cornhill. Excavations during the past few years have shown that the river front was embanked in Roman times with a construction of huge oaken timbers for a considerable distance both east and west of the present London Bridge. The "Roman Bath," in Strand Lane, which is not now held by most authorities to be of Roman origin, is maintained by the L.C.C. on behalf of the National Trust, and is open free to the public on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. Many relics from Roman London may be seen in the Guildhall Museum (q.v.). Excavations since 1948 on a bombed site in Walbrook, on the banks of the old Wall Brook, have produced many interesting discoveries.

ROYAL EXCHANGE, Cornhill, E.C.3 (founded by Sir Thomas Gresham, 1566, opened by Queen Elizabeth I., 1571, rebuilt 1667-69 and 1842-44).—Admission free. Statues of Queen Elizabeth I., Charles II., Queen Victoria, Sir Thomas Gresham, Wellington (Chantry), riding without stirrups. Peabody, and others; frescoes in the ambulatory by Leighton, Abbey, Brangwyn, Wyllie, and others. The chimes of the Royal Exchange (reinstated 1950) play English, Scottish, Irish, Welsh, Canadian and Australian melodies at 9 a.m., 12 noon and 3 and 6 p.m. With the exception of the ambulatory and the shops the whole of the building is now occupied by the Royal Exchange Assurance, which has had its head office there since 1720.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, Kensington Gore, S.W.7.—Map Room open to public, free.

ROYAL MINT, Tower Hill, E.C.3 (building erected 1821), where gold, silver, and bronze are coined. Admission by order only, application for which should be made to the Deputy Master of the Mint, about 6 weeks in advance of intended visit. Hours of admission, 10.15 to 3 Mon. to Fri., except Bank Holidays, etc., when the Mint is closed.

ROYAL UNITED SERVICE MUSEUM, WHITEHALL, S.W.1.—Open on weekdays, 10 to 5. Admission adults 2s., children 1s. Special arrangements for school parties. Services in uniform free. This private Museum is housed in the Banqueting House of Old Whitehall Palace, which was designed by Inigo Jones and completed in 1622. The ceiling consists of magnificent and massive paintings by Rubens. From this building King Charles I walked to the scaffold erected near the present entrance. The exhibits are some of the greatest treasures of the Navy, Army and Air Force, and include models of Trafalgar and Waterloo, dioramas of other famous events from the landing of Julius Caesar to the invasion of Normandy, models of ships and aircraft, and many personal relics of national heroes. Other exhibits are uniforms, medals, swords, small arms, model guns and tanks. Curator, Lieut.-Col. P. S. M. Wilkinson.

ST. JAMES'S PALACE, in Pall Mall, S.W.1.—(Not open to the public.) Built by Henry VIII. (according to tradition, from designs by Holbein); the Gatehouse and Presence Chamber remain, and part of the Chapel Royal. A royal residence from 1698 to 1837. Royal Levées held here during the season. Representatives of Foreign Powers are still accredited "to the Court of St. James's" (and by the permission of the Crown) the Conference of the Allies (1921) and later conferences have been held there.

ST. JOHN'S GATE, Clerkenwell, E.C.1.—Now the Chancery of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and formerly the gate of the Priory of that Order, of which the gate house (early 16th century) and crypt of Church (12th century) alone survive. The gatehouse may be inspected on application to the Secretary at the Chancery.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S MUSEUM, 13, Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.2. The house and galleries, built 1812-24, are the work of the founder, Sir John Soane (1753-1837) and contain his collections, arranged as he left them, in pursuance of an Act procured by him in 1833. Exhibits include the Sarcophagus of Seti I (1370 B.C.), classical vases and marbles, Hogarth's Rake's Progress and Election series, paintings by Canaletto, Reynolds, Turner, Lawrence, etc., and sculpture by Chantrey, Flaxman, etc. Soane's library of 8,000 vols. and a collection of 20,000 architectural drawings are available for study. Open Tues.-Sat. inclusive, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed Bank Holidays and throughout August. Curator: J. Summerson, C.B.E., F.S.A. Inspector: Miss D. Stroud, F.S.A.

SOMERSET HOUSE, Strand, W.C.2, and Victoria Embankment, W.C.2.—The beautiful river façade (600 ft. long) was built at the close of the 18th century from the designs of Sir W. Chambers; the remainder of the building is early 19th century. Somerset House was the property of Lord Protector Somerset, at whose attainder in 1552 the palace passed to the Crown, and it was a royal residence until about the close of the 17th century. The building is now occupied by the Board of Inland Revenue and by the Principal Probate Registry and the office of the Registrar-General of Births, Marriages and Deaths. In the Probate Registry (Central Hall) are the wills of (inter alios) Shakespeare, Milton, Newton, Van Dyck, Pitt, Dr. Johnson, Nelson, Wellington and Burke.

STOCK EXCHANGE, E.C.2. (Strangers not admitted.)—Known in the City as the "House," was founded in 1801 and now consists of about 4,000 members. A dealer ("jobber") does business only with other members; a "broker" is the intermediary with the public.

THAMES EMBANKMENTS.—The Victoria Embankment, on the N. side (from Westminster to Blackfriars), was constructed by Sir J. W. Bazalgette for the Metropolitan Board of Works, 1864-70 (the seats, of which the supports of some are a kneeling camel, laden with spicery, and of others a winged sphinx, were presented by the Grocers' Company, and by Rt. Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., in 1874); the Albert Embankment on the S. side (from Westminster Bridge to Vauxhall), 1866-69; the Chelsea Embankment, 1871-74. The total cost exceeded £2,000,000. Sir J. W. Bazalgette (1819-92) also inaugurated the London main drainage system, 1858-65. A medallion has been placed on a pier of the Victoria Embankment to commemorate the engineer of the Thames waterside improvements ("Flumini vincula posuit"). The County Hall of the L.C.C. includes an embankment on the Surrey side.

THAMES TUNNELS.—The Rotherhithe Tunnel (foot passengers and vehicles), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1908, connects Commercial Road East, with Lower Road, Rotherhithe; the total length is 1 mile 332 yards, of which 474 yards are under the river. The cost of the tunnel and its approaches was £1,506,914. The Blackwall Tunnel (foot passengers and vehicles) was constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1897, connects East India Dock Road, Poplar, with Blackwall Lane, East Greenwich. The total length of the tunnel is 1 mile 279 yards, of which 377 yards are under the river. The cost of the tunnel with its approaches was about £1,323,663. The Greenwich Tunnel (foot passengers only), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1902, connects the Isle of Dogs, Poplar, with Greenwich. The length of the subway is 406 yards, and the cost was about £180,000. The Woolwich Tunnel (foot passengers only), constructed by the L.C.C. and opened in 1912, connects North and South Woolwich below the passenger and vehicular ferry from North Woolwich Station, E.16, to High Street, Woolwich, S.E.18. The length of the subway is 552 yards, and its cost was about £86,000. The Thames Tunnel (1,300 feet) was opened in 1843 to connect Wapping (N.) with Rotherhithe (S.). In 1866 it was closed to the public, and purchased by the East London Railway Company. The Tower Subway for foot passengers was opened in 1870, and has long been closed.

TOWER HILL, E.C.1 and E.C.3, was formerly the place of execution for condemned prisoners from the Tower, the site of the scaffold being marked in the gardens of Trinity Square. A movement, sponsored by the Council for Tower Hill Improvement, aims at creating more open space around the Tower by the demolition of encroaching buildings and by opening Trinity Square Gardens to the public, thus restoring to Tower Hill its ancient title to be the City's pleasure, or "Board-room."

TOWER OF LONDON, E.C.3.—Admission on weekdays (and on Sundays during the Summer) to a general view of the Tower, the White Tower (Armouries), the Beauchamp and Bloody Towers and the Chapels Royal—1s. Saturdays, admission free; to Jewel House—1s. Half-price for children. The Tower of London is closed on Sundays during the Winter period and on the mornings of the Summer time period, Good Friday and Christmas Day. On Sundays throughout the year the public is admitted to Holy Communion, 8.30 a.m. and Morning Service, 11 a.m. Open on weekdays, May 1 to Sept. 30, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Oct. 1 to Apr. 30, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Sundays, first Sunday in May to last in Sept., 2 to 5 p.m. CONSTABLE, Field-Marshal The Viscount Alanbrooke, K.G., G.C.B., O.M., G.C.V.O.,

D.S.O.; LIEUTENANT, Lieut.-General Sir Ronald Scobie, K.B.E., C.B., M.C.; MAJOR AND RESIDENT GOVERNOR, Colonel E. H. Carkeet-James, O.B.E., M.C.; KEEPER OF THE JEWEL HOUSE, Maj. General H. D. W. Sitwell, C.B., M.C.; MASTER OF THE ARMOURIES, Sir James Mann, F.S.A.

The White Tower is the oldest and central building in Her Majesty's Royal Palace and Fortress of the Tower of London. It was built at the order of William I and constructed by Gundulph, Bishop of Rochester, in the years 1078-98. The Inner Wall, with thirteen towers, was constructed by Henry III in the 12th century. The Moat was extended and completed by Richard I and the Wharf first mentioned in 1228. The Outer Wall was completed in the reign of Edward I. and now incorporates 6 towers and 2 bastions. The last Monarch to reside in the Tower of London was James I. The Crown Jewels came to the Tower in the reign of Henry III. All coinage used in Great Britain was minted in the Outer Ward of the Tower of London until 1810 when the Royal Mint was formed. The Tower of London has had a military garrison since 1078.

WELLINGTON MUSEUM, Apsley House, Hyde Park Corner, W.1.—Admission on weekdays and Bank Holidays, 10 to 6; Sundays, 2.30 to 6. Adults 1s., Children, 6d. Apsley House was designed by Robert Adam for Lord Bathurst and built 1771-8. It was bought in 1817 by the Duke of Wellington, who employed Benjamin Wyatt to enlarge it, face it with Bath stone and add the Corinthian portico. The Museum contains works of art and personal relics belonging to the 1st Duke of Wellington (1769-1852) and was given to the Nation by the present Duke, the gift being implemented by the Wellington Museum Act, 1947. It was first opened to the public in 1952, under the administration of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

WESTMINSTER HALL, S.W.1 (built by William Rufus, A.D. 1087-1100 and altered by Richard II., 1377-99), adjacent to and incorporated in the Houses of Parliament.—Westminster Hall is part of the Palace of Westminster and survived the fire, which destroyed the remainder of the Palace (Oct. 16, 1834). The Hall is 290 ft. long, 68 ft. wide, and 90 ft. high. The hammer beam roof of carved oak, dating from 1399, is one of the principal attractions. King Charles I. was tried in the Hall. Extensive repairs to the Hall have recently been carried out. For admission, see regulations as to Houses of Parliament.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE, Covent Garden, W.C.2.—Opera and Ballet throughout the year. The (third) Covent Garden Theatre was opened May 15, 1858 (the first was opened Dec. 7, 1732). General Administrator, D. L. Webster, Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, W.C.2.

BACH CHOIR.—The Bach Choir was formed in 1876 to give the first performance in England of Bach's Mass in B Minor. The conductor was Otto Goldschmidt and his wife Jenny Lind, the famous soprano, herself trained the lady members of the Choir. Musical Director, Dr. Reginald Jacques. Secretary, P. Raymond Cooper, 114, Rectory Road, West Tarring, Worthing.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL, Kensington Gore, S.W.7.—Royal Choral Society, Promenade, Symphony and other Concerts, Balls, Boxing Contests, Meetings, Exhibitions, Pageants, etc. Manager, Christopher Hopper; Secretary, Miss P. A. Scott.

KNELLER HALL, Twickenham.—Royal Military School of Music. The full band of 250 instrumentalists holds classical military band concerts in the grounds on Wednesdays throughout the summer season, commencing at 8 p.m.

JACQUES ORCHESTRA.—Founded 1936. Average number of concerts each year, 80. Has specialized in music of the 18th century and given first performances of many contemporary works. Annual performance of the St. Matthew Passion with Bach Choir at Royal Albert Hall. Serenade Concerts at Hampton Court Palace and Victoria and Albert Museum. Conductor, Dr. Reginald Jacques. Secretary, Miss G. K. Collar, The Watch House, Strand Lane, W.C.2.

ENVIRONS OF LONDON

BARNET AND HADLEY GREEN.—Scene of Battle, A.D. 1471. Hadley Woods.

BURNHAM BEECHES AND FLEET WOOD, Bucks.—Magnificent wooded scenery (425 acres), purchased by the Corporation of London for the benefit of the public in 1879; Fleet Wood (65 acres) presented in 1921. During summer omnibus runs daily, Sundays included, from Slough Station (Western Region), passing within 250 yards of "Gray's Elegy" Church, see "Stoke Poges."

BUSHY PARK (1,100 acres).—Adjoining Hampton Court, contains many fine trees and avenue of horse-chestnuts enclosed in a fourfold avenue of limes, planted by King William III. "Chestnut Sunday" (when the trees are in full bloom with their "candles") is usually about 1st to 15th May.

CHEQUERS, a country residence for Prime Ministers, was presented to the Nation (with an endowment to maintain the estate, etc.) by Lord and Lady Lee of Fareham, as the official country residence for the Prime Minister of the day, and the gift was approved by Parliament in the Chequers Estate Act, 1917. In 1921 the Chequers Estate of 700 acres was added to the gift by Lord Lee. Chequers is a mansion in Tudor style in the Chilterns, about 3 miles from Princes Risborough, Bucks, and contains a collection of Cromwellian portraits and relics.

CHILTERN HUNDREDS (Stoke, Burnham and Desborough, in Buckinghamshire).—No duly elected member of the Commons can resign his seat; he must apply for some office of profit under the Crown, and so vacate his seat under the Act of Settlement, 1707 (6 Anne, c. 7), and the usual practice is to apply for the Stewardship or the Chiltern Hundreds, or of the Manor of Poyning, or Northstead, or the Escheatorship of Munster, whereupon the seat is declared vacant (under the Place Act of 1742, which expressly permitted acceptance of such offices to serve as an excuse for resignation) and a new writ is issued by the Speaker.

CUFFLEY, Herts.—Memorial to Capt. W. L. Robinson, VC, on spot above which the first German Zeppelin (L 21) was destroyed.

DARWIN AND DOWN HOUSE, Downe, Farnborough, Kent.—Where Charles Darwin thought and worked for 40 years and died in 1882. Maintained by the British Association. Open free daily (except Fridays and Christmas Day) 11 to 5.

DULWICH, S.E.21 (5 miles from London), contains Dulwich College (founded by Edward Alleyn in 1576), the Horniman Museum and Dulwich Park (72 acres). The Dulwich Picture Gallery, built by Sir John Soane to house the collection bequeathed by the artist, Sir Francis Bourgeois, was damaged by enemy action in the Second World War. The pictures, however, were saved, and the gallery has been rebuilt with the aid of a grant from the Pilgrim Trust, and was reopened by Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother on April 27, 1953. In Dulwich Village the rural characteristics of the pre-suburban period are preserved.

ELTHAM, Kent (20 miles from London by Southern Region). Remains of 13th-15th century Eltham Palace, the birthplace of John of Eltham (1316), son of Edward II. The hall, built by Edward IV., contains fine hammer-beam roof of chestnut. In the churchyard of St. John the Baptist is the tomb of Thomas Doggett, the comedian and founder of the Thames Watermen's championship (Doggett's Coat and Badge).

ENFIELD, Middlesex (10 miles from London by Eastern Region).—Parish Church contains well-preserved brasses and monuments.

EPING FOREST (6,000 acres, originally purchased by the Corporation of London for £250,000 and thrown open to the public in 1882; the present forest is 12 miles long by 1 to 2 miles wide, about one-tenth of its original area). LOUGHTON, BUCKHURST HILL, CHINGFORD, HIGH BEECH (London Transport and Eastern Region). Beautiful forest scenery.

ETON COLLEGE.—22 miles from London. The most famous of English schools, founded by Henry VI. in 1440, the scholars numbering 1,160 in July, 1952. Buildings date from 1442.

GRAVESEND, a borough and river port, 22 miles from London (Southern Region). St. George's Church (1727) contains memorials to Princess Pocahontas, who was buried in the former church in 1617.

GREENWICH, S.E.10.—A south-eastern metropolitan borough with a frontage of 4½ miles on the Thames. Greenwich Hospital (since 1873, the Royal Naval College) was built by Charles II., from designs by Inigo Jones, and by Queen Anne and William III., from designs by Wren, on the site of an ancient royal palace, and of the more recent Placentia, an enlarged edition of the palace, constructed by Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester (1391-1447), son of Henry IV. Henry VIII., Queen Mary I. and Queen Elizabeth I. were born in the Royal Palace (which reverted to the Crown in 1447) and King Edward VI. died there. In the principal quadrangle is a marble statue of George II., by Rysbrack. (For National Maritime Museum, see p. 427). Chapel open daily except Sundays and Fridays, and after 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Greenwich Park (185 acres) was enclosed by Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, and laid out by Charles II., from the designs of Le Nôtre. On a hill in Greenwich Park is the old Royal Observatory (founded 1675), which is now for the most part removed to Herstmonceux Castle, Sussex (see p. 432). Part of its buildings at Greenwich have been taken over by the Maritime Museum. The parish church of Greenwich (St. Alfege) was rebuilt by Hawksmoor (Wren's pupil) in 1718, and contains a pulpit and other carvings attributed to Grinling Gibbons. It was much damaged in the 1939-45 War. General Wolfe (Heights of Abraham) and Tallis ("the father of Church Music") are buried in the church. Henry VIII. was christened in the former church. The Ministerial Whitebait Dinner, at the "Ship" Hotel, was held in 1894.

HAM HOUSE, Petersham.—A notable example of 17th-century domestic architecture, long the home of the Tollemache family (Earls of Dysart). Now the property of the National Trust, which has let it on a long lease to the Ministry of Works. The contents, described as "probably the finest and most varied collection of Charles II.'s reign to survive," were purchased by the Nation, and the house is administered by the Victoria and Albert Museum. The house was opened to the public in May, 1950, and may be seen on weekdays (April-October) from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on Sunday from 2.30 to 6 p.m.; (November-March) weekdays 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays 2.30 to 4 p.m. Admission, 1s.

HAMPTON COURT.—Sixteenth-century Palace built by Cardinal Wolsey, with additions by Sir Christopher Wren for William and Mary, 15 miles from London. Fine view of river. Beautiful gardens with maze and prolific grape vine (planted in 1768). Old Royal Apartments and collection of pictures. Tennis Court, built by King Henry VIII. in 1530. The Palace is closed on Christmas Day and Good Friday. The State Apartments and Great Hall are open every weekday from 10 a.m. and on Sundays from 2 p.m. Hours of closing, May to Sept. 6 p.m.; March, April and Oct. 5 p.m.; Nov., Dec., Jan. and Feb. 4 p.m. Admission, Mon., Tues., Wed., Thur. and Fri., 1s.; Sat., 6d. (children half-price). Admission to the Tudor Kitchen, Wine Cellars and Great Hall cellars, 3d. (inclusive charge), no half-price. Orangery (Mantegna Pictures) open as State Apartments, 3d., no half-price. Sun. and Bank Holidays, free. Tennis Court open daily from 2 p.m. till time of closing of State Apartments, April to Sept. Admission 3d. The Vine, admission 2d., and the Maze, admission 3d., are open daily from 11 a.m. to dusk. Tickets obtainable at the King's Staircase. The Banqueting House is open on Mon., Tues., Thurs. and Fri., from 2 to 6 p.m. Admission 1s. Refreshments can be obtained in the Tilt Yard gardens during the summer season. Bushy Park adjoins the Lion Gates of Hampton Court Palace.

HARROW-ON-THE-HILL.—10 miles by Metropolitan and other railways. Large public school (about 550 scholars), founded by John Lyon in 1577. The "Fourth Form Room" dates from 1608.

JORDANS AND CHALFONT ST. GILES, near Beaconsfield, Bucks, contain the Old Quaker Meeting House (1688) at Jordans, in the burial ground of which lies William Penn (Pennsylvania); a barn built out of the timbers of the Mayflower by the 17th-century owner of Jordans (Gardener). At Chalfont St. Giles is the cottage where Milton lived during the Great Plague (1665-1666).

KINGSTON-UPON-THAMES, Surrey (about 22 miles from London), is the ancient place of coronation of the Kings of Saxon England. The Coronation Stone (hence the name "King's Stone") is preserved within railings adjoining the Guildhall.

OSTERLEY PARK, Isleworth.—House and park of 300 acres given to the National Trust by the Earl of Jersey in 1946. The contents and large collection of pictures were left on loan. Part of the Elizabethan house, built for Sir Thomas Gresham, remains, but it was largely remodelled by Robert Adam, and the staterooms are among the best examples of Adam decoration. It was opened to the public in 1953. (Hours of opening, Mon. to Sat., 10 to 6; Sun., 2.30 to 6, April 1 to September 30 only. Admission 1s., Children 6d.)

RICHMOND, Surrey, contains the red brick gateway of Richmond Palace (Henry VII., 1485-1509) and buildings of the Jacobean, Queen Anne, and early Georgian periods, including White Lodge in Richmond Park, the former home of Queen Mary's mother (the Duke of Windsor was born there, June 23, 1894). The Star and Garter Home for Disabled Soldiers, Sailors, and Airmen (the Women's Memorial of the Great War) was opened by Queen Mary in 1924. Richmond Park (2,358 acres) contains herds of fallow and red deer. From the Terrace Gardens, Richmond Hill, can be obtained a wonderful view of the Valley of the Thames.

RUNNIMIDE.—A meadow of about 100 acres, on S. bank of Thames (part of the Crown Lands), between Windsor and Staines. From June 15-23, 1215, the hostile Barons encamped on this meadow during negotiations with King John, who rode over each day from Windsor. The 48 "Articles of the Barons" were accepted by the King on June 15, and were subsequently embodied in a charter, since known as Magna Carta, of which several copies were sealed on June 19. About half a mile N.E. of the meadow is Magna Carta Island (claimed as the actual site of the sealing), presented to the Nation in 1930 by Lady Fairhaven and her sons.

RYE HOUSE, at Hoddesdon, on the River Lea. Scene of the celebrated plot. Old castle and dungeons, pictures, oak fireplaces, chests and panels; Queen Elizabeth I's bed. The Great Bed of Ware (mentioned in "Twelfth Night"), formerly at Rye House, is now at the Victoria and Albert Museum.

ST. ALBANS.—A city in Hertfordshire, on the river Ver, 22 miles N.W. of London. The abbey church, built partly of materials from the old Roman city of Verulamium by Paul of Caen, was consecrated in 1115. Parts still remain of the Norman structure. The city was the scene of the overthrow of Henry VI. in 1455, and of the Earl of Warwick in 1461. On a printing press set up in the abbey the first English translation of the Bible was printed. The site of the pre-Roman city of King Tasciovanus and the remains of the ancient City of Verulamium, with well preserved theatre and many other features, excavated in recent years. St. Michael's Church, with tomb of Lord Bacon.

STORE POGES (2 miles from Slough station, Western Region) contains the 14th-century Church with the Churchyard of Gray's "Elegy" and "Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College." The poet was buried in the church in 1771.

SYON HOUSE, Brentford.—The town seat of the Duke of Northumberland. The house is part of the buildings of the Nunnery of Syon, erected by permission of Henry VI. in 1431. At the Dissolution of the Nunnery the Estate reverted to the Crown. In 1578 it was granted to the 9th Earl of Northumberland and in 1632 the house was repaired under superintendence of Inigo Jones. In 1766 the interior was transformed by Robert Adam, who also built the entrance gateway. The lion on the river-front was brought here in 1874 on the demolition of Northumberland House in the Strand. Open (July–Sept.) Weekdays except Monday; (June and October) Weds.–Sat. only, 1 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. Admission 2s. 6d.; Children, 1s.

WALTHAM ABBEY (OF WALTHAM HOLY CROSS), 13 miles from London (Eastern Region).—The Abbey ruins, Harold's Bridge (12th century), the Nave of the former cruciform Abbey Church (the oldest Norman building in England (consecrated May 3, 1066) and the traditional burial place of King Harold II. (1066), and a Lady Chapel of Edward II., with crypt below. New evidence of the position and style of several buildings, which once stood on the site of the Augustinian monastery, were revealed by the prolonged drought in the summer of 1933. At Waltham Cross, 1 mile from the Abbey, is one of the crosses (partly restored) erected by Edward I. to mark a resting place of the corpse of Queen Eleanor on its way to Westminster Abbey. (Ten crosses were erected, but only those at Geddington, Northampton and Waltham remain; "Charing" Cross originally stood on the spot now occupied by the statue of Charles I. at Whitehall.)

WINDSOR CASTLE (begun by William the Conqueror, A.D. 1066–87).—22 miles from London, by Western and Southern Regions. The Castle Precincts are open daily, free of charge, from 10 a.m. to sunset. Official Guides are in attendance from 10 to 4, Oct. to March, and from 10 to 5, April to Sept. When the Court is not in residence, the State Apartments of Windsor Castle are open to the public, during Her Majesty's pleasure, on every weekday. When the State Apartments are open the charges for admission are for Adults, 1s., and for Children, 6d. By the Queen's command, the proceeds go to charities. An authorized guide book can be obtained at the office, price 1s. 3d. The hours of admission to the State Apartments are from April 1 to May 31, and Oct. 1 to 31 between 11 and 4; June 1 to Sept. 30, 11 to 5; and from Nov. 1 to March 31, between 11 and 3. The Queen's Dolls' House and the Old Master Drawings can be seen on the same days and hours as the State Apartments, admission 6d. each person to each. The Albert Memorial Chapel is open on the same days and at the same hours as the State Apartments (except on Fridays and between 1 and 2 p.m.); the Round Tower or Keep is open from April 1 to Sept. 30, the same days and hours as the State Apartments. Admission, free. St. George's Chapel may be viewed on weekdays, between 11 a.m. and 3.45 p.m.; Sundays, 2.30 to 4 p.m. Admission, 1s. per person, except at service times. The Chapel is usually closed during January. The Daily Services in the Chapel are open to the public. The Curfew Tower may be seen under the guidance of the Keeper, to whom application must be made at the entrance (Admission 6d.). The Royal Mausoleum, Frogmore Gardens, Home Park, is open only on Whit Monday, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission Free.

WOOLWICH.—9 miles from London; (Southern Region), Dockyard and Arsenal Station for Barracks, Retunda, etc. Royal Garrison Church; Old Dockyard; Extensive Barracks for Royal Artillery, Royal Army Service Corps, etc. Common for military evolutions.

THE PRINCIPAL ENGLISH CITIES

BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM (Warwickshire) is the second City in England and the chief centre of the hardware trade. It is practically equidistant from the other important trade centres in the country, being 111 miles from London, 85 miles from Manchester and 91 miles from Bristol. The municipal area is 51,147 acres (about 80 square miles), with a population (1951 census preliminary) of 1,112,340; estimated, June, 1952, 1,119,000.

It is estimated that over 1,500 distinct trades are carried on in the city, the chief industries being the manufacture of buttons, bedsteads, plastic goods, chocolate, chemicals, cycles, electroplate, guns, magnetos, railway rolling-stock, glass, motor-cars and motor-cycles, motor tyres, nuts and bolts, pens and nibs, tubes, tyre valves, tools, toys, electrical apparatus, wire, wireless sets, jewellery and brass working, etc.

Water is supplied by the City Corporation, who also own the transport-undertaking, markets and Municipal Bank. The first section of Birmingham's new Hospital Centre, erected at Edgbaston at a cost of approximately £1,000,000, is claimed to be the finest of its type in Europe. The city has plans for the construction of an inner ring road round the centre of the city, with many improvements in the shopping centre and a re-development on industrial areas. The first section of a new Civic Centre was completed early in the war of 1939–45, and a Municipal Restaurant service is now in operation. The water supply from Mid-Wales has been further improved by the damming of the Claerwen at a cost of approximately £1,700,000.

The principal buildings are the Town Hall, built in 1832–1850; the Council House and Corporation Art Gallery and Museum (1878); the University (1909); the Central Library; the 13th century Church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1873); the Cathedral (formerly St. Philip's Church), the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Chad (Pugin), and the Methodist Central Hall. Birmingham was incorporated as a borough in 1838, and was created a city in 1889; it is governed by a Lord Mayor and City Council of 38 Aldermen and 114 Councillors. The generally accepted derivation of "Birmingham" is the ham or dwelling-place of the ing or the family of Berm, presumed to have been a Saxon. Between the 11th and 16th centuries, the de Berminghams were Lords of the Manor.

Lord Mayor and Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953–54), G. H. W. Griffiths. Recorder, Paul E. Sandlands, O.B.E., Q.C. (1944). Stipendiary Magistrate, John Frederic Milward (1951).

Town Clerk, J. F. Gregg (1949). Clerk of the Peace, G. M. Butts.

LIVERPOOL

LIVERPOOL (Lancashire), on the right bank of the river Mersey, 3 miles from the Irish Sea and 194 miles N.W. of London, is one of the greatest trading centres of the world and the principal port in the United Kingdom for the Atlantic trade. The municipal area is 30,701 acres (which includes 2,883 acres in the bed of the river Mersey) (about 43 square miles, excluding the bed of the river), with a population at the census of 1951 of 789,532; estimated, June, 1952, 785,500. The docks on both sides of the river have a linear quayside of about 38 miles, and the Gladstone dock can accommodate the largest vessels afloat. The dock authority is the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board. A system of harbour supervision radar was inaugurated on July 31, 1948. The chief import is grain, those next in importance being sugar, fruit, oil, timber, cotton and provisions.

The Corporation owns large industrial estates at Speke, Kirkby and Aintree, on which many modern factories have been built. Speke and Aintree are now almost fully developed, and at Kirkby new land is constantly being leased, bringing many new industries into the area. In 1943 a lease for 99 years was taken of the Elizabethan mansion at Speke Hall at a nominal rent.

The principal buildings are the Cathedral, erected from the designs of Sir Giles Gilbert Scott and consecrated in 1924; when completed this will be the largest ecclesiastical building in England; St. George's Hall, erected 1838-1854, and regarded as one of the finest modern examples of classical architecture; the Town Hall, erected 1754 from the designs of Wood; the Walker Art Gallery; the University; the Royal Infirmary; the Municipal Offices; and the Philharmonic Hall. A Roman Catholic Cathedral, designed to be the largest in the world, is in course of erection at Brownlow Hill.

The Mersey Tunnel (Queensway) connecting Liverpool and Birkenhead is one of the most important engineering achievements of recent years; begun in 1925, it was opened to traffic on July 18, 1933, the total cost being estimated at £7,077,800. In 1952-53 nearly 8,000,000 vehicles passed through it.

Liverpool was incorporated as a borough early in the 13th century and was created a city in 1880. The Corporation consists of a Lord Mayor and a City Council which comprises 40 Aldermen and 120 Councillors. The name is believed to be derived from Norse words meaning the "Pool of the Slopes."

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), W. J. Tristram.
Recorder, Henry Ince Nelson, Q.C. (1950).
Stipendiary Magistrate, Arthur McFarland (1947).
President, Court of Passage, G. Glynn Blackledge, M.C., Q.C. (1950).
Town Clerk, T. Aiker (1947).
Clerk of the Peace, J. M. Marshall (1949).

MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER (Lancashire) (the Mancunium of the Romans, who occupied it in A.D. 78) is the centre of the world's cotton trade, 289 miles N.W. of London. The municipal area is 27,255 acres (about 43 square miles), the population at the census of 1951 being 703,175; estimated, June, 1952, 705,400.

Manchester is the distributing centre of the cotton spinning and weaving of Lancashire for the whole world, and of butter and foodstuffs for the most densely populated part of England. Within 25 miles of its centre a population of 4,000,000 lives and works. It also contains large engineering and machinery works and factories of hats, clothing, india-rubber goods, chemicals, etc. The city is connected with the sea by the Manchester Ship Canal (opened in 1894), which has a total length of 35½ miles, an excavated depth of 28 to 30 feet, and a general excavated bottom width of 120 feet.

The principal buildings are the Town Hall, erected in 1877 from the designs of Alfred Waterhouse, R.A., together with a large extension; the Royal Exchange, built in 1869 and enlarged in 1921; the Central Library (1934); the Art Gallery; the Whitworth Institute; the 17th century Chetham Library; the Rylands Library (1839), which includes the Althorp collection; the University (Owens College); the 15th century Cathedral (formerly the parish church) and the Free Trade Hall, re-opened in 1951 after air-raid destruction during the war. Manchester is one of the principal centres of political, literary and scientific advancement, and the Hallé Concerts have placed the city in the forefront of musical development. The Manchester Guardian newspaper exercises a widespread influence throughout the English-speaking world.

The town received a charter of incorporation in 1838 and was created a city in 1853. The City Council consists of 36 Aldermen and 208 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), A. Moss.
Recorder, Sir Noel Barre Goldie, Q.C. (1935).
Stipendiary Magistrate, F. B. Turner (1951).
Town Clerk, Philip B. Dingle (1944).
Clerk of the Peace, E. M. Redhead (1923).

SHEFFIELD

SHEFFIELD (Yorkshire, West Riding), the centre of the special steel and cutlery trades, is situated in the extreme south of Yorkshire, 159 miles N.N.W. of London, at the junction of the Sheaf. Porter, Rivelin and Loxley with the river Don. The city has an area of 39,598 acres (nearly 62 square miles), including 3,166 acres of parks and woodland, and a population (1951 census preliminary) of 512,834; estimated, June, 1952, 510,900. The manufacture of cutlery has been carried on at least since the fifteenth century and probably much earlier; since the invention of the crucible steel process of Benjamin Huntsman about 1740 the special steel trade has rivalled cutlery in fame. Fine steel and fine cutlery are still the staple products; other industries of more recent growth which have evolved naturally from the older include the manufacture of armour plate, guns, rails, tyres, axles, engine castings, general machinery, etc., and precision tools and instruments. Old Sheffield plate (silver sealed to copper by process of fusion, invented by Thomas Boulsover in 1742, and made from that date until it was superseded by electroplating) is greatly prized by collectors, and there is still a considerable silver and plate trade. The city is becoming a world centre for research in the manufacture and use of glass. Iron and brass founding, silver refining, brush-making, the making of confectionery, and canning are also important.

The parish church of St. Peter and St. Paul, founded in the twelfth century, became the Cathedral Church of the Diocese of Sheffield in 1914. It was rebuilt in the 15th century, and the tower and part of the chancel of that building remain, though the rest is modern. The principal modern buildings are the Town Hall (1897 and 1923), the Cutler's Hall (1832), City Museum (1937), the University (1905), City Hall (1932), and Central Library and Graves' Art Gallery (1934). Sheffield was created a borough on Aug. 24, 1843, a county borough in 1888 and a city in 1893, the Mayor becoming a Lord Mayor in 1897. The Corporation consists of 25 Aldermen and 75 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), O. S. Holmes.
Recorder, N. L. C. Macaskie, Q.C. (1941).
Master Cutler (1953-54) (Master of the Company of Cutlers in Hallamshire), J. L. Walsh.
Town Clerk, John Heys, C.B.E. (1942).
Clerk of the Peace, Philip Howe (1948).

LEEDS

LEEDS (Yorkshire, West Riding) is favourably situated in the coal and iron districts of England, 185 miles N.N.W. of London, and is a centre of the woollen industry and the wholesale clothing trade. The city has also the largest share of the leather trade of the United Kingdom, in addition to large rope works, printing works, and factories of thread, glass and earthenware, with metal casting, machinery and machine tools, steam engines, railway wagons, and other engineering works. Leeds is connected with the Mersey in the west by the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, with the Humber in the east by the Aire and Calder Navigation, and is an important railway centre.

The municipal area is 38,297½ acres (nearly 60 square miles), the population at the census of 1951 being 504,954; estimated, June, 1952, 504,800.

The principal buildings are the Civic Hall (opened by King George V. in 1933), the Town Hall (1858), the Philosophical Hall, the Municipal Buildings and Art Gallery (1884), the University and the Leeds Institute (1865). The Parish Church (St. Peter's) was rebuilt in 1840; the 17th century St. John's Church has a fine interior with a famous Renaissance screen; the 17th century Mill Hill Chapel was rebuilt in 1849. Kirkstall Abbey (about 3 miles from the centre of the city), founded by Henry de Laci in 1152, is one of the most complete examples of Cistercian houses now remaining. Temple Newsam, birthplace of Lord Darnley, was acquired by the Corporation in 1922. The present mansion, a stately edifice in red brick, was built by Sir Arthur Ingram in 1620. Adel Church, about 3½ miles from the centre of the city, is a fine Norman structure.

Leeds was first incorporated by Charles I. in 1626, made a county borough in 1889, and was created a city in 1893. The Lord Mayor presides; over a corporation of 28 Aldermen and 84 Councillors. The earliest forms of the name are Loid or Ledes, the origin of which is obscure.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), D. G. Cowling.

Recorder, G. R. Hinchcliffe, Q.C. (1950).

Stipendiary Magistrate, Ralph Cleworth, Q.C. (1950).

Clerk of the Peace, T. A. Whittington (1952).

Town Clerk, R. Crute (1952).

BRISTOL

BRISTOL, situated on the borders of Gloucestershire and Somerset, is a City and County of itself, and is 119 miles W. of London. The present municipal area is 26,345 acres, with a population, at the census of 1951, of 442,281; estimated, June, 1952, 443,900.

The principal industries are aircraft design and construction, paints, jams, pickles, preserves, milling, shipbuilding, rope making, chocolate, sugar and tobacco factories, motor and general engineering, clothing, printing, paper bag and cardboard making, glass and earthenware, soap, leather and chemical works, breweries, and copper, lead and iron works. Bristol is noted for its maritime history and the docks comprised within the Port are the City Docks, 6 miles from the entrance to the river Avon; the Royal Edward and Avonmouth Docks, at the mouth of the river; and the Portishead Docks, to the westward of the river entrance. The principal imports are grain, cereal products, feeding stuffs, bananas and other fruit, provisions, frozen meat, sugar, metals, ores, oil-seeds, paper, petroleum and petroleum spirit, timber, tobacco, wood pulp and general merchandise, and the chief exports are machinery, chemicals, stoneware, unmanufactured clay, cars, tractors and prefabricated buildings.

The chief buildings, in addition to the 14th century Cathedral (with later additions), with Norman Chapter House and gateway, the 14th century Church of St. Mary, Redcliffe (described by Queen Elizabeth I as "the fairest, goodliest, and most famous parish church in England"), and Wesley's Chapel, Broadmead, are the Merchant Venturers' Almshouses, the Council House, Guildhall, Exchange (erected from the designs of John Wood in 1743), Art Gallery, Central Library, Cabot Tower, the University and Clifton College, Red Lodge (Tudor), Georgian House, and Blaise Castle and Mansion with Folk Museum. The Clifton Suspension Bridge, with a span of 702 feet over the Avon, was projected by Brunel in 1836 but was not completed until 1864. The beautiful Clifton Down adjoins Durham Down (making a total of 442 acres), with Leigh Woods and Nightingale Valley on the opposite side of the river.

Bristol was a Royal Borough before the Norman Conquest. In 1293 it received from Edward III a charter granting it county status and in 1899 its Mayor became a Lord Mayor. The Corporation includes 28 Aldermen and 84 Councillors. The earliest forms of the name are Bristowe and Bristolw.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), K. A. L. Brown.

High Steward and Lord Lieutenant, His Grace the Duke of Beaufort, K.G., P.C., G.C.V.O.

Recorder, G. D. Roberts, O.B.E., Q.C. (1945).

Town Clerk, Alexander Pickard, C.B.E. (1945).

Clerk of the Peace, T. D. Corpe.

KINGSTON UPON HULL

HULL (officially "Kingston upon Hull") is situated in the East Riding of Yorkshire, at the junction of the Hull with the Humber, 22 miles from the North Sea and 181 miles N. of London. The municipal area is 14,433 acres, with a population of 299,068 at the census of 1951; estimated, June, 1952, 299,400.

Hull is the third port in the United Kingdom and the chief port of North-Eastern England. Eight docks cover a water area of 200 acres and are equipped with every modern appliance for the rapid handling of cargoes. Hull has the reputation of being the cheapest port in the U.K. Hull is a large oil-extracting centre, has great saw-milling, engineering and chemical industries, is the premier fishing port of the U.K. and an important centre of the flour-milling industry.

The chief buildings, in addition to the Docks, are the Parish Church (Holy Trinity), 272 feet in length (the longest parish church in England), the Guildhall (1715), Exchange (1866), Chamber of Commerce, Corn Exchange, Market Hall, City Hall, Custom House, Dock Offices, Wilberforce House, Trinity House (1753), the Ferens Art Gallery, and the University College.

The city suffered heavy damage through air raids during the war and a reconstructional scheme covering the greater part is in progress.

The name of Wyke-upon-Hull was changed to Kingston upon Hull by Edward I. in the 13th century. The town was incorporated in 1440 and made a county borough in 1888. The Corporation consists of a Lord Mayor, 21 Aldermen and 63 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), A. Richardson.

Recorder, H. B. H. Hylton-Foster, Q.C., M.P. (1950).

Stipendiary Magistrate, D. N. O'Sullivan (1952).

Town Clerk, E. H. Bullock (1945).

Clerk of the Peace, E. H. Bullock.

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE (Northumberland), a City and a County on the north bank of the Tyne estuary, 8 miles from the North Sea and 272 miles N. of London, has an area of 11,402 acres (18 square miles) and a population of 291,723 at the census of 1951: estimated, June, 1952, 289,800.

The city is conveniently placed on the estuary, in the centre of the Northumberland and Durham coalfields. The exports of the Port of Newcastle upon Tyne (River Tyne) include coal and coke, sulphate of ammonia, oil fuel (as cargo and bunkers), machinery, iron and steel manufacture, tar and pitch, petroleum spirit and other oils, textiles, firebricks and fireclay goods, grain and animal feeding stuffs; the chief imports are iron ore, metals and minerals, iron and steel manufactures and scrap, oil fuels and other oils, petroleum spirit, timber, grain, fertilisers, cement, fish, fruit and vegetables, and provisions. The chief industries are coal mining, shipbuilding, ship repairing, iron and steel manufactures, engineering and boiler-making shops, locomotives, lead works, chemical manufactures, flour milling, etc.

The principal buildings include the 12th century "New" Castle, of which the walls, keep and chapel are well preserved, the Cathedral (St. Nicholas), St. Andrew's Church (11th century), St. John's (12th century), St. George, Jesmond, the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Hexham and Newcastle, Holy Trinity War Memorial, Guildhall (1658) Moot Hall (1810), Exchange (1860), Central Public Library and Laing Art Gallery and Museum, Wood Memorial Hall (1870), and the Custom House. The beauty of Jesmond Dene (gift of Lord Armstrong) is much appreciated by visitors, as well as the Town Moor, a tract of over 900 acres of open grassland. The city is connected with the south bank of the Tyne by six bridges.

The pre-Norman borough of Monkchester was re-named Newcastle in the 11th century when the castle was erected as a defence against the Scots. In 1400 it was made a county and in 1589 was incorporated. The City Corporation now comprises a Lord Mayor (1906), 19 Aldermen and 57 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), W. McKeag.

Recorder, Sir Godfrey Russell Vick, Q.C. (1939).

Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, John Atkinson (1937).

NOTTINGHAM

NOTTINGHAM (Nottinghamshire) stands on the River Trent, 124 miles N.N.W. of London in one of the most valuable coalfields of the country with excellent railway, water (being connected by canal with the Atlantic and the North Sea), and road facilities. The municipal area is 18,364 acres and population, at the census of 1951, 306,008; estimated, June, 1952, 306,650.

The principal industries are hosiery, lace, bleaching, dyeing and spinning, tanning, engineering and cycle works, brewing, the manufacture of tobacco, chemicals, furniture, typewriters, and mechanical products.

Most public services are owned by the municipality. The amenities of the city include numerous public baths, libraries and parks, an art gallery and two museums. Approximately twenty-five thousand houses have been built by the Nottingham Corporation. The famous Nottingham Goose Fair is held in October each year.

The chief buildings are the 11th century Nottingham Castle (restored in 1878), and now the City Museum and Gallery of Art), Wollaton Hall (1580-88) owned by the Corporation and now a Natural History Museum, St. Mary's, St. Peter's, and St. Nicholas's Churches, the Roman Catholic Cathedral (Pugin, 1842-4), the Council House (1920), the Guildhall and Court House (1888), Shire Hall Albert Hall, the University and Newstead Abbey, home of Lord Byron.

Snotengaham or Notingeham, "the home of the sons of Snod" (the Wise), is the Anglo-Saxon name for the Celtic Tuigogobauc, "Cave Homes." The city possesses a Charter of Henry II., and was created a city in 1897. The Corporation comprises 17 Aldermen and 52 Councillors (including the Lord Mayor and Sheriff).

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), C. Coffey.

Recorder, Christopher Nyholm Shawcross, Q.C. (1950).

Town Clerk, T. J. Owen.

Clerk of the Peace, W. D. Crane.

BRADFORD

BRADFORD (Yorkshire, West Riding), 192 miles N.N.W. of London and 8 miles W. of Leeds, in the coal and iron district, is a centre of the woollen and worsted trade. The city is connected with the Mersey in the west and with the Humber in the east by canals, and is an important railway centre. The municipal area is 25,504 acres (about 40 square miles), with a population at the 1951 Census of 292,394; estimated June, 1952, 288,000.

The principal textile industries are worsteds, woollens, silks and cottons, and there are also important engineering and iron works and quarries of freestone.

The chief public buildings, in addition to the 15th century Cathedral (formerly the Parish Church) and Bolling Hall (14th century), are the Town Hall (1873), the tower of which contains a clock with dials, chimes and a carillon, Exchange (1867), Cartwright Memorial Hall (1904) commemorating the inventor of the power loom, the Windsor Baths and Public Halls (1905), Grammar School (Charter, 1662), St. George's Hall (Concert Hall, 1853), Technical College (1882), the Mechanics' Institute (1832), Kirkgate Market Hall, and Britannia House (1933).

The Saxon township was created a parliamentary borough in 1832, a borough in 1847, a county borough in 1888, and a city in 1907. The Corporation consists of a Lord Mayor, 20 Aldermen and 60 Councillors.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), A. Crowther.

Recorder, Frank Beverley, M.C. (1920).

Town Clerk, W. H. Leatham (1946).

Clerk of the Peace, P. Denny.

LEICESTER

LEICESTER is situated geographically in the centre of England, 100 miles north of London. The City dates back to pre-Roman times and was one of the five Danish Burhs. In 1589 Queen Elizabeth I granted a Charter to the City and the ancient title was confirmed by Letters Patent in 1929. An Assize Court was established at Leicester Castle at the time of Edward I and the Castle is still so used. The title of Lord Mayor was conferred upon the Chief Magistrate in 1928. Leicester has an area of 16,989 acres and a population (1951 census preliminary) of 285,061; estimated, June, 1952, 285,900.

The principal industries of the city are hosiery, boots and shoes, and light engineering. The growth of Leicester as a hosiery centre increased rapidly from the introduction there of the first stocking frame in 1670; in 1833 there were 14,000 knitting frames in the city, which to-day has some of the largest hosiery factories in the world. Hosiery produced includes stockings and every kind of woollen and cotton underwear, outerwear, fabrics and gloves, much of which is exported. Leicester is also a centre for the ancillary industries.

The manufacture of boots and shoes is the second largest industry centred in Leicester. This industry specializes in ladies' and children's shoes and sports footwear. It is the centre for wholesaling and distribution and, as in the case of hosiery, the boot and shoe industry has attracted to Leicester many of the ancillary trades. The production of boot and shoe manufacturing machinery and plant is carried out on a very large scale.

Engineering, the third major industry of Leicester, developed partly for the supply of machinery to the hosiery and boot and shoe industries and in addition to supplying this machinery to all parts of the country Leicester has developed a large export trade. Many other branches of engineering are established in the city. Printing and the manufacture of motor tyres and cellulose goods are also carried on.

The principal buildings in the city are the Town Hall, Colleges of Art and Technology; De Montfort Hall, one of the finest concert halls in the provinces, with accommodation for over 3,000 persons, and the Museum and Art Gallery. The ancient Churches of St. Martin (now Leicester Cathedral), St. Nicholas, St. Margaret, All Saints, St. Mary de Castro, and buildings such as the Guildhall, the 14th century Newarke Gate, the Castle and site of a Roman Forum, still exist. Leicester has a large number of parks and open spaces.

Principal City Officers.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), C. R. Keene, C.B.E.
Recorder, G. J. Pauli, Q.C. (1944).
Town Clerk, K. Goodacre, T.D.
Clerk of the Peace, T. E. Toller.

OXFORD

OXFORD is a University City, an important industrial centre, and a county, assize, and market town.

It has been a City from time immemorial and a County Borough since 1889. It has an area of 8,416 acres, a population of 107,100 (Registrar-General's 1952 estimate) and a rateable value of £1,029,198. Oxford is a Parliamentary constituency returning one member and is governed by a Council of 68 members of whom 12 are, by special enactment, elected by the University.

The University (see also pp. 514-6) has 21 Colleges, 1 Public and 2 Private Halls, 2 New Foundations, 1 Society, and 5 Societies of Women Students. There are 9,320 undergraduates.

Industry, consisting of printing and bookbinding, and the making of agricultural implements and marmalade, played a minor part in Oxford until the motor industry was established in 1912. To-day this and the adjoining pressed steel works employ about 15,000.

The City has filled a notable place in the story of the nation, first entering real history in A.D. 912 when, according to the Old English Chronicle, possession of it was taken by King Edward the Elder. It had a Mayor by 1122. It was a favourite residence of the Plantagenets, who gave the City its earliest charters and who built Beaumont Palace where Richard Cœur de Lion was born in 1157. The origins of the University are obscure, but it seems clear that it was already in existence in 1187, and by 1212 had a Chancellor. Colleges began to come into existence during the thirteenth century, the earliest being University, Balliol and Merton Colleges. The University became sufficiently powerful to secure the aid of the King to establish an ascendancy over the Corporation, the outward forms of which were observed until 1825.

It is for its architecture that Oxford is of most interest to the visitor, its oldest specimens being the reputed Saxon tower of St. Michael's church, the remains of the Norman castle and city walls and the Norman church of St. Peter in the East. It is chiefly famous, however, for its Gothic buildings, such as the Divinity Schools, the Old Library at Merton College, William of Wykeham's New College, Magdalen College and Christ Church and many other college buildings. Later centuries are not represented by so many examples, but mention can be made of the exquisite Laudian quadrangle at St. John's College, the renaissance Sheldonian Theatre by Wren, Trinity College chapel, and All Saints Church; Hawksmoor's mock-Gothic at All Souls College, and the superb example of eighteenth-century architecture afforded by Queen's College. In addition to individual buildings, High Street and Radcliffe Square, just off it, both form architectural compositions of great beauty. Most of the Colleges have gardens, those of Magdalen, New College, St. John's (designed by "Capability" Brown) and Worcester being the largest.

The visitor will always find some of the college chapels, halls and gardens open for public inspection between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Principal City Officers.

Mayor (1953-54), A. B. Brown.
High Steward, The Duke of Marlborough.
Recorder, W. J. R. Diplock, Q.C.
Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, Harry Plowman, C.B.E.

CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, a settlement far older than its ancient University, lies on the Cam or Granta, 51 miles north of London and 65 miles south-west of Norwich. Its population in 1951, when it was raised to the dignity of a City, was 81,463. Its area is 10,060 acres.

The city is a parliamentary and quarter sessions borough, county town and regional headquarters. Its industries, which include radio and electronics, flour milling, cement making and the manufacture of scientific instruments, are extensive but nowhere obtrusive. Among its open spaces are Jesus Green, Sheep's Green, Coe Fen, Parker's Piece, Christ's Pieces, the University Botanic Garden, and the Backs, or lawns and gardens through which the Cam winds behind the principal line of college buildings. East of the Cam, King's Parade, upon which stand Great St. Mary's Church, Gibbs' Senate House and King's College Chapel with Wilkins' screen, joins Trumpington Street to form one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in Europe.

University and College buildings provide the outstanding features of Cambridge architecture but several churches (especially St. Benet's, the oldest building in the City, and St. Sepulchre's, the Round Church) also make notable contributions. The modern Guildhall (1939) stands on a site of which at least part has held municipal buildings since 1224.

The City Council consists of a Mayor, 14 Aldermen and 42 Councillors. Four of the Councillors are elected by the Colleges and Halls and two by Grace of the Senate of the University. Two of the Aldermen are elected by the Council from the University and College representatives.

Principal City Officers

Mayor (1953-54), T. H. Amey.
Recorder, A. M. S. Stevenson, Q.C.
High Steward, Professor G. M. Trevelyan, O.M.,
Litt.D.
Town Clerk, A. H. I. Swift.
Clerk of the Peace, C. H. Kemp.

STRATFORD UPON AVON

STRATFORD UPON AVON (a municipal borough in Warwickshire, on the banks of the River Avon) had a population of 11,605 at the Census of 1931 (1951 census preliminary, 14,980); estimated, June, 1952, 14,610. As the birthplace of Shakespeare the borough is visited annually by travellers from all parts.

Shakespeare's Birthplace contains library of rare editions, transcripts of Midland parish registers, deeds, manor rolls, pictures, and relics.

Guild Chapel and Guildhall.—Founded 1269. In the old hall young Shakespeare could witness strolling companies performing. In the chapel are mural paintings, done by mediæval artists.

Hall's Croft.—Unaltered old-timbered residence of Susanna, poet's elder daughter, wife of Dr. John Hall, the poet's executor, acquired in 1949 by the Shakespeare's Birthplace Trust.

Harvard House.—Rebuilt 1596 by Alderman Thomas Rogers, whose descendant (John Harvard) founded Harvard University, U.S.A.

Hathaway Cottage.—At Shottery, one mile from the centre of the town, is the little thatched farmstead, the undisturbed birthplace of Anne Shakespeare, poet's wife, who bore him three children, Susanna, Hamnet, and Judith.

King Edward VI School.—Founded circa 1429 by Rev. Thomas Jolyffe, M.A., of Stratford, and re-endowed by King Edward VI. Here Shakespeare acquired his "small Latin and less Greek."

Shakespeare Memorial.—Mainly due to munificence of C. E. Flower (1830-92) and his wife. Group comprises Library, with 10,000 volumes of Shakespeare editions and dramatic literature, Gallery of pictures (including unique "Droeshout" portrait), Gardens, Shakespeare Memorial Theatre burnt down in 1926, rebuilt 1932, with 1,200 seats, chiefly by U.S.A. generosity. The Shakespeare Festival takes place from March to October each year at this theatre.

New Place.—Shakespeare bought this estate in 1597; retired to it about 1610; died there April 23 1616. House was repaired about 1702, and demolished by Rev. Francis Gastrell, 1759.

Town Hall.—Erected 1633; rebuilt 1768. Contains details of the unbroken sequence of Bailiffs, Mayors and Town Clerks since A.D. 1553 (including the poet's father, John Shakespeare); also High Stewards since 1610. The ballroom was badly damaged by fire in Dec. 1946, when Gainsborough's portrait of David Garrick and other pictures were destroyed.

Trinity Church.—Dates from 13th Century. The burial place of the poet and his family.

Wilmcote.—House of Shakespeare's mother, Mary Arden, a fine timbered manor-house of the Tudor period, with dovecot.

Principal Officers of the Borough.

Mayor (1953-54), Miss M. G. M. Phillips.
Town Clerk, T. E. Lowth.

THE PRINCIPALITY OF WALES AND MONMOUTHSHIRE

Position and Extent.—Wales and Monmouthshire occupy the extreme west of the central southern portion of the island of Great Britain, with a total area of 8,006 sq. miles; they are bounded on the N. by the Irish Sea, on the S. by the Bristol Channel, on the E. by the English counties of Cheshire, Salop, and Hereford, and on the W. by St. George's Channel. Across the Menai Straits is the Welsh island-county of Anglesey or Môn (276 sq. miles), communication with which is facilitated by the Menai Suspension Bridge (1,000 ft. long), built by Telford in 1826 (freed from toll as from Jan. 1, 1941) and by the tubular railway bridge (1,100 ft. long) of the former L.M. & S. Railway, built by Stephenson in 1850. Holyhead harbour, on Holy Isle (N.W. of Anglesey), provides accommodation for a fast steam packet service to Kingstown and Dublin (70 miles). A trunk road linking Cardiff and Swansea, now under construction, is expected to be completed within two years.

Population.—The population at the Census of 1931 was 2,593,014 (inclusive of Monmouthshire). The 1951 Census preliminary figures gave a total of 2,596,986.

Relief.—Wales is generally mountainous, the chief systems being those of North Wales (Snowdon 3,560 ft., Carnedd Llwylyn 3,484 ft., Carnedd Dafydd 3,426 ft.); Berwyn (Aran-fawddy 2,970 ft.); Powys (Plinlimmon 2,462 ft., Drygan Fawr 2,115 ft., Radnor 2,163 ft.); and the Black Mountain, Brecknock Beacons and Black Forest ranges (Carmarthen Van 2,632 ft., Brecon Beacon 2,862 ft., Pen-y-gaver fawr 2,660 ft.).

Hydrography.—The principal river of those rising in Wales is the Severn (see England), which flows from the slopes of Plinlimmon to the English border, dividing Montgomeryshire on its way. The Wye (130 miles) also rises in the slopes of Plinlimmon, and flows between Radnor and Brecon on its course to England. The Usk (56 miles) flows into the Bristol Channel, through Monmouthshire. The Dee (70 miles) rises in Bala lake and flows through the Vale of Llangollen, where an aqueduct (built by Telford in 1805) carries the Pontcysyllte branch of the Shropshire Union Canal across the valley. The estuary of the Dee is the navigable portion, 14 miles in length and about 5 miles in breadth, and the tide rushes in with dangerous speed over the "Sands of Dee." The Towy (68 miles), Teifi (50 miles), Taff (40 miles), Doney (30 miles), Taf (25 miles), and Conway (24 miles), the last named broad and navigable, are wholly Welsh rivers.

The largest natural lake in Wales is Bala (Llyn Tegid) in Merionethshire, 4 miles long and about 1 mile wide; Lake Vyrnwy is an artificial reservoir, about the size of Bala, and forms the water supply of Liverpool, while Birmingham is supplied from a chain of reservoirs in the Elan and Claerwen valleys.

EARLY HISTORY

Celts and Romans.—The earliest inhabitants of whom there is any record appear to have been subdued or exterminated by the Goidels (a people of Celtic race) in the Bronze Age, and a further invasion of Celtic Brythons and Belgae followed in the ensuing Iron Age. A collection of Celtic bronze and iron weapons, etc., found near Holyhead in 1943, and regarded as one of the most important finds of pre-Roman antiquities yet made in Wales or the whole of Britain, is housed in the National Museum of Wales at Cardiff. The Roman conquest of South Britain and Wales was for some time successfully opposed by Caratacus (Caractacus or Caradog), Chieftain of the Catuvellauni and son of Cunobelinus (Cymbeline) King of the Trinobantes. In A.D. 78 the conquest of Wales was completed under Julius Frontinus, and communications were opened up by the construction of military roads from Chester to Carlisle, on the Usk and Caerwent, and from Chester to Conway (and thence to Carmarthen and Neath). Christianity was introduced (during the Roman occupation) in the 4th century, and the faith thus established was preserved (after the withdrawal of the Roman garrison) by native effort, and was carried to the northernmost corners of the British Isles by missionaries to the Hebrides and to the Orkneys and Shetlands.

The Anglo-Saxon Attacks.—The Anglo-Saxon invaders of South Britain drove the Celtic Goidels and Brythons into the mountain fastnesses of Wales, and into Strathclyde (Cumberland and S.W. Scotland) and Cornwall, giving them the name of Waelisc, or Welsh (=Foreign). The West Saxons' victory of Deorham (577) isolated Wales from Cornwall, while the battle of Chester (613) cut off communication with Strathclyde. In the 8th century the boundaries of the Welsh were further restricted by the annexations of Offa, King of Mercia, and counter-attacks were largely prevented by the construction of an artificial boundary from the Dee to the Wye (Offa's Dike). In the 9th century Rhodri Mawr united the country against further incursions of the Saxons by land and against the raids of Norse and Danish pirates by sea, but at his death his three provinces of Gwynedd (N.), Powys (Mid.) and Dehenbarth (S.) were divided among his three sons—Anarawd, Mervyn and Cadell—the son of the last named being Howel Dda, who codified the laws of the country, while Lewelyn ap Seissyllt (husband of the heiress of Gwynedd) again united the provinces and reigned as Prince from 1015-1022.

The Norman Conquest.—After the Norman conquest of England, William I. created Palatine counties along the Welsh frontier, and Robert FitzHamon, the Norman Earl of Gloucester, raided South Wales and erected fortresses from the Wye to Milford Haven. Henry I. introduced Flemish settlers into South Wales, but after his death the Welsh rose under the leadership of Griffith ap Rhys and routed the Norman-Flemish forces at the fords of the Teifi (Cardigan) in 1136. From the early years of the 13th century the house Gwynedd, in the north, gained an ascendancy over the whole of Wales, and Lewelyn ap Iorwerth was in constant strife with England for recognition as an independent sovereign; but Lewelyn ap Iorwerth was killed in 1282 during hostilities between the Welsh and English, and his brother David was captured and executed by the English in 1283. On Feb. 7, 1301, Edward of Caernarvon, son of Edward I., was created Prince of Wales.

The Welsh are a distinct nationality, with a language and literature of their own, and the national bardic festival (Eisteddfod), instituted by Prince Rhys ap Griffith in 1176, is annually maintained. These Eisteddfodau (sessions) form part of the Gorsedd (assembly), which is believed to date from the time of Prydian, a ruling prince in an age many centuries before the Christian era.

CARDIFF

CARDIFF (Glamorgan), at the mouth of the rivers Taff (Caer Taff), Rhymney and Ely, the port of the South Wales coalfields, has a municipal area of 17,852 acres, and a population (Registrar General's estimate, 1952, 244,800). Within the city there is a great variety of industry, including ship repairing, rope making, iron and steel foundries, patent fuel works, engine wagon works, flour mills, breweries, jam, vinegar and ice factories, enamel-ware and hollow-ware, paint works, furniture and bedding, clothing and foot-wear, sweets and confectionery, tobacco, electrical goods and appliances, food products and building materials.

The principal buildings are Cardiff Castle, built in the 12th century, the National Museum of Wales, Public Library, the University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire, the Registry of the University of Wales, Technical College, City Hall, Law Courts, Glamorgan County Hall, Offices of the Welsh Board of Health, and "The Temple of Peace and Health." The city returns 3 members to Parliament.

The Lord Mayor (1953-54), Sir James Collins, Stipendiary Magistrate, Guy Sixsmith (1948). Recorder, H. Edmund Davies, Q.C. (1953). Town Clerk and Clerk of Peace, S. Tapper-Jones.

SWANSEA

SWANSEA (in Welsh, Abertawe), a seaport of Glamorgan, is a County Borough, at the mouth of the River Tawe. It is the chief centre of the copper, tinplate and spelter industry of Wales and of the United Kingdom. The trade of the port also includes coal, patent fuel, ores, and the import and export of oil. There is also a large ship-repairing industry. The municipal area is 15,249 acres, with a population at the census of 1951 of 160,832 (Registrar-General's estimate, 1952, 160,400).

The principal buildings are the Norman Castle (rebuilt in 1330), the Royal Institution of South Wales, founded in 1835 (containing Museum and Library), the University College at Singleton, the 17th-century Grammar School, founded by Hugh Gore, and the Guildhall, containing Brangwyn panels. Swansea was chartered by the Earl of Warwick, circa 1158-1184, and further charters were granted by King John, Henry III, Edward II, Edward III, and James II, 2 from Cromwell and 1 Lord Marcher. The borough returns 2 members to Parliament.

Mayor (1953-54), D. J. Fisher. Recorder, F. Elwyn Jones, Q.C., M.P. (1953). Town Clerk, T. B. Bowen, C.B.E.

THE KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND

Position and Extent.—The Kingdom of Scotland occupies the northern portion of the main island of Great Britain and includes the Inner and Outer Hebrides, and the Orkney, Shetland, and many other islands. The Kingdom lies between $60^{\circ} 51' 30''$ and $54^{\circ} 38' 14''$ N. latitude and between $1^{\circ} 45' 32''$ and $6^{\circ} 14' 14''$ W. longitude, its southern neighbour being the Kingdom of England, with the Atlantic Ocean on the N. and W., and the North Sea on the E. The greatest length of the mainland (Cape Wrath to the Mull of Galloway) is 274 miles, and the greatest breadth (Buchan Ness to Applecross) is 154 miles. The total area of the Kingdom is 30,410 square miles. The population (at the census of 1931) was 4,842,554, a decrease of 39,943 since the census of 1921; the preliminary figures of the 1951 census gave a total of 5,095,969, or an increase over 1931 of 253,415.

Land's End to John o' Groat's.—The customary measurement of the Island of Great Britain is from the site of John o' Groat's house, near Duncansby Head, Caithness (at the N.E. extremity of the island) to Land's End, Cornwall (at the S.W. extremity), a total distance of 603 miles in a straight line and (approximately) 900 by road. But the site of the house of John de Groot (with its 8 doors and octagonal table, to solve the question of precedence between John and his 7 brothers) is about 4 miles S.W. of Duncansby Head, while Dunnet Head (also in Caithness) extends farther N. than Duncansby. John de Groot is believed to have obtained permission to settle in Caithness (from the Netherlands) in the reign of James IV. (1488–1513).

Relief.—There are three natural orographic divisions of Scotland. The Southern Uplands have their highest points in Merrick (2,764 feet), Rhins of Kells (2,668 feet), and Cairnsmuir of Carsphairn (2,612 feet), in Kirkcudbright; Hartfell (2,651 feet) in Dumfries; and Whitcomb (2,695 feet) in Peebles. The Central Lowlands include the valleys of the Tay, Forth and Clyde, and the cities of Edinburgh, the capital of the Kingdom, and Glasgow, its principal seaport. The heather-clad Northern Highlands extend almost from the extreme north of the mainland to the central lowlands, and are divided into a northern and southern system by the Great Glen; they contain, in the central Grampian Hills, Ben Nevis (4,406 feet), the highest point in the British Isles, and Ben Muich Dhui (4,296 feet). The Cheviot Hills form a natural boundary between Scotland and England, their highest point being The Cheviot (2,676 feet).

Hydrography.—The principal river of Scotland is the Clyde (106 miles), one of the most important rivers in the world, with the greatest commercial estuary in Scotland. The Clyde is formed by the junction of Daer and Portrail water, and flows through the city and port of Glasgow to the Firth of Clyde. During its course it passes over the picturesque Falls of Clyde, Bonnington Linn (30 feet), Corra Linn (84 feet), Dundaff Linn (50 feet), and Stonebyres Linn (80 feet), above and below Lanark. The Tweed (96 miles) has important woollen industries ("Tweeds") in its valley. The Tay, noted for its salmon, and the longest river in Scotland (117 miles), flows into the North Sea, with Dundee (the centre of the jute industry) on the estuary, which is spanned by the Tay Bridge (2 miles 73 yards), opened in 1887 to replace that destroyed by a gale (Dec. 28, 1879). The Dee (90 miles), a noted salmon river, flows through scenery of unequalled beauty to the North Sea at Aberdeen. The Spey (110 miles), the swiftest flowing river in the British Isles, and also noted for its salmon and its scenery, flows into the Moray Firth. The Forth (66 miles), navigable to Stirling, is spanned by the Forth (Railway) Bridge, constructed 1882–9 at a cost of £3,000,000, with a length of 5,330 ft. (with approaches 8,295 ft.).

The construction of a Forth (Road) Bridge (a suspension bridge $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles long with 2 main spans of 2,400 feet) close to the railway bridge, was authorized in 1947 (approximate cost £6,000,000).

The North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board has projects with a total estimated cost of £65,000,000, involving the construction of over 100 generating stations.

The Falls of Glomach in Ross-shire, with a drop of 370 feet, are the highest in the British Isles; the Grey Mare's Tail (Dumfriesshire) is 200 feet.

The lochs are the principal hydrographic feature of the Kingdom, both on the mainland and in many of the Islands. The largest in the Kingdom and in Great Britain is Loch Lomond (24 miles long), with Lochs Awe, Tay, Rannoch and Erich in the Grampian valleys; Loch Ness (24 miles long and 800 feet deep), with Lochs Oich and Lochy, in the Great Glen; and Lochs Shin (20 miles) and Maree in the northern Highlands.

Orkney.—About 6 miles N. of the Caithness coast, separated from the mainland by the Pentland Firth, is the island county of Orkney, a group of 90 islands and islets ("holms" and "skerries"), of which one-third are inhabited. The total area of the group is $375\frac{1}{2}$ square miles, with a population (1911) of 25,896. Kirkwall, in Mainland, the largest island of the group, is the capital of the county. Many of the Orkney (and Shetland) Islands contain brochs (Pictish towers) and other Pictish and Scandinavian remains. Scapa Flow, between Pomona and Hoy, was the war station of the Grand Fleet from 1914–19 and the scene of the scuttling of the surrendered German High Seas Fleet (June 21, 1919).

Shetland.—About 50 miles N. of Orkney (with the detached Fair Isle at 25 miles N.) is the island county of Shetland, a group of about 100 islands and islets, of which 29 are inhabited. The total area of the group is 551 square miles, with a population (1911) of 27,911. Lerwick, in Mainland (the largest and principal island), is the capital of the county. Fair Isle, the southernmost of the group, is famous for hand-knitted hosiery, and Unst for the finest of the Shetland woollen work, for which the county is famous. Muckle Flugga, about 1 mile N. of Unst, is the most northerly of the group and of the British Isles ($60^{\circ} 51' 30''$ N. lat.).

Western Islands.—Off the W. coast, at varying distances, and extending from Sutherland to Argyll, are over 500 islands and islets, of which 102 are inhabited. The total area of these Western Islands is 2,812 square miles, with a population of close on 80,000, but owing to the mountainous surface of the land only about 300 square miles are under cultivation. The Hebrides.—Until the closing years of the 13th century "The Hebrides" included other Scottish islands in the Firth of Clyde, the peninsula of Kintyre (Argyllshire), the Isle of Man, and the (Irish) Isle of Rathlin. The origin of the name is stated to be the Greek Eboudai, latinized as Hebudes by Pliny, and corrupted to its present form. The Norwegian name Sudreyjar (Southern Islands) was latinized as Sodorenses, a name that survives in the Anglican bishopric of "Sodor and Man." The Inner Hebrides include the island of Skve (643 square miles—capital, Portree, famous as the refuge of Prince Charlie after his defeat at Culloden, Inverness-shire, in 1746), which contains the Cuillins (Sgurr-na-Banachdich, 3,243 feet), Red Hills (Ben Caillich, 2,403 feet), and many other picturesque mountains; Mull (367 square miles), containing Ben More (3,185 feet), Ben Buy (2,354 feet), and Ben Creach (2,289 feet); Jura (160 square miles), with a chain of hills culminating in the Paps of Jura (Beinn-an-Oir, 2,571 feet and Beinn Chaolais, 2,407 feet); Islay (235 square miles), and many smaller islands. The Outer Hebrides, separated from the mainland by the Minch, include Lewis with Harris (770 square miles), celebrated for its homespun "Tweeds," North Uist, South Uist, Barra and other islands. Thirteen miles W. of Stornoway (the largest town of Lewis and of the Hebrides) are the "Druidical" remains of Callanish, a well-preserved series of monolithic circles, cruciform in general arrangement, but usually regarded as a heathen monument of the remote Stone Age.

Climate.—The general climatic values for Scotland are given below, together with the corresponding values for England and Wales within brackets—mean air temperature reduced to sea level 47° F. (49°-7°); rainfall, 50·3 inches (35·2°); number of days with rain 217 (188); mean hours per day of bright sunshine, 3·36 (3·96).

Commerce.—The principal exports are machinery, ships and vehicles, iron and steel manufactures, non-ferrous metals, woollen and worsted yarns and products, food and drink and textile materials. Whisky continues to be the leading export to dollar countries.

EARLY HISTORY

Prehistoric Man.—The Picts, believed to be of non-Aryan origin, and stated to have been named Picti by the Romans on account of the tribal habit of painting the body, seem to have inhabited the whole of North Britain and to have spread over the north of Ireland. Pict's Houses are most frequent in the northern counties of Caithness and Sutherland and in the Orkney islands. Celtic Goidels, Brythons and Belgae arrived from Belgic Gaul during the latter part of the Bronze Age and in the early Iron Age, and except in the extreme north of the mainland and in the islands the civilization and speech of the people were definitely Celtic at the time of the Roman Invasion of Britain.

The Roman Invasion.—In A.D. 80 Julius Agricola extended the Roman conquests in Britain by advancing into Caledonia as far as the "Grampian" Hills, but after a victory at Mons Graupius (since corrupted to "Grampius") he was recalled, and no further advance was made for about 60 years, when the Roman frontier was carried to the isthmus between the Forth and Clyde and marked by the Wall of Pius, towards which ran military roads from the Cheviots. The Roman occupation of Southern Caledonia was not so effective as that of South Britain, and before the close of the second century the northern limit of Roman Britain had receded to Hadrian's Wall, from the Tyne to Solway Firth.

The Scots.—During the later years of the Roman occupation the garrison was continually harassed by Pictish tribes north of the Wall, aided by Scots (the Gaelic tribe then dominant in Ireland), and when the garrison was withdrawn these Picts and Scots were the principal enemies of the Celtic Brythons, who are believed to have called in the Saxons to protect them from the invasions of their neighbours. A relic of the struggle between Pict and Brython is still to be seen in the Catrail, or Picts' Work Dyke, of Roxburgh (from Torwoodle, near Galashiels, to Peel Fell in the Cheviots). Christianity was introduced into Southern Caledonia about 380 by missionaries from Romanized Britain, who penetrated to the northern districts and islands. After the withdrawal (or absorption) of the Roman garrison of Britain there were many years of tribal warfare between the Picts and Scots, the Brythonic Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde (South-west Scotland and Cumberland), and the Anglo-Saxons of the Lothians. The Waelisc were isolated from their kinsmen in Wales by the victory of the West Saxons at Chester (633), and towards the close of the 9th century the Scots under Kenneth Macalpine became the dominant power in Caledonia. In the reign of Malcolm I. (943-954) the Brythons or Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde were brought into subjection, the lowland kingdom of the English (Lothian) being conquered by Malcolm II. (1005-1034). From the close of the 12th century until the middle of the 16th there were constant wars between Scotland and England, the outstanding figures in the struggle being William Wallace, who defeated the English at Stirling Bridge (1297), and Robert Bruce, who won the victory of Bannockburn (1314). James IV. and many of his nobles fell at the disastrous battle of Flodden (1513), and in 1603 James VI., the Stuart King of Scotland and the heir to the Tudor line of England (his mother, Mary "Queen of Scots," was the great-granddaughter of Henry VII.), succeeded Queen Elizabeth I on the throne, his successors reigning as Sovereigns of Great Britain. After the abdication (by flight) of James VII. and II., the crown devolved upon William III. (grandson of Charles I.) and Mary (daughter of James VII. and II.), and their issue failing, upon Anne (second daughter of James VII. and II.). Anne's children died young, and the throne devolved upon George I. (great-grandson of James VI. and I.). In 1689 Graham of Claverhouse "roused the Highlands" on behalf of James VII. and II., but died after a military success at Killiecrankie. In 1715, armed risings led to the indecisive battle of Sherrifmuir, but the movement died down until 1745, when Prince Charles Edward defeated the Royalist troops under Sir John Cope at Prestonpans and advanced to Derby in England (1746). From Derby, the adherents of "James VIII. and III." (the title claimed for his father by Prince Charles Edward) fell back on the defensive, and the Jacobite movement was finally crushed by the Royalist troops under the Duke of Cumberland at Culloden (April 16, 1746).

The Hebrides did not become part of the Kingdom of Scotland until 1266, when they were ceded to Alexander III. by Magnus of Norway. Orkney and Shetland fell to the Scottish Crown as a pledge for the unpaid dowry of Margaret of Denmark, wife of James III., in 1468, the Danish suzerainty being formally relinquished in 1590.

Scotland is represented in the Imperial Parliament by 71 members, of whom 39 represent Counties, and 32 represent Burghs. On account of the scattered nature of the constituency, the election in Orkney and Shetland is exempted from the rule that all polls must be held on the same day.

PRINCIPAL SCOTTISH CITIES

EDINBURGH

EDINBURGH, the Capital of the Kingdom, has a municipal area of 33,189 acres, and a population at the Census of 1951 of 466,761; estimated, June, 1952, 475,074. The city is built on a group of hills and contains in Princes Street one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in the world. The principal buildings are St. Giles's Church (restored 1879-83), and St. Mary's (Scottish Episcopal) Cathedral (Sir Gilbert Scott), the Castle (which contains, in St. Margaret's Chapel, the oldest building in Edinburgh), the Scottish National War Memorial, Parliament House (the present seat of the Judicature), the National and Signet Libraries, the University, the General Register House (Robert Adam), Royal Scottish Academy, National Portrait Gallery, and the Palace of Holyroodhouse (containing parts of the royal palace of James IV and V). The city is governed by a town council of 71 members, and sends 7 members to Parliament.

Rt. Hon. Lord Provost (1951-54), Sir James Miller.

Town Clerk, Sir John Storrar, C.B.E., M.C.

City Chamberlain, A. L. Imrie.

ABERDEEN

ABERDEEN, a City and a Royal, Municipal and Parliamentary Burgh, 130 miles N.E. of Edinburgh, received its charter as a Royal Burgh from William the Lion in 1179. The municipal area is 11,021 acres, with a population (at the census of 1951) of 182,714; estimated, June, 1952, 183,800. The chief industries are tourist traffic, quarrying and granite working, white fish, salmon and herring fisheries, engineering, chemicals, shipbuilding, paper-making, woollen, jute and linen manufacture. From an architectural point of view, Aberdeen is truly famous for its many beautiful buildings, including Marischal College, reputed to be the most imposing white granite building in the world, King's College (1494), St. Machar Cathedral (1378), the Auld Brig o' Balgownie (1320) and the Municipal Buildings. There is a sea beach promenade, which stretches for fully two and a half miles along golden sands, and at Hazlehead an open public park of 800 acres of which 200 are wooded, with one of the finest public golf courses in Scotland. The climate is bracing and healthy. The city is governed by a Town Council of 37 Members, and sends 2 Members to Parliament.

The Lord Provost (May 1952-May 1955), J. M. Graham.

Town Clerk, J. C. Rennie.

City Chamberlain, D. R. Bishop, O.B.E.

GLASGOW

GLASGOW, a Royal Burgh, City and County of a City, and the principal commercial centre in Scotland, has a municipal area of 39,725 acres, and a population at the 1951 Census of 1,089,555. The city occupies the north and south banks of the Clyde, one of the chief commercial estuaries of the world. The tonnage of shipping using the harbour in 1951-52 was 31,680,519. The principal industries are iron and steel works, ship-building, chemicals, leather, woollens, muslin-weaving, distilling, tobacco, cotton-mills, and furniture. The chief buildings are the Early English Cathedral, built early in the 13th century, and incorporating part of an earlier structure, the University (Sir Gilbert Scott), the City Chambers, the Royal Infirmary and the Western and Victoria Infirmaries, the Art Galleries and the Mitchell Library. The city is governed by a town council of 113 members, and sends 15 members to Parliament.

Rt. Hon. Lord Provost, T. A. Kerr.

Town Clerk, W. Kerr, C.B.E.

City Chamberlain, G. B. Esslemont.

DUNDEE

DUNDEE, a City, Parliamentary, Municipal and Royal Burgh, on the left bank of the River Tay, 42 miles N. of Edinburgh, has a municipal area of 12,294 acres, and a population (Census 1951) of 177,333; estimated, June, 1952, 177,868. Principal buildings are University College (St. Andrews University), the Institute of Art and Technology, High School, Albert Institute and the Caird Hall Buildings. One of the finest Public Baths is in Dundee. The harbour affords dock accommodation of nearly 38 acres. There is a magnificent public park of 400 acres at Camperdown and other parks of 646 acres and an observatory at Balgay Park. The principal industries are jute manufacture in all its branches, and various forms of linen weaving, the making of preserves, ship-building, engineering, dyeing, fruit, &c., canning, linoleum manufacturing, watch and clock making, and brewing. The city is governed by a town council of 37 members and sends 2 members to Parliament. Broughty Ferry, the eastern portion of Dundee, is a noted holiday resort.

The Lord Provost (1953-54), W. Black.

Town Clerk, R. Lyle.

City Chamberlain, J. C. Milne.

SCOTTISH REPRESENTATIVE PEERS and Holland.

STANDING COUNCIL OF SCOTTISH CHIEFS

The objects of the Council, which is non-political, are to consider matters affecting Scottish Chiefs (both Lowland and Highland) and to represent their views and interests to H.M. Government, to Departments of State, to Local Authorities, to Press and Public and to Associations connected with Clan and Family in Britain and Overseas; also to take such steps as may seem expedient to protect the titles, armorial bearings or other insignia of Chiefs from exploitation or misuse in trade or otherwise.

Membership of the Council is open to any holder of the absolute undifferenced Arms of any Scottish family who has hereditary supporters, and to any duly certificated Head of a considerable House.

Convener, The Rt. Hon. The Earl of Elgin and Kin-cardine, K.T., C.M.G.

Secretary, Ian M. Campbell, T.D., W.S., 18 Duke Street, Edinburgh, 1.

THE ARMS OF SCOTLAND

ARMS.—Or, a lion rampant gules, armed and langued azure, within a double-tressure flory counter-flory of the second. CREST.—An Imperial crown proper, surmounted by a lion sejant-guardant gules crowned or, holding in his dexter paw a naked sword and in the sinister a sceptre both proper. SUPPORTERS.—Two unicorns argent, armed, tufted and unguled or, crowned with imperial and gorged with eastern crowns, chains reflexed over the backs or; the dexter supporting a banner charged with the arms of Scotland, the sinister supporting a similar banner azure, thereon a saltire argent. MOTTOES.—Over the arms, "In Defens"; under the arms "Nemo me impune lacessit."

CHIEFS OF CLANS AND NAMES IN SCOTLAND

The following list of Chiefs comprises the persons officially recognized as such by inheritance of the ancestral arms "without brisur or mark of cadency" under the Act 1672 cap. 47, and/or relative supporters, under decree of the Court of the Lord Lyon. It does not purport to include self-styled, or Society-selected "Chiefs" but the hereditary Heads of "Honourable Families" who conform to the evidence that "clan and family mean exactly the same thing"; and the definitions of Sir George Mackenzie of Rosehaugh, Lord Advocate to Charles II, that the undifferenced arms denote the "Chief for so we call the Representative of the Family . . . and in the Erse (Gaelic) with us the Chief of the Family is called the Head of the Clan,"—and the unanimous opinions of the Law Lords in Seaforth v. Allangrange Nov. 17, 1921, to the same effect, viz. that the undifferenced shield of arms denotes the Chief of the Clan; which in this nobiliary, and hereditary familial sense of parental organization or kin, is accordingly denoted by the determination of armorial succession by decree of the Court of the Lord Lyon. These broadbased family organizations were termed "Names" in the Lowlands and Border, where all members bore the same basic surname, and "Clans" in the Northern and Highland areas where surnames were only a later development and evolved from complicated genealogical descriptions, the "clan name" being normally the name of the chief's house.

Only chiefs of whole Names or Clans are included (except certain special instances (marked *), who though not chiefs of a "whole name", were, or are, for some reason, e.g. the Macdonald forfeiture, independent). Under decision (Campbell-Gray, 1950) that a bearer of a "double or triple-barrelled" surname, cannot be held chief of a part thereof, several others cannot be included in the list pending readjustment of such assumptions.

SCOTTISH CELTIC AND TERRITORIAL TITLES

Chiefs and landowners in Scotland are entitled to add to their surnames, patronymical or territorial, designations derived from their clan or estate. Form of signature is prescribed by 1672 cap. 47. When so used, these titles are legally regarded as part of the surname, and in address "Esq." is omitted, being inferred. Such titles are admissible in official documents and registers; are also borne by wife, heir and daughters, and when derived from actual land-ownership, or by descent, are assumable without further formality. Otherwise a Lyon Court certificate of recognition is required.

CONSTITUTION AND GOVERNMENT

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, a separate Parliament and Executive Government were established for Northern Ireland. Under the Constitution certain legislative and fiscal powers are reserved to the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

The Northern Irish Parliament consists of a House of Commons of 24 elected members (who receive an allowance) and Senate of 2 ex-officio Senators and 24 Senators elected by the members of the House of Commons on the proportional representation system. At the General Election of 1949 there were elected, Unionists 37, Independent Unionists 2, Nationalists 9, Independents 2, Socialist Republican 1 and Independent Labour 1. Northern Ireland continues under the Act of 1920 to return 12 members to the House of Commons at Westminster.

The Executive power is vested in the Governor on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen; he holds office for 6 years, and is advised by 9 Ministers responsible to Parliament.

EDUCATION

On Dec. 31, 1952, there were 1,662 Primary (including Nursery and Special) Schools with 200,002 pupils, 80 Grammar Schools with 30,065 pupils, 13 Intermediate Schools with 6,997 pupils, and 30 Technical Intermediate Schools with 5,537 pupils. There were also 79 Institutions of Further Education, with 1,903 full-time and 23,556 part-time students. The Queen's University at Belfast had 40 Professors, 15 Readers, 178 Lecturers and Assistant Lecturers, 8 Staff Tutors, and 2,645 students. Magee University College, Londonderry, had 5 Professors, 25 Lecturers, and 98 students.

FINANCE

The greater part of the taxation in Northern Ireland is imposed and collected by the United Kingdom Government. After deducting the cost of collection, certain services reserved to the United Kingdom Parliament, and the Imperial Contribution, the balance is paid over to Northern Ireland's Exchequer. The Contribution so made by Northern Ireland to the cost of Imperial services, i.e. Navy, Army and Air Force, National Debt, etc., for the period from 1921 to March 31, 1951, amounted to £298,000,000. The Imperial contribution has been provisionally fixed at £20,500,000 for 1952-53 and £8,600,000 for 1953-54.

	1953-54
Estimated Revenue	£72,012,000
Estimated Expenditure (including Imperial contribution)	£71,934,000

EXTERNAL TRADE

	1950	1951
Total Imports	£217,387,000	£258,196,000
Total Exports	182,862,000	217,139,000

PRODUCTION

Industries.—The total value of the industrial production of Northern Ireland in 1951 was valued at approximately £275,000,000, and employment on industrial production was given to about 229,000 persons. The linen industry, employing 56,000 persons produced goods to the value of £54,000,000, some £25,000,000 worth being sold to customers outside the United Kingdom. Next in importance to linen is the engineering and shipbuilding industry which employs 43,000 persons. Launchings of mercantile shipping at Belfast amounted to 118,000 tons in 1951. Clothing to the value of over £20,000,000 was manufactured, about half of which was accounted for by shirts and collars, which are manufactured principally in Londonderry. Other industries of importance to the economy of Northern Ireland are the manufacture of tobacco and cigarettes; the processing of agricultural products; furniture; rope; wool; and hosiery manufactures.

Minerals.—About 2,600 men were engaged in mining and quarrying operations in Northern Ireland in 1952, and the minerals raised were valued at some £1,500,000.

Fisheries.—The total value of the fisheries catch in 1952 was £390,000.

COMMUNICATIONS

Seaports.—The amount of shipping using the principal ports in 1952 was about 6,500,000 tons. Regular passenger and freight services are maintained from Belfast to Liverpool, Heysham, Ardrossan and Glasgow, from Larne to Stranraer and from Londonderry to Glasgow.

Vehicle ferry services operate between Belfast and Preston and between Larne and Preston.

Road and Rail Transport.—The Ulster Transport Authority carried 98,510,267 passengers by road and 8,866,507 by rail, 1,459,762 tons of merchandise by road and 480,418 tons by rail, and 846,143 head of livestock by road and 174,493 by rail in the year ending Sept. 30, 1952.

Airways.—Air services are in operation between Northern Ireland and the principal cities in Great Britain.

THE ARMS OF NORTHERN IRELAND

ARMS.—Argent, a cross gules, over all on a 6-pointed star of the field ensigned by an Imperial Crown proper, a dexter hand couped at the wrist of the second.

Belfast, a City, the seat of Government of Northern Ireland, situated at the mouth of the River Lagan at its entrance to Belfast Lough, has a municipal area of 16,520 acres with a population (1952) of 444,200. The city received its first charter of incorporation in 1613 and has since grown owing to its easy access by sea to Scottish coal and iron, to be a great centre of shipbuilding. The linen industry, in all its branches, fostered originally by Huguenot refugees is of great importance, and there are substantial manufacturers of ropes and tobacco and machinery.

The principal buildings are of a relatively recent date and include the Parliament Buildings at Stormont, the City Hall, the Law Courts, the Public Library and the Museum and Art Gallery. The Queen's University (previously Queen's College) was chartered in 1908.

IRISH REPRESENTATIVE PEERS

Twenty-eight Representative Peers were elected as life Members of the House of Lords until the establishment of the Irish Free State in 1920. In reply to a question in Parliament the Prime Minister stated (May 4, 1927) that the Government were advised that no fresh elections could take place in present circumstances.

THE ISLE OF MAN (MONA)

an island in the Irish Sea, in lat. $54^{\circ} 3' - 54^{\circ} 25' N.$, and long. $4^{\circ} 18' - 4^{\circ} 47' W.$, nearly equidistant from England, Scotland, and Ireland. The total land area is 145,325 acres (227 sq. miles), with a population in April, 1951, of 54,499 (25,086 males, 29,413 females). In 1951 the births numbered 836 and the deaths 868. The cultivated area (1951) was 75,990 acres, and the live-stock included 1,441 horses, 25,154 cattle, 66,614 sheep and 3,781 pigs. The island's main industry is catering for holiday-makers (numbering about 600,000 in the year) from all parts of the British Isles.

The land is rich in minerals, lead, iron, blende and slate, and exports some agricultural produce. There are forty-seven miles of railway and about 25 miles of electric tram road.

Government, etc.—The Isle of Man is governed by a Legislature, called the Tynwald, consisting of two branches—the Legislative Council and the House of Keys. The Council consists of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Bishop of Sodor and Man, the two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, 2 members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, and 4 members appointed by the House of Keys. The House of Keys (possibly from the Scandinavian keise = chosen) is one of the most ancient legislative assemblies in the world. It consists of 24 members, elected by the adult male and female population, 16 from the six sheadings, 5 from Douglas, and 1 each from Castletown, Peel and Ramsey. Bills after having passed both Houses are signed by the members, and then sent for the Royal Assent. After receiving the Royal Assent, a Bill does not become law unless promulgated within the ensuing twelve months, and on the first "Tynwald Day" (July 5) following it is announced in the English and Manx languages on the Tynwald Hill. On the promulgation taking place a certificate thereof is signed by the Governor and the Speaker of the House of Keys. The late King visited the island in 1945. His Majesty presiding over Tynwald on Tynwald Day. An annual contribution of £10,000 is made to the Imperial Government. In 1921 Tynwald accepted liability for the redemption of £250,000 War Stock, and in 1927 liability for a further sum of £500,000 of War Stock was accepted in final settlement of all responsibility to the Imperial Government in respect of the cost of the War (1914-18). The Isle of Man has made, in all free gifts of £1,250,000 to the British Government and has lent £1,000,000, free of interest, £500,000 of the latter being converted into a free gift on June 15, 1948. The chief source of revenue is found in the customs duties, the only direct taxation being sur-tax, income tax and purchase tax. Income tax ranges from 2s. 6d. in the £ for incomes under £500 to 5s. for taxable incomes of £2,000 and over. Sur-tax is payable on incomes of £2,000 per annum at the rate of 10d. in the £, rising to 7s. 6d. in the £ on incomes of £5,000 per annum. There are 31 primary, 4 secondary schools, a school of technology, arts and crafts and a domestic science college, in addition to King William's College and the Buchan School for Girls; the gross expenditure on public education in 1951-52 was £338,938.

CAPITAL. Ψ Douglas. Pop. (1951) 20,288. The port of Douglas, radar controlled since March 1, 1948, is the first port in the world to be so equipped. Ψ Castletown (1,749) is the ancient capital; the other towns are Ψ Peel (2,582), and Ψ Ramsey (4,607).

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

situated off the north-west coast of France (at distances of from ten to thirty miles), are the only portions of the Dukedom of Normandy now belonging to the Crown, to which they have been attached ever since the Conquest. They consist of Jersey (28,717 acres), Guernsey (15,654 acres), Alderney (1,962 acres), Brechou (74), Great Sark (1,035), Little Sark (239), Herm (320), Jethou (44), and Lihou (38), a total of 48,083 acres, or 75 square miles. At the 1951 census the population of Jersey was 57,296, and of Guernsey, etc. (1952) 45,435 (Guernsey 43,523, Alderney, 1,379, Sark 533).

The climate is mild, and the soil exceptionally productive. The land under cultivation in 1952 was 30,762 vergées (2½ vergées = 1 acre) in Jersey, and about 18,000 vergées in Guernsey, the principal product of the soil of Jersey being potatoes and tomatoes, and of Guernsey tomatoes, flowers and grapes. The famous Jersey and Guernsey breeds of cows have earned a well-deserved celebrity. The Lieutenant-Governors and Commanders-in-Chief of Jersey and Guernsey are the Personal Representatives of the Sovereign and the channel of communication between H.M. Government and the Insular Governments. The Bailiffs of Jersey and Guernsey, appointed by the Crown, are Presidents both of the Assembly of the States (the Insular Legislature) and of the Royal Court in their respective Bailiwicks. The official language is French, but English is the language in daily use. A Norman-French patois is also in common use. The principal imports are coal and coke, building material and groceries and provisions, and the chief exports potatoes, tomatoes, grapes, flowers and cattle. The chief town of Jersey is St. Helier, on the south coast; the principal town of Guernsey is St. Peter Port, on the east coast and of Alderney is St. Anne's. A telephone exchange was opened on Alderney in May, 1949 and there is one in Sark. Herm is also connected to Guernsey by telephone. The islands were in German occupation from June 30, 1940, to May 9, 1945.

PATRON SAINTS

St. George, Patron Saint of England.—St. George is believed to have been born in Cappadocia, of Christian parents, in the latter part of the 3rd century and to have served with distinction as a soldier under the Emperor Diocletian, including a visit to England on a military mission. When the persecution of Christians was ordered, St. George sought a personal interview to remonstrate with the Emperor and after a profession of faith resigned his military commission. Arrest and torture followed and he was martyred at Nicomedia on April 23, 303, a day ordered to be kept in remembrance as a national festival by the Council of Oxford in 1222, although it was not until the reign of Edward III that he was made patron saint of England. His connection with a dragon seems to date from the close of the 6th century and to be due to the transfer of his remains from Nicomedia to Lydda, close to the scene of the legendary exploit of Perseus in rescuing Andromeda and slaying the sea monster, credit for which became attached to the Christian martyr. April 23 is not included among the Red Letter Days, the list of which was drawn up before the canonization of St. George.

St. David, Patron Saint of Wales.—St. David is believed to have been born near the beginning and to have died towards the end of the 6th century, his father being Prince Sandde and his mother Non (afterwards a Christian saint). St. David was an eloquent preacher and became Primate of South Wales while Bishop of Caerleon on Usk, but he afterwards moved the seat of the Primacy from Caerleon to Menevia, now St. David's. At the request of Henry I he was canonized in the early part of the 12th century and became the tutelary saint of Wales, his annual festival being observed on March 1. This date is not included among the Red Letter Days, which were settled before the canonization of St. David.

St. Andrew, Patron Saint of Scotland.—St. Andrew, one of the Christian Apostles and brother of Simon Peter was born at Bethsaida on the Lake of Galilee and lived at Capernaum. He preached the Gospel in Asia Minor and in Scythia along the shores of the Black Sea and became the patron saint of Russia. It is believed that he suffered crucifixion at Patras in Achaea, on a crux decussata (now known as St. Andrew's Cross) and that his relics were removed from Patras to Constantinople and thence to St. Andrews, probably in the 8th century, since which time he has been the patron saint of Scotland. The festival of St. Andrew is held on November 30, a church festival indicated in the calendar by red letters.

St. Patrick, Patron Saint of Ireland.—St. Patrick was born in England about 389 and was carried off to Ireland as a slave about sixteen years later, escaping to Gaul at the age of 22. He was ordained deacon at Auxerre and having been consecrated Bishop in 432 was despatched to Wicklow to reorganize the Christian communities in Ireland. He founded the see of Armagh and introduced Latin into Ireland as the language of the Church. He died in 461 and his festival is celebrated on March 17, which is not reckoned among Red Letter Days, the list of which was drawn up before the canonization of St. Patrick.

GOVERNMENT.—The Commonwealth is a free association of nine sovereign independent states, the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland,* together with their dependencies.

The Commonwealth has no written constitution but its members are bound together by a community of ideals and interest which springs from a common historical background and a common political heritage which in spite of diversities of race and tradition has given rise to a broadly common pattern of institutions, legislative, executive and judicial. All members of the Commonwealth have certain constitutional features in common. They are parliamentary democracies, their laws being made with the consent of a freely elected parliament after discussion in that parliament, the executive government holding office by virtue of the support of a majority in parliament. Ministers, who must be members of parliament, are collectively responsible for the actions of the executive. With the exception of New Zealand and Pakistan, the Parliaments of the Commonwealth have two chambers, but in the case of the upper house the method of choosing members varies. Although legislation can be initiated in them, the upper houses are principally revising bodies and the lower houses, elected by secret ballot on a basis of adult suffrage, are dominant. The office of Speaker of the lower house is a feature of all Commonwealth parliaments.

At the head of each of the Parliaments of the Commonwealth (except that of the Republic of India) is the Queen, in whose name the administration is carried on. In member countries of the Commonwealth Her Majesty is represented by the Governor-General who in all essential respects holds the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs as is held by the Sovereign in Great Britain. The Governor-General is appointed by the Queen on the recommendation of the Government of the country concerned and is wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom. He is sometimes a national of the country in which he holds office. Her Majesty is Queen of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan, Ceylon and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, all of whom owe common allegiance to her, and is the symbol of their free association in the Commonwealth. India, being a Republic with a President as head of the state, does not owe allegiance to the Queen, but accepts her as the symbol of the free association of member nations of the Commonwealth and as such as Head of the Commonwealth.

The status of member nations was defined by the Imperial Conference of 1926 and given legal substance by the Statute of Westminster, 1931, in which the Commonwealth nations were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another, but united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations." Other parts of the Commonwealth, such as Colonies, while they may be described as "Commonwealth countries," are not members of the Commonwealth.

CONSULTATION.—Before the Second World War it was customary for an Imperial Conference, a formal gathering of delegates from the Commonwealth nations headed by their Prime Ministers, to meet every few years for discussion of a wide range of common problems. Its functions were purely advisory or consultative, and, as it had neither legislative nor executive authority, its resolutions were not binding on the participating Governments, though normally these Governments conformed to resolutions adopted unanimously. The last Imperial Conference was held in 1937. During the War informal meetings of Ministers were substituted. Imperial Conferences have now been replaced by Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Meetings, which have taken place in 1944, 1946, 1949 and annually since 1951. There have also been Commonwealth ministerial meetings and conferences on Defence, Finance, etc.

*Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Following a conference on Central African Federation held in London in January, 1953, and a referendum held in Southern Rhodesia on April 9, the Rhodesia and Nyasaland Federation Act was passed by the United Kingdom Parliament on July 14, 1953, and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland established by Order in Council. Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland are each proportionately represented in a Federal Assembly consisting of a Speaker and 35 members, which has control of external affairs, defence, overseas trade, currency, transport, postal services and other matters of Federal concern. The Prime Minister and other Ministers are appointed by the Governor-General. For a period of ten years from the inception of the constitution there will be no change in the division of powers between the Federation and the territories except with the consent of all three territorial legislatures.

CITIZENSHIP AND NATIONALITY.—Each member of the Commonwealth of Nations defines the citizenship and nationality of its own people and determines the status of other Commonwealth nationals within its own boundaries. The United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and New Zealand have not only created a local citizenship but have also conferred on their citizens the common status of Commonwealth citizen or British subject. Other member countries, like the Union of South Africa, have created only a single, local citizenship without the common status. The Republic of Ireland, which in 1949 ceased to be a member of the Commonwealth, is not regarded by the other Commonwealth nations as a foreign country or her citizens as foreigners. Although Ambassadors instead of High Commissioners are now exchanged between the Republic of Ireland and Commonwealth countries, her relations with the United Kingdom are conducted through the Commonwealth Relations Office and not through the Foreign Office.

THE JUDICATURE.—The Supreme Judicial Authority of the Colonial Empire is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, before which appeals may be brought (in the form of a petition to the Crown) from Consular Courts and Courts of Vice-Admiralty, and also from the Courts of certain members of the Commonwealth. The Committee consists of such members of the Privy Council as have held or are holding high judicial office, provision being made for the inclusion of representatives of the Dominions. The Dominions have each a judicial system, with judges appointed, on the advice of the Dominion Government, by the Crown. The Supreme Judicial Authority for Great Britain and Northern Ireland is the House of Lords.

DEFENCE.—Each of the independent members of the Commonwealth is completely responsible for its own defence. Although there is no central organization to co-ordinate the defence strategy and resources of the Commonwealth, there is close liaison between the responsible governments and considerable day to day practical co-operation by the Services. There are ministerial conferences, meetings between High Commissioners and the Governments to which they are accredited, constant exchange of information and correspondence and personal contacts between Service advisers and officials. During the Second World War collaboration between Commonwealth countries was comprehensive and continuous—each of the then members (except the Republic of Ireland) entered the war in 1939.

The territories for whose defence the United Kingdom is responsible play their part and make their contribution to Commonwealth defence as far as their means allow. While the United Kingdom safeguards sea and air communications, using bases in the territories and providing some garrisons, the dependencies are responsible for the forces necessary for their own security (although in some cases the United Kingdom meets the cost).

Membership of the Commonwealth imposes no formal collective security commitment, but individual members may of course assume special international obligations for the maintenance of peace and security. All except Ceylon are members of the United Nations, Ceylon's membership having been vetoed repeatedly by the Soviet Union. The United Kingdom and Canada belong to N.A.T.O.; Australia and New Zealand are signatories of the Pacific Security Treaty.

COLONIES AND PROTECTORATES.—The United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa have dependencies for which they are independently responsible. The United Kingdom is responsible, through the Colonial Office for 35 administrative units which include colonies, protectorates, protected states, and trust territories.

United Kingdom Colonies and Protectorates.—Colonies and Protectorates, in which the administration is carried on by public officers under the control of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, may be divided into the following groups:—

- (1) Those with a form of self-government within defined limits—Malta, G. C.
- (2) Those with a fully elected House of Assembly or House of Representatives and a nominated Legislative Council—Bahamas, Barbados, Bermuda and Jamaica.
- (3) Those with a partly-elected Legislative Council, the constitution of which does not provide for an official majority—British Guiana, British Honduras, Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Kenya (Colony and Protectorate), Leeward Islds. (General), Leeward Islds. Presidencies (Antigua, Montserrat, St. Christopher-Nevis, Anguilla and Virgin Islands), Mauritius, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Trinidad and Tobago, the Windward Islds. (Dominica, Grenada, St. Lucia and St. Vincent).
- (4) Those with a partly-elected Legislative Council, the constitution of which provides for an official majority—Fiji, Seychelles.
- (5) Those with a nominated Legislative Council—Aden Colony, British Borneo, Federation of Malaya, Hong Kong, Sarawak, Uganda Protectorate, Zanzibar.

In all these Councils, except the Federation of Malaya, the Constitution provides for an official majority.

- (6) Those without a Legislative Council—Aden Protectorate, British Solomon Islands Protectorate, Cyprus, Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, St. Helena, Somaliland Protectorate.

In all these Colonies and Protectorates, except Bahamas, Barbados, Bermuda, British Honduras and the Leeward Islands, the Crown has the power of legislating by Order in Council.

United Kingdom Trusteeships.—The former mandated territories of Tanganyika, part of the Cameroons and part of Togoland are administered as Trusteeships by the United Kingdom through the Colonial Office.

Protected States.—Native Governments continue under the advice of Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom in the nine States (but not the two Settlements) comprising the Federation of Malaya, and in Brunei and Tonga.

Condominiums.—The Anglo-Egyptian Sudan is administered as an Anglo-Egyptian condominium and the New Hebrides as an Anglo-French condominium. On February 12, 1953, an Anglo-Egyptian agreement guaranteed to the Sudanese the right to determine their own future. It was expected that arrangements for self-determination under international supervision would be made after elections towards the end of 1953.

Other Commonwealth Dependencies.—Australia is responsible for Papua, the trust territory of New Guinea and (jointly with U.K. and New Zealand) Nauru Island. New Zealand is responsible for the trust territory of western Samoa and South Africa for South-West Africa. In addition they administer a number of island territories and extensive Antarctic areas.

DEVELOPMENT AND FINANCE.—Complete financial autonomy is enjoyed by all members of the Commonwealth. Customs tariffs are generally lower for merchandise of British origin than for importations from foreign countries. There is no Imperial Debt, but certain obligations of Crown Colonies and Protectorates are met in the early stages of their development by the United Kingdom Government, and grants in aid of revenue are also made at need.

Under the Colonial Development and Welfare Act, 1940, annual sums of £5,000,000 for Development and £500,000 for Research were made available from United Kingdom Funds for 10 years from 1941. An Act passed in 1945 extended the grant period from 1951 to 1956, making £120,000,000 available in that period subject to a maximum of £17,500,000 in any one year, of which not more than £1,000,000 may be spent on research; the Act also abolished the obligation to surrender the unexpended portion of the annual grant to the Treasury. A further Act in 1949 increased the annual amount to £20,000,000, of which not more than £2,500,000 can be drawn in any one year for research.

Comprehensive Development Programmes have been drawn up by most Colonies and will be financed partly by allocations from the fund but largely from local revenues and by the raising of loans.

In July, 1948, the Colonial Office appointed liaison officers for each of the major colonial regions in order to maintain the closest touch between the Colonial Office and colonial Governments on all aspects of economic development. The officers spend about half their time overseas. They inform the colonial Governments of current views in this country on economic policy and convey to the Colonial Office and other Government departments the needs of colonial Governments in carrying out their economic development projects, especially in supply matters.

EDUCATION

The Inter-University Council for Higher Education in the Colonies,

1 Gordon Square, W.C.1.

[Museum: 8916]

The Council was established in 1946 as recommended in the report of the Asquith Commission for the purpose of strengthening co-operation between the universities in the United Kingdom and the existing universities in Colonial territories, and fostering the development of higher colleges in the Colonies and their advance to university status. The Council is composed of one representative member from each University, representative members from the Universities of Malaya, Malta and Hong Kong and co-opted members.

Chairman, Sir Alexander M. Carr-Saunders, LL.D.

Vice-Chairman, Sir Raymond Priestley, M.C., D.Sc., LL.D.

Secretary, Walter Adams, C.M.G., O.B.E.

Assistant Secretary, I. C. M. Maxwell.

Canada was originally discovered by Cabot in 1497, but its history dates only from 1534, when the French took possession of the country. The first permanent settlement at Port Royal (now Annapolis), Nova Scotia, was founded in 1605, and Quebec was founded in 1608. In 1759 Quebec was captured by the British forces under General Wolfe, and in 1763 the whole territory of Canada became a possession of Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of that year. Nova Scotia was ceded in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, the Provinces of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island being subsequently formed out of it. British Columbia was formed into a Crown colony in 1858, having previously been a part of the Hudson Bay Territory, and was united to Vancouver Island in 1866. By the British North America Act, passed in 1867, the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada (Ontario and Quebec), Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick were united under the title of THE DOMINION OF CANADA, and provision was made in the Act for the admission at any subsequent period of the other territories of British North America. Provinces admitted since 1867 are: Manitoba (1870), British Columbia (1871), Prince Edward Island (1873), Alberta, Saskatchewan (1905) and Newfoundland (1949).

Canada occupies the whole of the northern part of the North American Continent (with the exception of Alaska), from 49° North latitude to the North Pole, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean. In Eastern Canada, the southernmost point is Middle Island in Lake Erie, at 41° 41'.

Relief.—The relief of Canada is dominated by the mountain ranges running north and south on the west side of the Continent, by the Pre-Cambrian shield on the east, with, in between, the northern extension of the North American Plain. From the physiographic point of view Canada has six main divisions. These are: (1) Appalachian-Acadian Region, (2) the Canadian Shield, (3) the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Lowland, (4) the Interior Plains, (5) the Cordilleran Region and (6) the Arctic Archipelago. The first region occupies all that part of Canada lying southeast of the St. Lawrence. In general, the relief is an alternation of highlands and lowlands, and is hilly rather than mountainous. The lowlands area seldom rises over 600 feet above sea level. The great Canadian Shield comprises more than half of the area. The interior as a whole, is an undulating, low plateau (general level 1,000 to 1,500 feet), with the more rugged relief lying along the southern border in Northern Quebec and Labrador. Throughout the whole area water or muskeg-filled depressions separate irregular hills and ridges, 150 to 200 feet in elevation. Newfoundland as an outlying portion of the shield consists of glaciated, low rolling terrain broken here and there by mountains. The flat relief of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes lowland varies from 500 feet in the east to 1,700 feet south of Georgian Bay. The whole area in the western part slopes gently to the Great Lakes. The most striking relief is provided by the eastward facing scarp of the Niagara escarpment (elevation 250 to 300 feet). The Interior plains, comprising the Prairie Provinces, slope eastward and northward a few feet per mile. The descent from west to east is made from 5,000 feet to less than 1,000 feet, in three distinct levels, with each new level being marked by an eastward facing coteau or scarp. Horizontal strata and peneplanation make for slight relief of the level to rolling type. Five fairly well-developed topographic divisions mark out the Cordilleran region of western Canada. These are: (1) coastal ranges, largely above 5,000 feet with deep fiords and glaciated valleys, (2) the interior plateau, around 3,500 feet and comparatively level, (3) the Selkirk ranges, largely above 5,000 feet, (4) the Rocky Mountains with their chain of 10,000 to 12,000 feet peaks, and (5) the Peace River or Tromontane region with its rolling diversified country. The Arctic Archipelago, with its plateau-like character has an elevation between 500 and 1,000 feet, though in Baffin Land and Ellesmere Island the mountain ranges rise to nearly 7,000 feet. Two tremendous waterway systems, the St. Lawrence and the Mackenzie, providing thousands of miles of water highway, occupy a broad area of lowland with their dominant axis following the edge of the shield.

Climate.—The climate in the eastern and central portions presents greater extremes than in corresponding latitudes in Europe, but in the south-western portion of the Prairie Region and the southern portions of the Pacific slope the climate is milder. Spring, summer, and autumn are of about seven to eight months' duration, and the winter four to five months. The soil is generally fertile and all the products of the temperate zone are cultivated.

GOVERNMENT

The Constitution of Canada has its source in the British North America Act of 1867 which created the Federation of Upper and Lower Canada, to which Federation the other Provinces have subsequently adhered. Under this Act Canada came into being on July 1, 1867 (Dominion Day), and under the Statute of Westminster, which received the royal assent on Dec. 12, 1931, Canada and the Provinces were exempted (in common with other self-governing Dominions of the Commonwealth of Nations) from the operation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act, the Statute of Westminster having removed all limitations with regard to the legislative autonomy of the Dominions.

The Executive power is vested in a Governor-General appointed by the Sovereign on the advice of the Canadian Ministry, and aided by a Privy Council.

THE LEGISLATURE

Parliament consists of a Senate and a House of Commons. The Senate consists of 102 members, nominated for life by the Governor-General, distributed between the various provinces thus: 24 for Ontario, 24 for Quebec, 10 for Nova Scotia, 10 for New Brunswick, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 6 for Newfoundland, 6 for British Columbia, 6 for Manitoba, 6 for Alberta, and 6 for Saskatchewan; each Senator must be thirty years old, a resident in the province for which he is appointed, a natural-born or naturalized subject of the Queen, and the owner of a property qualification amounting to $4,000. The Speaker of the Senate is chosen by the Government of the day. The House of Commons is elected every five years at longest.

In 1952, through an amendment to the British North America Act, it was provided that the number of Members of the House should be 263 and that the representation of the provinces should forthwith and thereafter on the completion of each decennial census, be readjusted by such authority, in such manner and from such time, subject to certain rules, as the Parliament of Canada from time to time provided. A redistribution of the Parliamentary constituencies was made when an Act to readjust the representation in the House of Commons received Royal Assent on July 4, 1952. Under the terms of this Act, the number of representatives elected for each province is now as follows: 85 for Ontario, 75 for Quebec, 12 for Nova Scotia, 10 for New Brunswick, 14 for Manitoba, 22 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 17 for Saskatchewan, 17 for Alberta, 7 for Newfoundland, 1 for the Yukon Territory and 1 for Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories. (Present total 265).

The House of Commons is composed of natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Queen; no property qualification is necessary, its members are elected upon a very wide suffrage, and at the General Election in Dec. 1921 women exercised the franchise on the same terms as men for the first time in a Federal Election. For electoral purposes each province is divided into districts, returning a member on a plurality of votes taken by ballot. The members of the House themselves elect their Speaker, and twenty, including the Speaker, form a quorum. Members of the Upper and Lower Houses receive $4,000 per Session, with travelling expenses and expense allowances, and deductions for non-attendance.

The Houses of Parliament were destroyed by fire on Feb. 3, 1916, the new buildings being started the same year; the foundation stone was laid by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught (Gov.-Gen.), Sept. 1, 1916, and the corner stone of the main tower by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales (King Edward VIII.), Sept. 1, 1919. The Speaker's Chair in the new House of Commons (a replica of that at Westminster) was presented in 1921 by Viscount Ullswater (ex-Speaker of the House of Commons of the United Kingdom) on behalf of the Empire Parliamentary Association of the Houses of Lords and Commons.

Clerk of the House of Commons, Leon J. Raymond, O.B.E.....	12,000

THE JUDICATURE

The judicature.—Justice is administered, as in England, by judges, police magistrates, and justices of the peace, of whom the first-named are appointed by the Governor-General, for life, from among the foremost men at the Bar in the several provinces. The highest court is the Supreme Court of Canada, composed of a Chief Justice and eight puisne judges, and holding three sessions in the year at Ottawa. The only other Dominion Court, viz., the Exchequer Court of Canada, is presided over by separate judges, and its sittings may be held anywhere in Canada. The Provincial Courts include the Court of Chancery, Court of Queen's Bench, Court of Error and Appeal, Superior Courts, County Courts, General Sessions, and Division Courts. The duties of coroners are generally analogous to those in force in England, as are also methods of civil and criminal procedure, while trial by jury prevails.

DEFENCE

The Department of National Defence was consolidated under a single Minister in Nov. 1946, and the work of the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Air Force is co-ordinated at all possible levels, though they still operate as three distinct defence services. Each service is headed by a Chief of Staff who is responsible to the Minister of National Defence.

Navy.—The Royal Canadian Navy is planned with an organization designed for speedy mobilization and vigorous expansion in an emergency. The largest unit of the fleet is the light fleet aircraft carrier Magnificent (18,000 tons) with Sea Fury fighters and Avenger anti-submarine aircraft. Other units include twenty-four frigates, nine Algerine class minesweepers, twenty-five Bangor class minesweepers and a number of auxiliary vessels, fleet-tenders, etc. Under the current naval shipbuilding programme fourteen destroyer escort vessels, fourteen minesweepers and an Arctic patrol vessel are being built, plus a number of auxiliaries and service craft. The Naval Air Component consists besides the carrier, of a naval air station near Dartmouth, N.S., an air facility at Scoudouc, N.B., a Carrier Air Group, a Support Air Group and a Training Air Group, Utility, Experimental and Helicopter Squadrons and four air training schools.

The R.C.N. is administered through Naval Headquarters in Ottawa, and the two commands with headquarters at Halifax, N.S., and Esquimalt, B.C. In addition, there are 22 Naval Divisions located in the principal cities across Canada which are responsible for the training of a strong Reserve Force. The present authorized complement of the R.C.N. is 21,000 officers and men, and recruiting is proceeding steadily towards this number at a planned rate. The strength of the Royal Canadian Navy on June 30, 1953, was 15,703.

Army.—Major components of the Canadian Army are: the Active Force; the Reserve Force; the Supplementary Reserve (a paper list of units and individuals required in the event of emergency); the Canadian Officers Training Corps; the Canadian Services Colleges; the Royal Canadian Army Corps; and the Reserve Militia (Canadian Rangers). Canada has the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in Korea under command of the First Commonwealth Division. The 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade is in Germany serving under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Active Force includes an airborne Arctic-warfare trained brigade group known as the Mobile Striking Force. Its specific role is for the defence of Canada. On Aug. 10, 1953, the Active Force had a strength of 48,261. The Reserve Force on June 30, 1953 had a strength of 46,270. The Canadian Army includes all the ground forces of Canada. Service is on a voluntary basis. The system of command for the Canadian Army comprises: Army Headquarters at Ottawa; and five major commands (i.e.) Eastern Command, Halifax, N.S.; Quebec Command, Montreal, Que.; Central Command, Oakville, Ont.; Prairie Command, Winnipeg, Man.; and Western Command, Edmonton, Alta. There are also the Northwest Highway System with headquarters at Whitehorse, Y.T.; Canadian Army Liaison Staffs at London, Eng., Washington, D.C., and Paris (SHAPE); and the Canadian Military Mission (Far East) at Tokyo.

Air Force.—The Royal Canadian Air Force is nearing the final phases of an expansion programme, aimed at producing a force of 41 squadrons, including regular and reserve formations. While other types of operations are being expanded, main emphasis is being placed on the fighter element, which is being equipped with planes built in Canada. These are the all-Canadian CF-100, a two-seater all-weather, long-range jet aircraft, and the F-86, a single seater jet being built in Canada under agreement with the parent company in the United States. Other new types of aircraft acquired during the expansion programme include the C-119 transport, the Otter, used for photo survey and search and rescue, and the Comet, a jet transport, two of which are in R.C.A.F. service. The R.C.A.F. has agreed to place a 12-squadron Air Division at the disposal of the N.A.T.O. Supreme Commander.

R.C.A.F. strength on Dec. 31, 1952, was more than 38,000. The R.C.A.F. is directed from Headquarters at Ottawa, with subordinate Command and Group Headquarters at Halifax, Nova Scotia, Lachine, Que. (Air Transport Command), Trenton, Ont. (Training Command), St. Hubert, near Montreal (Air Defence Command), Ottawa (Air Material Command), Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Headquarters: R.M.C.P. Headquarters Building, Ottawa.

Commissioner, L. H. Nicholson, M.B.E.

Deputy Commissioner, J. D. Bird.

Director of Criminal Investigation, M. F. E. Anthony.
Director of Administration and Organization, O. Larivere.

Supply Officer, E. H. Perlson.

Departmental Secretary, P. R. Usborne.

EDUCATION

Education is under the control of the Provincial Governments, the cost of the publicly controlled schools being met by local taxation, aided by provincial grants. There were (1951) 30,987 publicly controlled schools with 2,392,438 pupils. In addition there were 145,626 pupils in private elementary, secondary and commercial schools. There are special schools for Indians with 27,695 pupils (1951). In 1950 there were 28 universities with a full-time university grade enrolment of 68,358, and 212 colleges and professional schools. The University of Toronto, founded in 1827, had an enrolment of 11,331; British Columbia (1907) of 6,343; Montreal (1920) of 7,259; McGill (1829) of 6,657; Manitoba (1877) of 4,490; Saskatchewan (1907) of 2,366; Laval (1852) of 5,458; Alberta (1906) of 3,147 and Western Ontario (1878) of 3,034.

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

Languages.—Canada has two official languages, English and French. At the last census about 67 per cent. of the total population gave English and about 20 per cent. gave French as their native tongue. Some 1,727,000 (or 12 per cent.) are bilingual. Owing to the spread of education the percentages of illiterates is very low: 152,775 were unable to speak English or French.

Literature.—In addition to the rich heritages of English and French literature there is a definite Canadian literature in both tongues. In both languages history and biography were at first predominant but all fields have since been covered. In 1951 there were 82 daily newspapers published in Canada, in addition to 739 weekly. Of this number 13 daily and 118 weekly were in the French language.

FINANCE

The official Rate of Exchange of the Canadian Dollar for 1945 was $4.45 = £1 sterling. On Sept. 19, 1949, Canada devalued the Canadian dollar by 10 per cent in relation to the U.S. dollar, and the rate for sterling became $3.08 = £1. On Sept. 30, 1950, the Canadian Government cancelled the official rates of exchange of the Canadian dollar and did not prescribe any new fixed official rate. Subsequently, the U.S. dollar fell to between $1.01 and $1.04 in terms of Canadian funds in Dec. 1951.

Shipping.—The registered shipping on Dec. 31, 1952, included inland vessels, was 15,815 vessels with net tonnage 1,731,064.

Canals.—In 1952 the vessels passing through the canals of the Dominion numbered 26,322, of 29,809,378 tons of freight. There are six systems under control of the Dominion Government with a total waterway of 1,875 miles (of which 509 miles are constructed canals).

Civil Aviation.—The number of revenue-producing passengers carried in 1951 was 1,788,558 compared with 1,452,081 in 1950. Revenue freight was 53,542,103 lb., or an increase of 11,400,811 lb. over 1950. Mail pounds carried increased from 14,241,523 lb. in 1950 to 16,485,558 lb. in 1951.

Motor Vehicles.—Total motor vehicle registrations numbered 2,872,420 in 1951.

Posts and Telegraphs.—There were 12,254 post offices on March 31, 1953. The net postal revenue was $129,388,365 in the fiscal year 1953. On March 31, 1953, there were 5,239 rural mail delivery routes on which were situated 410,506 boxes. The length of telegraph lines directly operated by the Government in 1951 was 7,957 miles, and that by the Canadian National System 22,733. Other lines covered 20,716 miles. On March 31, 1952, there were 2,334,828 radio stations operating in Canada, of which 2,313,944 were private receiving stations for the reception of broadcasting programmes.

On Dec. 31, 1951, there were 3,113,766 telephones and 10,330,751 miles of telephone wire in use.

TERRITORIES

The Yukon Territory Act, 1927, as amended, provides for the administration of the Territory by a Commissioner acting under instructions from time to time given by the Governor in Council or the Minister of Resources and Development. Legislative powers, analogous of those of a provincial government, are exercised by the Commissioner in Council. The Council comprises five members elected from electoral districts in the Territory. The area of the Territory is 207,076 square miles with a population (Census 1951) of 9,096, including 1,563 Indians and Eskimos. Mining is the chief industry. Values of production in 1952 were: silver, $3,315,000; gold, $2,703,000; lead $2,950,000; coal $132,000; zinc $1,898,000; cadmium $278,000.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

Area 1,304,903 square miles; population (Census of 1951), 16,004, including 10,660 Indians and Eskimos.

The Northwest Territories are subdivided into the districts of Mackenzie, Keewatin and Franklin.

The Northwest Territories Act, 1927, as amended, provides for the government of the Territories by a Commissioner (who is responsible to the Government through the Minister of Resources and Development), and a council of eight (comprising 3 members elected in the District of Mackenzie and 5 appointed members). Legislative powers, analogous to those of a provincial government, are exercised by the Commissioner in Council.

The chief industry of the Northwest Territories is mining. The value of gold production in 1952 was $8,818,000 (estimated); crude petroleum $312,000; silver $49,000 and natural gas $10,000. Fur produced in 1951-52 was valued at $1,247,000.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, Ottawa. The Commissioner in Council holds two sessions each year, one of which is held in Ottawa and the other in the Territories.

Commissioner, Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—The total land area is 17,582,720 acres, of which 690,400 were under field crops in 1951. The live stock in 1951 included 45,164 horses, 206,993 cattle, 92,556 sheep, 68,018 hogs and 101,921 poultry. Settlement is encouraged and improved farms are obtainable at reasonable rates. The chief commercial fish are lobsters, sardines, herring, cod and salmon. The value of production of the fisheries in 1951 was $22,000,000. The cheese factories in operation produced 1,328,386 lb. of cheese and the creameries 6,780,700 lb. of butter in 1951.

Manufactures.—The principal manufacturing centre is Saint John. Natural gas has been found in immense quantities in Albert County, and the south-eastern section of the Province is remarkably rich in oil shales. Coal is found (output, 1951, 656,791 tons, value $891,308), also silver, lead, antimony, copper, iron, manganese, and other valuable minerals in considerable quantities.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL Ψ FREDERICTON; population (1951), 16,018. Ψ Saint John (pop. 63,500) is one of the principal winter ports of Canada and is connected by C.P.R. and Canadian National Railways with Montreal: Moncton (27,334).

NEWFOUNDLAND

Area and Population.—THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND is situated between 46° 37'–51° 37' N. latitude and 52° 44'–59° 30' W. longitude, on the north-east side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the North American Continent by the Straits of Belle Isle on the N.W. and by Cabot Strait on the S.W. The island is about 317 miles long and 316 miles broad and is triangular in shape, with Cape Bauld (N.), Cape Race (S.E.) and Cape Ray (S.W.) at the angles. It comprises an area of 42,734 sq. miles (exclusive of Labrador) with a population at the Census of 1945 of 316,294 (exclusive of Labrador).

Government.—On April 1, 1949, the island, with its dependency in Labrador, became the 10th Province of the Dominion of Canada. The Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, aided by an Executive Council and a Legislative Assembly of 28 members.

Clerk of the House, Henry Cummings.

Finance.—The revenue, on current account, in 1952–53 was $34,845,300 and the expenditure $28,301,100. The estimated revenue for 1953–54 is $36,095,300 and expenditure $34,048,800.

Production and Industry.—With the exception of Gander, Bishop's Falls, Millertown, Buchans, Howley, Deer Lake and that portion of the West Coast between St. George's and Port aux Basques the inhabitants are chiefly located on the coast-line of the shore and bays. Five mines are in operation: one iron ore, one limestone, one lead, zinc and copper and two fluorspar. Two pulp and paper mills are in operation with a total annual production of 528,000 tons of newsprint and 46,600 tons of sulphite pulp.

The value, in 1951, of products of the forests was $90,000,000; fishery products were valued at $30,000,000 and the estimated value of agricultural products (including live stock) was $26,660,000. The value in 1952 of mineral products was $32,898,734. Lead, zinc and copper production in 1952 was 53,254 short tons, valued at $18,757,529; iron ore production was 1,634,500 tons valued at $8,662,850 and fluorspar 82,503 tons valued at $2,473,167.

Railways.—From April 1, 1949, the rail system, formerly owned and operated by the Newfoundland Government, was taken over by the Dominion authorities and entrusted to the Canadian National Railways for operation. The main line of the railway extends from St. John's on the east coast to Port aux Basques on the west coast—a distance of 547 miles—with branches connecting with the ports of Argentia, Carbonear, Bonavista and Lewisporte, a total mileage of 705. There are also 56 miles of private line. Communication between various points on the coast and between Port aux Basques and Sydney, Nova Scotia, is maintained by a fleet of 10 steam vessels and 4 motor vessels, operated by the Railway.

Posts and Telegraphs.—There were 596 post offices in 1952. The number of telegraph and telephone offices was 557.

Civil Aviation.—Trans-Canada, British Overseas and 10 other lines (2 of them for local traffic only) operate from Gander Airport.

Shipping.—On Dec. 31, 1952, ships registered in Newfoundland consisted of 615 sailing vessels of 23,151 gross tons, 30 steam vessels of 25,170 gross tons and 991 motor vessels of 57,981 gross tons.

EXTERNAL TRADE

1952

Imports..... $29,854,901

Exports..... $102,995,923

Principal Cities.—The Capital, Ψ ST. JOHN'S (population 1951, 67,749) contains two cathedrals, several banks and numerous public buildings. Other towns are Bell Island (10,291), Corner Brook West (6,831), Grand Falls (5,064), Carbonear (3,351), Windsor (3,718), Gander (3,956), Bonavista (3,718), Curling (3,559), Botwood (3,412), Corner Brook East (3,435) and Bishop Falls (3,139).

LABRADOR

Labrador, the most northerly district in the Province of Newfoundland, forms the most easterly part of the North American continent, and extends from Blanc Sablon, at the north-east entrance to the Straits of Belle Isle, on the south, to Cape Chidley, at the eastern entrance to Hudson's Straits on the north. The territory under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland has an area estimated at 110,000 square miles, with a population (1951) of 8,243. Labrador is noted for its cod fisheries. It also possesses valuable salmon, herring, trout and seal fisheries.

At the headwaters of the Hamilton River an investigation is being carried out in an area geologically of the same age as part of the Lake Superior iron ore. In this area some 400,000,000 long tons of iron ore have been outlined—by drilling—and this ore is included in 19 ore bodies. A railway from Seven Islands, in Quebec Province, a port on the northern shore of the St. Lawrence River, to the site of the iron ore deposits, near the headwaters of the Hamilton River, is now under construction at an estimated cost of $200,000,000. Construction has also begun of a shipping port at Seven Islands.

Between Hamilton River and the southern boundary of Labrador there exists the largest stand of virgin timber on the North American continent. Estimates made, as a result of aerial and ground surveys, show some 40,000,000 cords of merchantable timber, with an approximate value of $125,000,000 on the stump. The Hamilton River, flowing into Hamilton Inlet, is probably the largest undeveloped power river left in North America. It has a length of 560 miles and drains an area of 30,000 square miles. The two most important power sites on it are at Grand Falls and at Muskrat Falls. Theoretical continuous horse-power is 4,350,000.

CAPITAL, Ψ Battle Harbour (pop. 108); other towns: Goose Bay (2,416); North West River (511); L'Anse au Loup (268); Cartwright (244).

NOVA SCOTIA

Area and Population.—NOVA SCOTIA is a peninsula between 43° 25'–47° N. lat and 59° 40'–66° 25' W. long., and is connected with New Brunswick by a low fertile isthmus about thirteen miles wide. It comprises an area (with Cape Breton Island) of 21,068 square miles (325 miles of which consists of lakes, rivers and inlets of the sea) with a total population (Census 1951) of 642,584.

Finance.—The revenue in 1951–52 was $40,216,335 and the expenditure, including the Sinking Fund, $40,402,601; the funded debt (March 31, 1952) was $183,205,610.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—According to the 1951 census Nova Scotia has a total land area of 13,275,520 acres, of which 3,173,691 acres are held as farm land. At the same census, the total number of occupied farms was listed at 23,515. Of the total area in farm land, 477,459 acres are in improved crops and 2,511,716 in unimproved land.

The Annapolis Valley section of Nova Scotia is famous for its fruit production, with an average crop of nearly 4,000,000 bushels annually, although on occasion it has produced over 6,000,000 bushels of apples.

The number of live stock is estimated (1952) as follows: horses, 24,400; cattle and calves, 185,700; sheep and lambs, 83,700; hogs, 51,000; poultry, 1,515,000.

Manufactures.—In 1950 there were 1,482 establishments employing 28,479 people. The gross value of production was $255,887,000, foods and beverages, wood and paper, iron and steel, petroleum and coal products accounting for the larger proportion of this amount. The principal industrial centres are Halifax, Sydney, Pictou, Truro, Amherst, New Glasgow, Trenton and Yarmouth.

Fisheries.—The total landed value of the fisheries in 1952 was $22,156,000. Landings totalled 389,932,000 lbs. About 20,000 people are employed in fishing and fish processing.

Minerals.—5,903,947 tons of coal were produced in 1952. Gypsum production totalled 2,965,737 tons; barytes 133,569 tons; salt 138,119 tons. In 1952 a new mineral operation in Cape Breton Island produced a total of $2,104,682 worth of copper, lead and zinc and $137,706 worth of gold and silver. Total value of mine products (1952) $63,541,473.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, Ψ HALIFAX, population (1951) 133,931, one of the terminals of the Canadian National Railway, with a magnificent harbour, is one of the principal winter ports of Canada, and the entrepôt of a large trade with the West Indies, South America and Europe. One of the largest bridges in the British Commonwealth, to span the harbour and connect the town of Dartmouth and surrounding area with the city proper, is now under construction. A shipyard for the building of large ocean-going steamers, with a dry dock, is one of the leading industries; other cities and towns are Sydney, Glace Bay and New Waterford (see below), Dartmouth (15,037), Truro (10,756), New Glasgow (9,933), Amherst (9,870), Sydney Mines (8,410) and Yarmouth (8,106).

CAPE BRETON ISLAND.

Cape Breton Island, formerly a distinct Colony, was incorporated with Nova Scotia in 1819. It contains an area of 3,975 sq. miles, population (1951) 157,696. The chief city, Sydney (pop. 31,327), on the eastern coast, has valuable collieries in the neighbourhood and is the site of the largest steel works in Canada. Glace Bay and New Waterford, also coal mining centres, have populations of 25,586 and 10,483 respectively. The Canadian National Railway connects the island with the mainland by rail ferry. Construction of a large rail-highway causeway from mainland to island is expected to be completed in 1954.

ONTARIO

Area and Population.—The Province of Ontario contains a total area of 432,582 square miles, with a population (Census 1951) of 4,597,542.

Government.—The Government is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 90 members elected for five years. The General Election of November, 1951, returned 79 Progressive Conservatives, 7 Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, 7 Liberals, 1 Liberal-Labour and 1 Labour Progressive.

Finance.—The estimated Net Ordinary Revenue of the Provincial Government for 1951-52 was $302,321,000 and the estimated Net Ordinary Expenditure was $301,260,000. The estimated Gross Public Debt was $697,963,424 on March 31, 1951.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—The total land area of Ontario is about 232,500,000 acres. There are about 15,400,000 acres of cleared land, of which 9,796,000 acres were under field crops in 1951. These included wheat 864,000 acres; oats, 2,086,000 acres; barley, 228,000 acres; soy beans, 103,800 acres; mixed grains, 1,211,000 acres; hay and clover, 2,951,000 acres; alfalfa, 802,000 acres.

In 1951 there were—horses, 260,600; cattle and calves, 2,465,900; sheep and lambs, 360,200; hogs, 1,755,500, and poultry, 24,767,000.

Forest Industries.—The estimated value of forest production in 1949 was $133,953,000.

Manufactures.—Ontario is the chief manufacturing province of Canada. The gross value of its manufactures, in 1949, was $5,104,000,000. In that year there were 557,190 employees and a total wage bill of $1,305,500,000.

Minerals.—Ontario leads the other Provinces in mineral production, the output in 1951 being $437,000,000. The principal metals produced and their value were: gold, $90,100,000; nickel, $150,600,000; copper, $70,900,000; platinum, $11,400,000; iron ore, $17,600,000, and palladium, rhodium, etc., $7,800,000.

Hydro-Electric Power.—Present water-power turbine installation is about 2,926,000 h.p. or 31 per cent. of the recorded resources. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario operates 64 generating stations with an aggregate capacity of 2,000,000 h.p.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, ΨTORONTO, population 673,000 ("Greater" Toronto, approximately 1,081,000), with great shipping interests on the Lakes, and the chief centre of industrial, commercial and financial activity; ΨHamilton, the "Birmingham of Canada" (201,296); Ottawa, the Federal capital (202,045); London (95,612); Brantford (37,113); ΨKingston (32,742); Peterborough (35,682); Windsor, connected by tunnel and bridge with Detroit, Mich., U.S.A. (123,849); Fort William (34,181); Kitchener (42,212); Guelph (26,588); St. Catharine's (37,249); Sault Ste. Marie (30,650); Oshawa (28,552); Sudbury (43,662); Port Arthur (30,923).

FEDERAL CAPITAL

OTTAWA, the Federal Capital, 111 miles west of Montreal and 247 miles north of Toronto, is a city on the right bank of the Ottawa river. The city was chosen as the Federal Capital of Canada in 1858 and the first session of the Canadian Parliament met there in 1866. Ottawa contains the Parliamentary Buildings, the Public Archives, Royal Mint, Department of National Revenue, National Museum, National Art Gallery and the Dominion Observatory. Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor-General, lies on the eastern boundary of the City, at the entrance of Rockcliffe Park. Ottawa is connected with Lake Ontario by the Rideau Canal and has a large lumber trade and wooden manufactures. The population of the Federal Capital was 202,045 at the Census of 1951 and of Greater Ottawa, 281,908

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Area and Population.—Prince Edward Island lies in the southern part of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, between 46°-47° N. lat. and 62°-64° 30' W. long. It is about 130 miles in length, and from 4 to 34 miles in breadth; its area is 2,184 square miles (rather larger than that of the English county of Norfolk), and its population (Census, 1951) 98,429. The island was first settled by the French, who held it for many years as a fishing station and developed it extensively in agriculture as a supply station for Louisbourg. The British took it from them in 1745, but afterwards restored it; they seized it again, however, during the Seven Years' War (1756-63) and compelled the greater part of the French inhabitants to leave, and from that time it has remained British.

Government.—The Government is vested in a Lieut.-Governor and an Executive Council, and Legislative Assembly of 30 members elected by the people, 15 as Councillors (with a property qualification) and 15 as Assembly-men (on general suffrage).

Agriculture and Live Stock.—The value of the field crops in 1949 was estimated at $22,748,000. The soil consists for the most part of a rich red loam, uniform in character and peculiarly suited to the growth of grasses. Nearly the whole of the land is now cleared, and improved farms can be bought at from $20 to $60 an acre (including buildings), according to condition and locality. The breeding of silver black foxes in captivity is an established and profitable industry. There were (1946) 503 farms reporting fox, conducted by incorporated companies and private partnerships or individuals. The live stock (1948) included 23,000 horses, 94,000 cattle, 43,000 sheep, 62,000 swine, and about 993,000 poultry.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, CHARLOTTETOWN (pop. 15,887), on the shore of Hillsborough Bay, which forms a good harbour. Other towns are Summerside (6,547), Souris (1,183), and Montague (1,068).

QUEBEC

Area and Population.—The Province of Quebec contains an area estimated at 596,708 square miles, with a population (Census, 1951) of 4,055,681.

Government.—The Government of the Province is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor, the Council of Ministers a legislative Council consisting of 24 members appointed for life, and a Legislative Assembly of 92 members elected for five years. The General Election of July 16, 1952, returned 67 Union Nationale (Government Party), 22 Liberals and 1 Independent.

Production and Industry.—In January, 1952, the available water power was estimated at 20,219,000 H.P. and turbine installation at 6,755,351 H.P. The gross value of manufactured products in 1949 was $3,788,497,123 from 11,579 industrial establishments, employing 300,275 persons with salaries and wages totalling $809,579,270, the principal manufacturing centres being Montreal, Montreal East, Quebec, Trois - Rivières, Sherbrooke, Shawinigan Falls and Lachine. Forest lands cover 356,059 sq. miles, of which 190,665 sq. miles are productive; 79,168 sq. miles are under licence to cut timber and 25,076 sq. miles are freehold forests. In 1950, 3,315,631 tons of paper were manufactured, valued at $339,748,513. The total area under cultivation in 1951 was 6,349,000 acres, the value of the field crops being $197,298,000; 3,785,000 acres are under hay and clover. In 1951 there were 270,800 horses, 2,038,300 cattle, 377,800 sheep, 1,439,000 swine and 12,216,000 poultry. In 1951 the production of factory cheese was 18,210,000 lb. (valued at $6,663,000) and butter 92,034,000 lb. (valued at $58,902,000).

The mineral production was valued at $249,553,600 in 1951, including gold 1,061,113 fine oz. ($39,102,088). A valuable deposit of ilmenite was discovered in 1946 at Lake Allard on the North Shore, Quebec Province.

Principal Cities.—CAPITAL, Ψ QUEBEC (population, 164,016), historic city visited annually by thousands of tourists, and one of the great seaport towns of Canada; and Ψ Montreal (population, 1,021,520), the commercial metropolis, and the principal centre of the Canadian grain export trade, founded by the French at the confluence of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers, May 16, 1642. Ocean-going steamers ascend the St. Lawrence as far as Montreal. Other important cities are Verdun (77,391), Hull (43,483), Sherbrooke (50,543), Trois Rivières (46,074), Outremont (30,057), Westmount (25,222) and Lachine (27,773).

SASKATCHEWAN

Area and Population.—The Province of Saskatchewan lies between Manitoba on the east and Alberta on the west and has an area of 251,700 square miles, the population (Census 1951) was 831,728. Saskatchewan extends along the Canada-U.S.A. boundary for close on 400 miles and northwards for over 760 miles. It was formerly part of the North-West Territories, of which Assiniboia East, part of Assiniboia West, Saskatchewan and eastern Athabasca were formed into the Province of Saskatchewan on Sept. 1, 1905.

PHYSICAL FEATURES

Australia was separated from the other great land surfaces at a remote period, and exhibits therefore some very archaic types of fauna and flora. It may be regarded as the largest island or the smallest continent, being surrounded by the following waters:—North, the Timor and Arafura Seas and Torres Strait; East, Pacific Ocean; South, Bass Strait (which separates Tasmania from the Continent) and Southern Ocean; and West, Indian Ocean. The total area of the Continent is 2,948,366 English square miles, the island of Tasmania having an area of 26,215 square miles, and making a total area for the States and Territories of 2,974,581 square miles. The coast-line of Australia is approximately 12,210 miles, and the geographical position of the Continent is between $10^{\circ} 41' - 39^{\circ} 8'$ South latitude and $113^{\circ} 9' - 153^{\circ} 39'$ East longitude; the greatest length East to West is 2,400 miles, and from North to South 1,971 miles. Its nearest distance from England is about 11,000 miles.

From a physical standpoint the continent of Australia is divisible into an eastern and a western area, the former containing a regular coast-line with a good harbourage, roadsteads, rivers, and inland waterways, and a greater development of fauna and flora; the latter a broken coast-line with estuaries rather than rivers, and but little inland water communication. The whole continent is, roughly speaking, a vast, irregular, and undulating plateau, part of which is below the level of the sea, surrounded by a mountainous coast-line, with frequent intervals of low and sandy shore on the north, west and south. The Great Barrier Reef extends parallel with the East coast of Queensland for 1,200 miles, at a distance of about 60 miles from the mainland. A large part of the interior, particularly in the west, consists of sandy and stony desert, covered with spinifex, and containing; numerous salt-marshes, though reaches of grass-land occur here and there. The geological formation of Australia is remarkable for its simplicity and regularity; the strike of the rocks is, with a single exception, coincident with the direction of the mountain-chains, from N. to S.; and the tertiary formation to be found in the N., S., and W. develops in the S.E. into a gigantic tertiary plain, watered by the Darling and the Murray Rivers. Nearly all round the coast, however, and in eastern and south-eastern Australia, stretching far inland from the coastal range, is a fertile area devoted partly to agriculture, partly to dairying, while the inland districts particularly are admirably adapted to the rearing of sheep. The most extensive mountain system takes its rise near the S.E. point, and includes a number of ranges known by different names in different places, none of them being of any great height. The highest peak, Mount Kosciusko, in New South Wales, reaches an elevation of 7,328 feet. The principal rivers are the Murray, which debouches on the south coast, after receiving the waters of its tributaries the Murrumbidgee, Lachlan, and Darling, in the S.E. part of the continent; on the east coast, the Hawkesbury, Hunter, Clarence, Richmond, Brisbane, Mary, Burnett, Fitzroy, and Burdekin; on the west, the Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue, De Grey, and Fitzroy; on the north, the Drysdale, Ord, Victoria, and Daly; and the Roper, the Flinders, and Mitchell, which debouch into the Gulf of Carpentaria. Lakes are numerous, but nearly all are salt; the scarcity of the natural water supply has been, however, mitigated by successful borings and by the construction of large dams. The work of conserving the vast quantities of water which run to waste in the wet season is being vigorously prosecuted by a system of locks and weirs on some of the rivers. Minerals comprise gold, silver, copper, zinc, iron, and coal in large quantities, antimony, tin, gypsum, magnesite, osmiridium, uranium, opal, sapphires, &c., and there are abundant supplies of building stones, clays, &c. The potentialities of the country in regard to its supplies of metals and minerals have not yet been fully tested.

Climate.—The seasons commence about March 21 (Autumn), June 21 (Winter), Sept. 22 (Spring), and Dec. 22 (Summer). The climate is extremely dry, but, except in the tropical coast-land of the north, the continent is everywhere highly beneficial to Europeans, the range of temperature being smaller than that of the countries similarly situated.

GOVERNMENT

The Commonwealth of Australia was constituted by an Act of the Imperial Parliament dated July 9, 1900, and was inaugurated Jan. 1, 1901. The Government is that of a Federal Commonwealth within the British Commonwealth of Nations, the executive power being vested in the Sovereign (through the Governor-General), assisted by a Federal Ministry of twenty Ministers of State. Under the Constitution the Federal Government has acquired and may acquire certain defined powers as surrendered by the States, residuary legislative power remaining with the States. Trade and customs passed under Federal control immediately on the establishment of the Commonwealth; posts, telegraphs and telephones, naval and military defence, lighthouses and quarantine on proclaimed dates. The Federal Government also controls such matters as social services, patents and copyrights, naturalization, navigation, &c. The right of a State to legislate is not abrogated except in connexion with matters exclusively under Federal control, but where a State law is inconsistent with a law of the Commonwealth the latter prevails to the extent of the inconsistency.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. An Act, assented to on May 18, 1948, provided for an increase in the number of members of the Senate from thirty-six to sixty, and for the number of members of the House of Representatives to be increased from seventy-four to as nearly as practicable twice the number of Senators. There are now 123 members in the House of Representatives, including the two members, with restricted voting powers, representing the two internal territories. Members of the Senate are normally elected for six years by universal suffrage, each of the six States returning an equal number. The House of Representatives, similarly elected for a maximum of three years, contains members proportionate to the population, with a minimum of five members for each State. The present state of parties in the House of Representatives (excluding the two Labour members for the internal territories) is Liberal and Liberal-Country Party 51, Country Party 17, Labour 53. Members of both Houses receive £A1,750 per annum, with allowances and free railway passes.

DEFENCE

At the outbreak of the 1939-45 War the Department of Defence embraced the three fighting services. In November, 1939, separate Departments, each with its own Minister, were created for the control and administration of the Navy, Army and Air Force. The Defence Department as then reconstituted retained responsibility for overall defence policy and for the conduct during the war of the business of the War Cabinet and the Advisory War Council. The four separate Departments were retained at the end of the war.

Subject to the authority of Cabinet and the Council of Defence, the Minister and Department of Defence are responsible for the formulation and general application of a unified defence policy relating to the Defence Forces and their requirements; the defence aspects of armistice and peace terms, control commissions, forces of occupation; matters of policy or principle with joint service or inter-departmental defence aspect; the higher defence machinery; the control of the joint service machinery; the co-ordination of national planning for an emergency, etc.

Navy

The Royal Australian Navy consists of the heavy cruiser Australia, the aircraft carriers Sydney and Vengeance, 5 destroyers, 8 frigates, 7 ocean minesweepers and 40 miscellaneous craft. In addition, 3 submarines are on loan from the Royal Navy for anti-submarine training. In reserve there are the heavy cruiser Shropshire, the light cruiser Hobart, 5 destroyers, 5 frigates, 19 ocean minesweepers, 2 landing ships (tanks), 1 depot ship and 13 miscellaneous craft.

The Royal Navy has made available on loan the light fleet aircraft carrier H.M.S. Vengeance until the aircraft carrier H.M.A.S. Melbourne—at present under construction in the United Kingdom—is completed. Of the four Daring class destroyers under construction in Australia, one was launched in Sydney in 1952, and another is under construction in that city. The other two are being built in Melbourne. Four "Q" class destroyers are being converted to fast anti-submarine frigates, and 12 Bathurst class minesweepers to comprehensive ocean minesweepers.

Army

The Military Forces of the Commonwealth are administered by a Military Board, with the Minister for the Army as President and 7 members.

The plan for the raising of the Australian Regular Army envisages a total of 28,000 soldiers and 5,000 civilians. The Citizen Military Force will comprise 15,000 voluntary enlisted personnel and 70,000 National Servicemen. A Women's Royal Australian Army Corps has been raised as part of the Australian Regular Army in direct substitution of male soldiers. Companies of the Women's Royal Australian Army Corps and the Royal Australian Army Nursing Corps are being raised within the framework of the Citizen Military Force.

The strength of the Australian Regular Army on April 30, 1953, was 28,000 all ranks, of whom 2,156 were serving in Korea, 1,924 in Japan, and 160 in other overseas appointments.

The Australian Cadet Corps, composed of students at educational establishments and youths enrolled in detachments with Citizen Military Force units, had a strength of 32,541 School Cadets and 3,067 Regimental Cadets on March 31, 1953.

Air

The total strength of the R.A.A.F. on May 1, 1953, was some 15,545. The total number of squadrons was 20, and of training units 16. Two wings and one squadron were conducting air operations overseas, one wing in Korea in support of the United Nations Force, the other in the Middle East, serving with the Royal Air Force. The squadron was operating in Malaya in support of British ground forces.

Commonwealth Expenditure on Defence and War (1939-45) and Repatriation Services in the year ended June 30, 1950, was £A149,695,000, as compared with £A195,609,000 for previous year. Estimated expenditure 1950-51 was £A237,352,000.

In 1951-52 Australia produced 1,055,000,000 lb. of wool (as in the grease), estimated value, £A313,842,000; 304,095,680 lb. of butter; 90,612,480 lb. of cheese; and 77,463,680 lb. (cured weight) of bacon and hams. The total meat production (beef, mutton, lamb, pork, bacon and hams) in terms of fresh meat was estimated at 943,458 tons.

Mines and Minerals.—In 1952 the mine production of gold was 980,580 fine oz. Other minerals (1952) were black coal 19,421,912 tons; pig iron 1,532,573 tons; copper 18,355 tons; lead 228,148 tons; tin 1,554 tons; zinc 196,386 tons; silver 11,279,000 oz. Value of all minerals produced in 1952, exclusive of quarrying, £139,932,000 (figures subject to revision).

Manufactures.—In 1951-52 there were in Australia 45,843 industrial establishments, employing 677,777 persons; wages paid amounted to £A612,014,000; value of plant and machinery £A412,526,000; land and buildings £A360,186,000 of materials, fuel, etc., used £A1,609,694,000; value added by manufacture £A1,023,979,000; and total value of final output £A2,633,073,000.

Trade Unions.—In 1951 there were 359 separate Trade Unions in Australia with a total membership of 1,690,271.

Total..... 26,847 139,518,345

(a) Excludes certain government subsidies aggregating approximately £8,000,000.

The Trans-Australian (Government) Railway, 4 ft. 8½ in. gauge, connects Kalgoorlie, W. A., with Port Pirie, S.A. (1,108 miles) and so forms a link (including Kalgoorlie-Fremantle 387 miles) between Fremantle and Brisbane, Q., a total length of 3,372 miles.

The gross earnings of all Government lines in 1951-52 were £139,518,345, working expenses £148,174,469, and net loss £8,656,124. In 1951-52 passenger journeys numbered 500,509,692 and 44,840,864 tons of goods and live stock were carried. Sydney and Melbourne suburban systems are electrified.

Tramways.—There are 560 miles of tramways in Australia, all of which are of electric traction. The several Governments control 342 miles and municipal authorities 218 miles.

Shipping.—The entrances and clearances (one entrance and one clearance per voyage, irrespective of the number of ports visited) of vessels engaged in overseas trade at the various Australian ports in 1951-52 were: entered 2,038 (8,972,982 tons); cleared 2,098 (9,252,137 tons). Of the vessels entered 1,291 of 5,827,200 tons were under the British flag and 747 of 3,145,782 tons under foreign flags.

The total including local shipping entering the ports of the capital cities during 1951-52 was: Sydney 3,938 vessels of 8,201,077 tons, Melbourne 2,316 (8,584,710), Brisbane 815 (2,703,052), Adelaide 2,659 (4,949,512), Fremantle 1,009 (5,255,553) and Hobart 296 (1,255,169). At December 31, 1952, there were 1,842 vessels of a total net tonnage of 348,073 on the shipping registers of the several States.

Posts and Telegraphs.—In the year ended June 30, 1952, there were 8,315 post offices dealing with 1,197,990,000 letters, 249,678,000 packets and newspapers, and 16,670,000 parcels. 27,080,000 telegrams were despatched and 2,686,000 cablegrams received and despatched. At June 30, 1952, there were 6,990 telephone exchanges with 927,000 lines and 1,301,000 instruments.

Wireless.—On June 30, 1952, the National Broadcasting Service operated 51 stations, including 9 short-wave stations. Privately owned commercial broadcasting stations totalled 103. On June 30, 1952, there were in force in Australia and Papua 1,961,044 listeners' licences.

Motor Vehicles.—At June 30, 1952, there were 1,770,184 motor vehicles registered in the several States. These comprised 1,032,358 cars, 154,579 motor cycles, and 583,247 commercial vehicles; revenue derived from motor registration fees and motor tax, &c., in 1951-52 was £20,939,350. Motor omnibus services are extensively operating in urban areas.

Civil Aviation.—At June 30, 1952, there were 458 recognized landing grounds, including 269 licensed public aerodromes, in the various States and Territories. The mileage flown weekly in 1951-52, in contract and other regular air services was 1,010,000.

CAPITAL

CANBERRA, the Capital of the Australian Commonwealth, is 200 miles by rail from Sydney, N.S.W. and was acquired in 1911 from the State of N.S.W. for the Australian Capital. The original area was 910 sq. miles, increased in 1917 by the acquisition of 28 sq. miles at Jervis Bay. Canberra contains the Australian (1914-18 and 1939-45) War Memorial, Parliament House, Commonwealth Offices, University College, and the Australian National University, and is connected with the N.S.W. railway system by a line (4½ miles) to Queanbeyan and by good roads to Melbourne and Sydney. Frequent air services also link it with the State capitals. At a Census taken on Sept. 14-16, 1951, the population of Canberra city area was 23,617. The population of the rural area of the Australian Capital Territory (including Jervis Bay) was estimated (Sept. 30, 1951) at 1,749. Total population (est. Dec. 31, 1952) 28,481.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY

The Northern Territory has a total area of 523,620 square miles, and lies between 129°-138° East longitude as far as 26° South latitude. The administration was taken over by the Commonwealth on January 1, 1911, from the government of the State of South Australia. The headquarters of the Administrator are at Darwin. The legislative authority in the Territory is a Legislative Council consisting of a President, who is the Administrator, seven appointed members, who are senior officers of Commonwealth Departments, and six members elected from districts into which the territory is sub-divided, approximately on a population basis. All ordinances passed by the Council must be presented finally to the Governor-General, who may disallow or refuse his assent to them.

On April 1, 1953, the population of the Northern Territory (excluding full-blooded aborigines) was estimated to be:—males 8,397, females 5,188, total 13,582; Darwin and its environs 7,697; Alice Springs, 3,135; rural, 2,850. The number of full-blooded aborigines was estimated at 12,314.

The staple industry is pastoral; cattle and horse raising north of 20° S. lat. On Dec. 31, 1951, there were 1,057,906 cattle, 32,519 horses and 30,935 sheep in the Territory. Importations of livestock were: bulls 466, other cattle 1,309, horses 508, sheep 912. Exports during the same period were: cattle 84,108 and horses 1,266. The Territory is capable under proper conditions of carrying successfully and profitably a great expansion of the beef cattle industry. The number of hides and skins exported from the Northern Territory during the year ended June 30, 1952, was as follows:—buffalo 13,333, sheep 776, crocodile 4,224, goat 25 and snake 24. In addition, a considerable number of kangaroo skins were exported.

A small agricultural industry, demonstrating considerable diversity, has maintained itself in the Territory. Interest and activity is now centred on the development of existing agriculture and the development of research work into problems associated with the production of exportable products such as cereals, vegetables, ground nuts, suitable tropical fruits, pork and intensive meat production.

Out of a total of 335,116,800 acres, the Northern Territory has 110,367,030 acres unoccupied or unreserved. Aboriginal and other reserves total 46,159,419 acres; there are 178,135,029 acres leased or held under licence, and 455,322 acres are alienated.

There are considerable mineral resources, and production is steadily growing, particularly of gold, tungsten, mica and copper. Other minerals produced are tin, ochre and tantalite, while lead-zinc deposits are being investigated. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1952, the total value of gold and mineral production was £1,386,061.

The chief rivers of the Territory are Victoria, Adelaide, Daly, Roper, South Alligator, McArthur, Liverpool, and Goyder. The first six are navigable, from 40 to 100 miles from their entrance, for boats drawing 4 feet. Mother-of-pearl fishing is carried on round the coast, the shell being of good quality.

The railway extends from Darwin to Birdum (325 miles) and Alice Springs is connected by rail with Adelaide. A good bitumen road links Darwin with Alice Springs (954 miles). This road, which was constructed primarily for military purposes during the 1939-45 war, can carry a high volume of heavy traffic.

ψ Darwin occupies an elevated site 97 feet above sea level, overlooking Port Darwin. Alice Springs is situated in the MacDonnell Ranges. Climate of the Northern Territory ranges from dry in the south to wet-monsoonal in the north.

TERRITORY OF PAPUA AND NEW GUINEA

The Papua and New Guinea Act, 1949, which came into force on July 1, 1949, approved the placing of the Territory of New Guinea under the International Trusteeship system and provides for the Government of the Territory of Papua and the Territory of New Guinea in an Administrative Union.

Provision is made for an Executive Council of not less than nine members, and a Legislative Council consisting of twenty-nine members, namely:—

(a) the Administrator; (b) sixteen officers of the Territory (who shall be known as official members); (c) three non-official members possessing such qualifications as are provided by Ordinance and elected, as provided by Ordinance, by electors of the Territory; (d) three non-official members representing the interests of the Christian missions in the Territory; (e) three non-official native members; and (f) three other non-official members.

Subject to the Act, provision may be made by Ordinance for the establishment of Advisory Councils for Native Matters; and Native Village Councils.

PAPUA

The Territory of Papua, which was placed under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia in 1906, comprises the south eastern portion of the island of New Guinea, together with the Trobriand, Woodlark, D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups of islands and is separated from Australia by Torres Straits. The Territory lies wholly within the Tropics, between the 141st and the 15th meridians of east longitude and the 5th and 12th parallels of south latitude. The total area is 90,540 sq. miles, of which 87,786 are on the mainland. The non-indigenous population (June 30, 1951) was 4,530. The official estimate of the native population is 364,000. Owing to heavy rainfall Papua is well watered in most parts and possesses a large number of streams. The best-known rivers are the Fly (650 miles long and navigable by steam launch for over 500 miles), the Strickland and the Purari. Lake Kutubu, 12 miles long and 2 miles wide, was explored in 1937. The climate is favourable to the cultivation of tropical products. Copra exports for the year ended June 30, 1952, totalled 14,500 tons and rubber exports 6,383,400 lbs.

NEW GUINEA

The German possessions on the mainland of New Guinea and certain adjacent islands were occupied by Australian forces on Sept. 12, 1914, and on Dec. 17, 1920, a mandate of the Supreme Council of the Allies entrusted the administration to the Australian Government which established its administration on May 9, 1921.

The Trust Territory includes (1) North-Eastern New Guinea, the northern section of east New Guinea between 2° 35'–8° S. lat., and 141°–148° E. long., with a total area of 69,700 sq. miles. This includes adjacent islands (Manam, Karkar, Long, Bagabag, Schouten and D'Urville or Kairiri Island). The chief centres are Lae, Bulolo, Finschhafen, Wau, Madang, and Wewak. (2) Bismarck Archipelago (19,200 sq. miles), including New Britain, New Ireland, and islands adjacent to both (Duke of York, Witu, Umboi, Sissii, Watom, Lolobau, Sakar, Lavongai, Tabar Lihir Djaul, Tanga, Feni, Nuguria, Mussau and Emirau), and (3) Admiralty Islands (chief town, Lorengau, in Manus Island); and (4) the two northernmost Solomon Islands (4,100 sq. miles) (Bougainville and Buka with adjacent islands, including Nissan, Kilinalau Taku or Mortlock, and Nukumanu or Tasman Islands). The total estimated area is thus 93,000 square miles. The estimated non-indigenous population, as at June 30, 1951, was 8,956. The native population was enumerated (June 30, 1951) at 811,714 plus an estimated total of 282,300, giving a grand total of 1,094,014.

The principal river in N.E. New Guinea is the Sepik, which is navigable for 300 miles.

A road to the coast over rugged country now serves the goldmining areas of the Lower Watut, Sunshine, Bulolo, Wau and Edie Creek, and a small farming district at Wau.

Qantas Empire Airways, Ltd., operates a regular air service from Australia to Lae and Rabaul, and to Port Moresby, Papua. There is also a flying boat service from Port Moresby to Rabaul and Bougainville. Commercial aircraft operators located on the New Guinea mainland maintain passenger and freight carrying services to Wau, Bulolo, Mt. Hagen, Kainantu, Goroka, Finschhafen, Madang, Wewak, Aitape, Maprik, Angoram, Port Moresby and Kokoda. Charters are undertaken to other parts of the Territory as occasion arises.

Overseas vessels call at various ports and a regular service is maintained with Australia.

The climate is hot and moist along the coast, with a steady drop as the higher altitudes are reached. It is suitable to the growth of all tropical products. About 25 per cent. of the coconut bearing areas were destroyed during the war and the remainder is gradually being restored to production. The copra export for the year ending June 30, 1952, was 62,365 tons. Cacao plantings suffered wartime losses to the extent of about 60 per cent. 475 tons of cocoa were exported in the year ending June 30, 1952. There are indications of mineral wealth, but difficulties of transport have prevented developments. Gold mining is carried on extensively in the Morobe District and to a lesser degree in other parts of the Territory.

Civil Administration in the Territory of New Guinea was suspended on Feb. 11, 1942, and military control began on Feb. 12, 1942. Civil Administration again began to work on October 30, 1945, and areas of New Guinea were progressively transferred until final transfer on June 24, 1946, when Rabaul area was brought under the control of the Provisional Administration of Papua—New Guinea. In 1942 the major part of the Territory came under Japanese occupation but most of the occupied areas had been recaptured by Australian and Allied Forces when Japan surrendered in August, 1945.

Trusteeship.—The Commonwealth Government has placed the Territory of New Guinea under the Trusteeship system established under the United Nations Charter and the agreement under which Australia became the sole administering authority was approved by the General Assembly of the United Nation on Dec. 13, 1946.

SEAT OF ADMINISTRATION.—Administrative Headquarters of the combined territories of Papua and New Guinea is Port Moresby. Other centres in New Guinea are Port Rabaul, in New Britain, the former seat of Administration of New Guinea Mandated Territory, which was damaged by volcanic eruptions, May 29, 1937. At Bita Paka (32 miles from Rabaul) the Imperial War Graves Commission has established a permanent cemetery for some 2,800 British subjects, victims of the War in the Pacific, 1942-45. Ψ Simpson Harbour is one of the many seaports in the island. Lae, on the mainland, was the seat of administration until evacuated after Japanese attacks in Jan. 1942. On September 18, 1943, Lae was re-occupied by Australian forces. The chief town in New Ireland is Kavieng. Sohano is the administrative centre for the Bougainville district, included in which are the islands of Bougainville and Buka. Lorengau is the chief town of the Admiralty Islands.

Administrator of the Government of Papua and New Guinea, Brigadier D. M. Cleland, C.B.E.

Port Moresby is distant from Sydney, N.S.W., 1,800 miles; transit by sea from Sydney 5 to 6 days; by air 10 hours.

NORFOLK ISLAND

This island is about 930 miles from Sydney and 400 miles from New Zealand. It is about five miles in length by three in breadth, and was discovered by Capt. Cook in 1774. Its area is 8,528 acres and circumference 20 miles. The climate is mild, with a mean temperature of 68° and an annual rainfall of 53 inches. The descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty were brought here from Pitcairn Island in 1856. The population on June 30, 1949, was 1,148. Seat of Government and Administration Offices, Kingston.

Norfolk Island was visited by H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester in March, 1946, the first visit to be paid by a Governor-General of the Australian Commonwealth.

The construction of an airfield was completed in 1943, and regular air services are now in operation from Australia and New Zealand.

On June 10, 1947, a separate postal administration was established and the first issue of Norfolk Island stamps was made on that date.

Administrator, Alexander Wilson.

President, Advisory Council, E. C. Robinson, O.B.E.

NAURU ISLAND

This island, situated in 166° 35' East longitude and 32 miles south of the Equator, was discovered by Capt. Fearn, R.N., in 1798, and was annexed by Germany in 1888. It surrendered to H.M.A.S. Melbourne in November, 1924, and is now administered by Britain, Australia and New Zealand. Under an International trusteeship agreement approved by the General Assembly of U.N. on Nov. 1, 1947, this agreement supersedes the League of Nations' Mandate, but Australia continues to be responsible for the administration of the island on behalf of the grantor Governments. The island has an area of approximately 8 square miles, with a population (June 30, 1951) of 3,434, of whom 1,618 were Nauruans, 1,411 Chinese, and 274 Europeans. The Administrator has all the powers of government, administrative, legislative and judicial. The expenses of the administration are met from local revenue, including royalties on phosphate. There are valuable deposits of phosphates on the island, these having been purchased from the Pacific Phosphate Company in 1919 by the Governments of Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand for £3,500,000, and vested in the British Phosphate Commissioners.

Nauru was occupied by the Japanese from Aug. 25, 1942, to Sept. 13, 1945. Upon reoccupation of the island it was found that the destruction of the buildings and plant of both the Administration and the British Phosphate Commissioners had been extensive, but the re-establishment of the island's facilities and services is now complete. Exports of phosphates for the 12 months ended June 30, 1952, totalled 1,061,797 tons.

Administrator, Hon. J. K. Lawrence.

THE ANTARCTIC CONTINENT

The area of the Antarctic Continent is estimated at approximately 5 million square miles. The greater part of the coastline has been charted with varying degrees of accuracy, but considerable portions of the interior have not been visited, or at best have been seen only from the air.

The question of territorial rights is complicated and there is no general international agreement thereon. Argentina has 3 Antarctic bases in the zone claimed as "Argentine Territory," one being on Deception Island in the South Shetlands, which is part of the British Falkland Islands; another in Scotia Bay, and a third on Gamma Island, in the Melchior Archipelago.

The Australian Antarctic Territory was established by an Order in Council, dated February 7, 1933, which placed under the government of the Commonwealth of Australia that part of the territory in the Antarctic Seas which comprises all the islands and territories, other than Adélie Land, situated south of the 60th parallel of south latitude and lying between the 160th and 45th meridians of east longitude.

The exception of Adélie Land from the Order in Council is due to French claims based on rights of discovery and occupation.

The area administered by the Commonwealth of Australia is estimated at 2,472,000 square miles. It adjoins that belonging to New Zealand. In December, 1947, and March, 1948, respectively, Australia set up research stations on Heard Island and Macquarie Island, two islands in the Antarctic. Macquarie Island, about 1,000 miles south-east of Hobart, has been a dependency of Tasmania since the nineteenth century. Heard Island, about 2,500 miles south-west of Fremantle, was transferred from United Kingdom to Australian control on December 26, 1947.

Other British dependencies in the Antarctic are:—

(1) The Ross Dependency, placed under the jurisdiction of New Zealand by Order in Council dated July 30, 1923, and defined as all the islands and territories between the 160th meridian of east longitude and the 150th meridian of west longitude which are situated south of the 60th parallel of south latitude. The Ross Dependency includes Edward VII Land and portions of Victoria Land. There are no permanent inhabitants of the territory, but whaling is carried on extensively.

(2) The Falkland Islands Dependencies:—

- (a) South Georgia, with South Orkney and South Sandwich Islands.
- (b) South Shetland Island and Graham Land.
- (c) Coas Land and territory adjacent to the South Pole.

South Georgia is permanently inhabited and is an important seat of the whaling industry.

So far as is known the total areas of these Dependencies have not been officially estimated.

States of the Commonwealth of Australia

NEW SOUTH WALES

The State of New South Wales is situated almost entirely between the 29th and 36th parallels of S. lat. and 141st and 154th meridians of E. long., and comprises an area of 309,433 square miles (exclusive of 939 square miles of Australian Commonwealth Territory which lies within its borders).

POPULATION.—The population at December 31, 1952, was: Males, 1,725,522; Females, 1,696,246. Total, 3,421,768.

Births, Deaths and Marriages.

1950	71,592	30,955	30,036
1951	72,069	31,932	30,341
1952	74,196	32,038	29,351

Vital Statistics.—Annual rate per 1,000 mean of population in 1952:—Births, 21.88; Deaths, 9.45; Marriages, 8.66. Deaths under 1 year per 1,000 live births, 24.50.

Religions.

The members of the Church of England in New South Wales, according to the Census of 1947, number 1,293,964; Roman Catholic 676,993; Presbyterian 262,166; Methodist 246,876; Congregational (Independent) 19,331; Baptist 34,935; Salvation Army 10,871; and Hebrew 13,194. The religion of 332,530 persons was not stated in the census schedules.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

Natural features divide the State into four strips of territory extending from north to south, viz., the Coastal Divisions; the Table Lands, which form the Great Dividing Range between the coastal districts and the plains; the Western Slopes of the Dividing Range; and the Western Plains. The highest points are Mount Kosciusko, 7,328 feet, and Townsend, 7,266 feet. The coastal district is well watered by numerous rivers flowing from the ranges into fertile flats which form their lower basins. The western portion of the country is watered by the rivers of the Murray-Darling system and immense reservoirs have been constructed for irrigation purposes, and there are many artesian bores. The Darling, 1,702 miles, and the Murrumbidgee, 981 miles, are both tributaries of the Murray, which has a total length of 1,609 miles, 1,203 miles forming part of the boundary between the States of New South Wales and Victoria. Other inland rivers are: Lachlan, Bogan, Macquarie, Castlereagh, Namoi and Gwydir.

Climate.—New South Wales is situated entirely in the Temperate Zone. The climate is equable and very healthy. At the capital (Sydney) the average mean shade temperature is 63° 3". The mean temperature in the shade for the north coast is 66° to 69°, south coast 60° to 63°, northern tableland 56° to 60°, southern tableland 44° to 58°; north-western slopes, the mean annual temperature ranges from 62° to 68°; in the central-western slopes 57° to 64°, south-western slopes 60° to 62°, and in the Western Plains and Riverina Division from 61° to 69°.

GOVERNMENT.

New South Wales was first colonized as a British possession in 1788, and after progressive settlement a partly elective legislature was established in 1843, in 1855 Responsible Government was granted, the present Constitution being founded on the Constitution Act of 1902. New South Wales federated with the other States of Australia in 1901. The executive authority of the State is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), assisted by a Council of Ministers.

GOVERNOR.

Governor of New South Wales, Lieutenant-General Sir John Northcott, K.C.M.G., C.B., M.V.O., assumed office August 1, 1946, term extended for five years from August, 1951.....£5,000

THE LEGISLATURE.

Parliament consists of two Houses, the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of 60 members, elected jointly by both houses of Parliament. Membership is for 12 years. 15 members retiring in rotation triennially. Members receive an annual allowance of £500 and travel free on the State transport services. The Legislative Assembly consists of 94 members. Each member of the Legislative Assembly receives £1,875 per annum, and free travel on the State transport services. The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, removed disqualification regarding the election of women to be members of the Legislative Assembly. A provident fund for members of the Legislative Assembly was established in 1946; a pension is payable to those who on ceasing to be members have served for at least fifteen years or in three parliaments. Natural-born or naturalized persons 21 years of age, who have resided 6 months in the Commonwealth, 3 months in the State and 1 month in the electoral district, are entitled to the franchise. Voting is compulsory. At the State General Elections in June, 1950, there were 940,150 men and 979,329 women electors, making a total of 1,919,479 enrolled; in contested electorates 93 per cent. of the eligible electors voted.

EDUCATION.

Education.—Education is compulsory between the ages of 6 and 15 years. It is non-sectarian and free at all State schools. The average weekly enrolment in 1951 in 2,525 State schools was 398,899 and the average daily attendance during the year was 349,766. In addition to the State schools there were, in 1951, 740 private colleges and schools, with an average weekly enrolment of 130,790 scholars, 601 being Roman Catholic schools with 108,024 scholars. The University of Sydney, with which 6 colleges are affiliated, including two Women's Colleges, was incorporated in 1850, and had 8,336 students (6,450 male and 1,886 female) in 1951. A University of Technology was founded in 1948; the enrolment in 1951 was 4,127. The State expenditure on Education was £24,938,000 in the year 1951-52. The individual students at post-school State Technical classes numbered 69,085 in 1950. Students attending the State Agricultural Colleges and Farm schools numbered 1,021 in 1951.

The Public Debt of New South Wales at June 30, 1952, was £522,491,494, of which an amount of £122,885,584 was repayable in London (interest £3,749,457), £10,820,302 was repayable in New York (interest £364,431) and £388,785,608 was held in Australia, with an annual interest bill of £11,251,195.

Banking, &c.—There were (Dec., 1952) 12 trading banks with deposits of £523,672,000. Savings bank deposits amounted to £312,255,000, representing £92 per head of the population. The amount assured in New South Wales in Life Assurance Societies in 1951 was £434,233,000 Ordinary and £94,737,000 Industrial. The membership of Friendly Societies was 213,091, and the funds at June 30, 1951, were £6,845,201. Members of Trade Unions at Dec. 31, 1950, numbered 622,214, the funds of 215 Unions being £1,215,289.

Shipping.—Excluding coastal trade, 2,324 vessels entered ports of N.S.W. during the year ended June 30, 1952, the net tonnage being 8,972,000. The shipping entries at Sydney, including coastal, were 3,938 vessels of 8,201,000 net tonnage.

Motor Vehicles.—At March 31, 1953, there were 651,177 registered motor vehicles (cars, 354,817).

Railways.—The railways and tramways of New South Wales are controlled by the State, which also operates omnibus services. At June 30, 1952, the mileage of the State railways open for traffic was 6,113, earnings in the year 1951-52 being £68,910,000.

Aviation.—The principal overseas routes from Sydney are to the United Kingdom, New Zealand and U.S.A. Regular air transport services with terminal in N.S.W. carried 1,102,470 passengers in 1951-52.

Roads and Bridges.—There are 126,600 miles of roads and streets in New South Wales, including 53,000 miles of natural surface and cleared only. The total expenditure by the State Government and the local councils on roads, bridges, &c., in 1950-51 was £15,064,000. The construction of an arch bridge over Sydney Harbour was completed and the bridge opened for traffic in March, 1932. This bridge carries a roadway 57 ft. wide, two footways each 10 ft. wide, and four lines of railway, of which two are being used as tramways. At mean high water there is a headway of 172½ ft.

Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones.—The postal, telegraphic, telephonic and radio services are administered by the Commonwealth Government.

At June 30, 1951, there were 2,560 post offices in New South Wales. The postal matter carried during 1950-51 included 440,199,000 letters and registered articles and 101,452,000 newspapers and parcels posted for delivery in Australia. The overseas mails consisted of 12,627,000 letters and 7,156,000 newspapers and parcels despatched, 35,655,000 letters and 14,187,000 newspapers and parcels received. During the year 12,458,000 telegrams were despatched to places within Australia and 686,000 cablegrams were despatched, and 619,000 received. The telephone line connections numbered 330,368. In June, 1952, there were 12 National Broadcasting Stations in New South Wales and 36 commercial stations operating under licence. The number of broadcast listeners' licences was 741,355. Seaborne mail reaches United Kingdom from Sydney in from 4 to 6 weeks, airborne mail in 4/6 days.

OVERSEAS TRADE.

1952.....	429,094,136	201,459,568

The chief exports in 1951-52 were foodstuffs, wool, hides and skins, metals and machinery. Chief imports were tea, tobacco, piece goods, petrol, motor vehicles, machinery, iron and steel, timber, paper and rubber.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY

Agriculture is one of the principal industries of New South Wales; 4,700,512 acres were under cultivation during the year ended March 31, 1952.

The total area under wheat was 2,930,170 acres, of which 2,753,317 acres were harvested for grain, and 120,756 acres for hay. The production of wheat was 39,689,283 bushels of grain and 157,506 tons of hay. Other important crops in 1951-52 were 1,410,312 bushels of maize, 9,395,115 bushels of oats, 3,047,467 bushels of rice besides other kinds of grain, 52,020 tons of potatoes, and 4,626 cwt. of dried leaf tobacco. Sugar-cane to the extent of 321,388 tons was crushed; while 2,229,192 bushels of bananas were obtained; almost every kind of fruit and vegetable is grown. There were 17,047 acres of vineyards, of which 15,067 acres were bearing.

Land Alienation.—The total extent of land alienated and in process of alienation from the Crown on June 30, 1952, was 65,537,583 acres, while the area of land under lease, &c., from the Crown was 116,535,826 acres, and the balance 15,963,711 acres, consisted of reserve and other lands neither alienated nor leased; the total area of the State, exclusive of the Australian Capital Territory, is 198,037,120 acres.

Live Stock.—The country is admirably adapted for sheep-farming, the principal breed of sheep being the celebrated merino, which was introduced in 1797. On Mar. 31, 1952, there were 310,600 horses, 3,620,953 cattle, 53,676,000 sheep and lambs, 292,829 pigs. In 1951-52, 437,837,000 lb. (stated as in the grease) of wool were produced, 56,543,326 lb. butter, 4,470,230 lb. cheese, and 24,627,295 lb. of bacon and ham.

Values of Industries.—In 1951-52 the net value of production of the primary and manufacturing industries was £775,591,000—primary £332,200,000 and manufacturing £443,391,000. The values of the principal primary industries were: pastoral £153,779,000, agricultural £58,333,000 and farm-yard £44,508,000.

Forests.—The estimated forest area is 30,000,000 acres, of which State forests cover 6,136,000 acres and 1,386,000 have been set aside as timber reserves.

Mining Industry.—The goldfields were opened in 1851. The principal minerals are coal, copper, silver, lead, zinc, tin, zircon and rutile. The total value of minerals won in 1951 was £71,643,681; the value of output of the coal mining industry was £31,466,163, and of the silver-lead-zinc industry, £33,168,659. The mining industry gave employment to 29,399 miners during 1951. In 1952, 15,020,000 tons of coal were produced, a record figure.

Factories.—In 1951-52 there were 18,144 factories. The average number of persons employed during the year was 405,994. The value of output of the factories was £1,139,346,000; materials used £647,291,000; the production, i.e. value added to raw materials, was £443,391,000. Large iron and steel works with subsidiary factories are in operation at Newcastle and Port Kembla in proximity to the coalfields. The products include iron and steel of various grades, pipes, boilers steel wire and wire netting, copper wire, copper and brass cables, and spun cast-iron pipes. The production (1951-52) of pig-iron was 1,219,000 tons, and of ingot steel 1,473,000 tons.

TOWNS.

Ψ SYDNEY, the chief city and capital, stands on the shores of Port Jackson, with a water frontage of 15½ miles; the depth of water at the Heads is not less than 80 feet, and at the wharves up to 40 ft. There are extensive facilities for handling cargo, and for storing and loading grain in bulk or bags; also for replenishing coal and oil bunkers. For 20 miles Sydney Harbour extends inland, the finest harbour in the world, and is surrounded by scenery of surpassing beauty. The principal wharves are situated in close proximity to the business centre of the city. The total area of water in the harbour is 13,600 acres, or about 21 square miles, of which approximately one-half has a depth of not less than 30 ft.: the rise and fall of the tide is from 3 to 6 ft. The city and suburbs contain approximately 246 square miles, with a population of 1,610,380 (Estimated, Dec. 31, 1951).

The parks in or adjacent to the metropolitan area include the National Park which measures 34,392 acres, Kuring-gai Chase 38,263 acres, Kurnell 248 acres, Centennial Park 474 acres, and Parramatta Park 252 acres.

Other cities and towns over 10,000 are Ψ Newcastle 136,480; Wollongong (Greater) 78,660; Broken Hill 32,310; Maitland 21,150; Goulburn 18,060; Wagga Wagga 18,520; Lismore 16,930; Lithgow 16,360; Albury 16,700; Orange 17,820; Cessnock 13,840; Tamworth 13,700; Grafton and South Grafton 13,440; Bathurst 13,260; and Dubbo 10,900.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The Great Dividing Range on the eastern coast of the continent produces a similar formation to that of New South Wales, the eastern side having a narrow slope to the coast and the western a long and gradual slope to the central plains, where the Kirby's Range divides the land into a northern and southern watershed. The Brisbane, Burnett, Fitzroy, and Burdekin rise in the eastern ranges and flow into the Pacific, the Flinders, Mitchell, and Leichhardt into the Gulf of Carpentaria, and the Barcoo and Warrego rise in the central ranges and flow southwards.

Climate.—At Brisbane the mean temperature for 1952 was 69.4° , the maximum and minimum shade temperatures being 101.8° and 39.5° ; mean barometer, 30.02 inches. The coastal regions are warm and moist, but the rainfall decreases away from the coast and is scanty in the far west. The rainfall in Brisbane during 1952 was 33.5 inches, compared with average rainfall of 40.1 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

Queensland was constituted a separate colony with Responsible Government in 1859, having previously formed part of New South Wales. The executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), aided by an Executive Council of 11 members.

EDUCATION

Primary Education compulsory, secular and free. At the end of 1951 there were 1,565 State schools, including 46 Provisional and 20 High schools in operation, with 5,976 teachers and a net enrolment of 171,107 children and 246 private and 8 grammar schools, with a net enrolment of 45,323. A State-aided University, established during 1920, had 4,014 students in 1951. State expenditure on education in 1951-52 was £7,113,467.

FINANCE.

Receipts and Expenditure of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and Debt of Queensland for four years ended June 30:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt (Gross)
	£A	£A	£A
1949...	32,979,078	32,929,355	144,125,144
1950...	37,119,201	37,089,902	150,661,535
1951...	44,722,924	44,624,761	166,156,901
1952...	55,753,114	55,707,719	187,309,758

Banking.—Advances made by Trading Banks (including the general banking division of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia) at June 30, 1952, totalled £110,187,000. The deposits at the same date amounted to £158,762,000. Depositors' balances in Queensland branch of the Commonwealth Savings Bank at June 30, 1952, £102,661,000, averaged £82 17s. 11d. to each inhabitant. There were 816,666 operative accounts.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The gross value of primary production in 1950-51 was £197,971,000 (agriculture £41,294,000, dairying £24,240,000, pastoral £112,635,000, poultry and bee-keeping £1,733,000, mining £11,019,000, forestry £5,879,000, fisheries £1,062,000, hunting and trapping £109,000), and net value of manufacturing £75,460,000.

Agriculture and Live Stock.—Of the total area of 429,120,000 acres the Government has parted with the fee simple of 24,140,505 acres, and 3,609,146 acres more are in process of alienation.

The total area under crop in 1951-52 was 2,021,201 acres. The most important crop was sugar-cane, under which there were 388,348 acres, producing 704,341 tons of raw sugar. 454,543 acres were under wheat (yielding 6,631,644 bushels), and 111,181 under maize (2,438,871 bushels). English and sweet potatoes are cultivated, as also are sorghum, tomatoes, pea-nuts, cotton, tobacco, arrowroot, various citrus fruits, pine-apples, bananas, grapes, mangoes, papaws, apples, peaches, plums, and other English fruits. The live stock on March 31, 1952, included 6,434,374 cattle, 1,296,659 being dairy cattle, 16,163,518 sheep, 288,606 horses, and 316,529 pigs.

Forestry.—There are about 17,440,000 acres of commercial timberland in Queensland, of which there have been reserved for forestry purposes 7,652,000 acres. An area of 765,000 acres has been reserved for National Parks.

Minerals.—There are rich deposits of gold, copper, tin, lead, silver, zinc, limestone, ironstone, and wolfram. Coal is mined in the Ipswich (near Brisbane) and some northern districts, and there is extensive production by open-cut method in Central Queensland. The output in 1951 included gold, £1,217,000; coal, £4,499,000; copper, £1,206,000; tin, £307,000; silver, £1,096,000; lead, £6,521,000; zinc, £4,551,000.

Communications.—The State is served by 6,560 miles of railways, practically all 3 ft. 6 in. in gauge. During 1951-52, 35,028,951 passengers and 6,822,590 tons of goods and live stock were carried. At June 30, 1951, there were 58,056 miles of formed roads and 75,293 miles of unconstructed roads in the State, and 240,784 motor vehicles were on the register.

The chief overseas exports are wool, sugar, butter, meat and minerals.

TOWNS.

CAPITAL. Ψ BRISBANE, population 464,000 at June 30, 1952, is situated on the Brisbane River, which is navigable by large vessels to the city, over 10 miles from Moreton Bay. The City Hall is a notable building, and there are fine Government and private buildings. There are two Cathedrals, a University, a Museum, Botanic Gardens, &c. The Greater Brisbane area (385 square miles) is controlled by a City Council presided over by a Lord Mayor.

Ψ The main ports in their order along the coast are Brisbane, Maryborough (17,000), Bundaberg (18,500), Gladstone (6,500), Rockhampton (38,500), Mackay (14,900), Bowen (3,660), Townsville (37,700), Cairns (19,000), Port Douglas, Cooktown, and Thursday Island.

Other towns are Ipswich (35,900), Redcliffe (11,300), Gympie (9,200), Southport (8,430), and Coolangata (4,053) in the south-east; Toowoomba (40,000), Warwick (8,250) and Dalby (5,200) on the Darling Downs; Roma (4,080) and Charleville (3,900) in the south-west; Mt. Morgan (3,942), near Rockhampton; and Charters Towers (7,650), and Mount Isa (3,504) inland from Townsville.

Thursday Island, the smallest of the Prince of Wales group, in long. 142° E. and lat. 11° S., has an area of 900 acres. It lies in Torres Strait, about 30 miles N.W. of Cape York and some 1,400 miles by sea from Brisbane. The island had a population of 1,150 at June 30, 1952, and is the headquarters of the pearshell and bêche-de-mer fisheries.

Transmission of mails from London to Brisbane, by air, 5 days; by sea (approximate), 32 days.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

The State of South Australia is situated between 26° and 37° S. lat. and 120° and 141° E. long., the total area being 380,070 sq. miles.

POPULATION.—In 1952 the population numbered 751,535 (373,778 males and 377,757 females). The number of full-blooded aboriginals is estimated at less than 3,000.

Increase of the People.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1949	16,042	6,373	6,247
1950	17,306	6,740	6,585
1951	17,463	7,184	6,646
1952	17,884	7,050	6,241

Birth rate (1945-49) 24.1, death rate 9.8, marriage rate 9.8 per 1,000 of population. Infantile mortality 27.3 per 1,000 births.

Religion.

Religion is free and receives no State aid. At the Census, 1947, the persons belonging to the principal religious denominations were as follows: Church of England, 188,151; Methodists, 170,513; Congregationalists, 13,916; Baptists, 18,431; Lutherans, 28,713; Roman Catholics, 80,990; Presbyterians, 24,304; and Churches of Christ, 16,877.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The eastern portion of the State is divided longitudinally by the Flinders Range, which extends from the eastern side of the Gulf of St. Vincent to the Lakes Torrens and Eyre. The north-western portion is partly desert, while the northern portion of the State, between Lake Eyre and 26° South latitude, is unpromising in comparison with the fertile land that surrounds the hill country of the east. Except for the Murray, which flows for some 250 miles through the south-eastern corner into the Southern Ocean, there are no rivers of importance in South Australia.

The construction of a pipe line, 235 miles long, from Morgan, on the Murray, to Whyalla, on Spencer's Gulf, was completed in 1944. This provides water for large industries at Whyalla, and augments the supplies for farming and industrial districts en route. The cost was £2,500,000, and total capacity 1,200,000,000 gallons annually for Whyalla, and 900,000,000 for intervening northern districts.

Climate.—The mean annual temperature at Adelaide is 63°, the winter temperature (July–August) averaging 53°, and the summer (November–March) 71°. During the summer months the maximum temperature at times exceeds 100°, but owing to the purity and dryness of the atmosphere the inconvenience is comparatively slight. The average annual rainfall at Adelaide, derived from 100 years' record, is 21 inches. This total is rather higher than the approximate average annual rainfall over the whole of the agricultural areas. In the Mount Lofty Ranges the mean yearly rainfall in places exceeds 40 inches, while on the Adelaide plains the precipitation has fallen as low as 16 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

South Australia was proclaimed a British Province in 1836, and in 1851 a partially elective legislature was established. The present Constitution rests upon a Law of Oct. 24, 1856, the executive authority being vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown, aided by a Council of 6 Ministers, and the Lieutenant-Governor.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council of 20 members elected for 6 years, one-half retiring every 3 years; and a House of Assembly of 39 members, elected for a maximum duration of 3 years. Election is by ballot, with universal adult suffrage for the House of Assembly for all British subjects, male and female; there is a small property qualification for electors to the Legislative Council, who numbered 167,345 in 1951, those for the Assembly numbering 447,266.

The triennial elections to the House of Assembly in March, 1953, returned 21 Liberals (Government party), 14 Labour (Opposition) and 4 Independents.

President of the Legislative Council, Hon. Sir

Walter Duncan..... £1,750

Speaker of the House of Assembly, Hon. Sir

EDUCATION.

Public Education (Primary, Secondary and Technical) is provided by the State, and controlled by a responsible Minister; it is secular, compulsory, and free. In 1952 there were 723 State schools, with 107,926 scholars; State expenditure in 1951–52 was £4,920,984, including grants to University, Libraries, &c. The Government grants Exhibitions and Scholarships, carrying the holders to higher schools and the University. Private schools number 156 with 26,921 scholars. There is an endowed University at Adelaide, founded in 1874, with (1951) 2,242 undergraduates, and 2,103 other students; all classes are open to women. A State School of Mines and Industries has also been established, and there are technical schools at 17 country centres and also special trade schools for apprentices and domestic art centres. The public library, museum, art gallery and local institutes are supported or assisted by the State.

STATE FINANCE.

(For years ended June 30)

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	£A	£A	£A
1948	18,843,226	19,155,756	118,851,946
1949	21,844,958	22,129,381	124,719,766
1950	29,360,429	29,550,106	133,174,535
1951	33,672,222	33,442,693	148,388,020
1952	42,638,000	42,549,000	173,436,000

Banking.—There are 9 banking institutions in Adelaide, including the Commonwealth Government Bank and the State Bank of South Australia, with about 400 branches and agencies, having total average deposits of £101,400,000 in December quarter, 1952. The savings banks on December 31, 1952, had deposits amounting to £107,260,000. Savings Bank accounts average over £140 per head of the population, and insurance policies average £180 per head of population.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY.

The gross value of production in 1951–52 was: crops £60,250,000, pastoral £43,020,000, mines and quarries £5,460,000, dairying £10,570,000, fisheries, game and poultry, and forestry £8,170,000.

Land Tenure.—Of the total area of the State (243 million acres), 12 million acres have been sold; 2 million have been alienated by the Crown under systems of deferred payment; 116 million acres are held under pastoral leases and 22 million under other miscellaneous leases.

Agriculture.—The total area cultivated is 6,040,000 acres—under wheat, 1951-52, 1,613,000 acres, hay 260,000, oats 387,000, barley 832,000. Wheat harvest 1951-52, 27,300,000 bushels; barley, 16,830,000 bushels. Oranges, lemons, apples, apricots, peaches, and all stone fruits and olives are successfully grown, and fruit drying is profitable. There were 62,000 acres of vines with a production of 25,000,000 gallons of wine annually, 105,000 cwt. of dried currants and 145,000 cwt. of sultanas and raisins. Considerable quantities of fruits (fresh and dried) and also wine are annually sent to overseas countries, principally the United Kingdom, and the other Australian States. Brandy and other spirits are also produced. The land is also very suitable for the growing of all kinds of root crops and vegetables.

Live Stock (March 31, 1952).—There were 11,470,000 sheep, 437,000 cattle, 63,000 horses, 65,000 pigs. Wool production (1951-52), 135,000,000 lb.

Minerals.—Iron, gypsum, salt, copper, gold, opals, &c., are found, the total mineral output being valued at £5,460,000 (1951).

Manufactures.—In 1952 there were 3,245 factories, employing 82,189 hands, the gross value of the output being £232,015,000. Plant, machinery, land and buildings were valued at £61,000,000.

Transport, &c.—There were (1951) 3,855 miles of railway in South Australia, 150 miles of electric tramways, 52,000 miles of roads and several good harbours. The railway mileage includes the Transcontinental Railway from Port Pirie (South Australia) to Kalgoorlie (Western Australia) which forms a link in the system from Brisbane to Fremantle; and also part of the Commonwealth line from Port Augusta to the Northern Territory. There are 850 post offices in the State.

Civil Aviation.—There are 27 Government or licensed aerodromes, and 323,000 passengers and 7,750 tons of freight were carried in 1951-52.

Motor Vehicles.—The registrations in December, 1952, were 200,449, equal to 1 per 3.7 persons.

Wireless (1953).—Broadcasting stations 12. Listeners' licences 211,000.

Year	Imports	Exports
	£A	£A
1938-39	6,668,000	14,822,330
1949-50	45,755,000	63,932,000
1950-51	56,001,000	107,674,000
1951-52	93,033,000	97,251,000

The principal exports are breadstuffs, pastoral and dairying products, fruits, wine and minerals.

TOWNS.

ΨADELAIDE, the chief city and capital, population (1952), 450,000, inclusive of suburbs within 10 miles radius. Other towns are (1947 Population figures) Moonta (2,300), Kadina (3,300), Wallaroo (2,200), ΨPort Pirie (12,800), ΨWhyalla (7,850), and ΨPort Augusta (4,500) at the head of Spencer Gulf, and Salisbury (2,900), Gawler (5,000), and Peterborough (3,000) on the line from Adelaide to the north, Mt. Gambier (7,500), Naracoorte (3,000) and Millicent (2,500) in the south-east, and ΨPort Lincoln (4,100) on Eyre Peninsula. Murray Bridge (4,300), Renmark (5,000), Berrl (2,400) on the River Murray, and Victor Harbour (2,700) on the south coast.

The surveying frigate Lachlan, taking soundings off the South Australian coastline in May 1947, as a preliminary to the establishment of a deep-water harbour at Robe, discovered a break in the submarine continental shelf that surrounds most of Australia. The gap is a huge canyon, estimated to be comparable with the Grand Canyon in Colorado. Geologists regard the discovery as outstandingly important. The soundings showed, in half a mile, a 3,000-ft. sheer drop to sea floor level. Similar formations exist at the mouths of the Hudson River and the Amazon. The existence of the canyon had long been suspected and it probably outdates the last glacial period.

Transit.—Transmission of mails from London to Adelaide, approximate, 29 days by sea and 5 days by air.

TASMANIA

Tasmania is an island in the South Pacific Ocean off the southern extremity of Australia, from which it is separated by Bass Straits, about 140 miles wide, in which are situated the Furneaux Group and King Island, included within the State. It lies between 40° 33'-43° 39' S. lat. and 144° 39'-148° 23' E. long., and contains an area of 26,215 square miles.

POPULATION.—On June 30, 1952, the estimated population numbered 302,111 (155,916 males and 146,195 females).

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1939	5,004	2,426	2,264
1950	7,242	2,466	2,560
1951	7,357	2,567	2,607
1952	7,916	2,579	2,553

The birth rate in 1952 was 26.02, death rate 8.48, marriage rate 8.39 per 1,000. Infant mortality (1952) 21.73 per 1,000 births.

Religion.

In 1947 there were 123,158 members of the Church of England, 20,285 Roman Catholics, 33,358 Methodists, 12,644 Presbyterians, 4,007 Congregationalists and Independents, and 5,374 Baptists.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The surface of the country is generally hilly and timbered, with mountains from 1,500 to 5,000 ft. in height, and expanses of level, open plains. There are numerous streams, the Derwent and the Tamar being the largest. The climate is fine and salubrious, and well suited to European constitutions; the hot winds of Australia do not reach the island. At Hobart the mean annual temperature averages 54.4°, the mean temperature for Dec., Jan., and Feb. being 61.5°, and that of June, July and Aug. 46.9°. The western side of the island is very wet, the eastern side having a rainfall similar to that of eastern England; the average rainfall varies from 20 inches to 100 inches in different parts.

GOVERNMENT.

The island was first settled by the British in 1803 as an appendage to New South Wales, from which it was separated in 1825. In 1851 a partly elective legislature was inaugurated, and in 1856 Responsible Government was established. In 1901 Tasmania became a State of the Australian Commonwealth. The State executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), aided by an Executive Council of Ministers responsible to the Legislature.

GOVERNOR.

Governor of Tasmania, His Excellency The Right Hon. Sir Ronald Hibbert Cross, Bt., appd. July 1, 1951.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Parliament consists of two Houses, a Legislative Council of 19 members, elected for six years (3 retiring annually, in rotation, except in every sixth year, when four retire) and a House of Assembly of 30 members, elected by proportional representation for five years, the electors for the latter being all adult Tasmanians who have resided continuously in the State for 6 months; the electorate for the Council is smaller, having a property or educational qualification for both sexes, but war service is a qualification for enrolment. The General Election for the House of Assembly in May, 1950, resulted in the return of 15 Labour, 14 Liberal and 1 Independent members.

President of the Legislative Council, Hon. Sir Rupert Oakley Shoobridge.

Clerk of the Council, Edgar Briggs.

Speaker of House of Assembly, Hon. L. T. Spurr.

Clerk of the House, Charles K. Murphy, C.B.E.

THE JUDICATURE.

The Supreme Court of Tasmania, with civil, criminal, ecclesiastical, admiralty and matrimonial jurisdiction, was established by Royal Charter on October 13, 1923.

Chief Justice, Hon. Sir John Demetrius Morris, K.C.M.G.

Justice Judges, Hon. R. K. Green; Hon. M. G. Gibson; Hon. M. P. Crisp.

Registrar of the Supreme Court, H. R. Dobbie.

Local Courts were established under the Local Courts Act, 1896, and are held before Commissioners who are legal practitioners, with a jurisdiction up to £250 in some cases, and up to £100 in others. Courts of General Sessions, constituted by a chairman who is a Justice of the Peace and at least one other Justice, are established in the municipalities for the recovery of debts and demands not exceeding £50. Courts of Petty Sessions are established under the Justices Procedure Act, 1919, constituted by Police Magistrates sitting alone, or any two or more justices.

EDUCATION

Primary education is compulsory, secular and free, there being 324 State schools divided into Primary, Area, High and Technical High Schools, with a total enrolment of 49,450 scholars in 1951. There were 58 Private schools with an enrolment of 9,542. Compulsory education to the age of 16 became operative from Feb. 1, 1946. The University of Tasmania at Hobart, established 1890, had 558 students in 1951; there are technical schools at Hobart, Launceston, Burnie, Devonport, Queenstown, Rosebery, Ulverstone and Zeehan.

VICTORIA

The State of Victoria comprises the south-east corner of Australia, at that part where its territory projects farthest into the southern latitudes; it lies between the 34th and 39th parallels of South latitude, and the 141st and 150th meridians of East longitude. Its extreme length from east to west is about 493 miles, its greatest breadth is about 290 miles, and its extent of coast-line is about 980 geographical miles, including the length around Port Phillip Bay, Western Port and Corner Inlet, the entire area being 87,884 square miles.

Population.—The population at December 31, 1952, was 2,356,823 (1,192,644 males and 1,164,179 females).

Increase of the People.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1939	30,493	20,169	17,368
1950	40,830	22,342	20,320
1951	50,553	23,446	21,117
1952	53,738	23,322	20,220

Vital Statistics.—Annual rate per 1,000 of population in 1952:—Births, 23.02; Deaths, 9.99; Marriages, 8.66. Deaths under 1 year per 1,000 births, 22.29.

Religion.

There has been no State aid to religion since 1875. Members of the Church of England at the date of the census in 1947 numbered 729,902, "Protestants" 27,273, Presbyterians 288,383, Methodists 234,595, Baptists 32,020, Church of Christ 29,722, Congregationalists 11,374, and Roman Catholics 416,873. The number of persons who did not state their religion was 212,938.

PHYSIOGRAPHY.

The Australian Alps and the Great Dividing Range pass through the centre of the State, and divide it into a northern and southern watershed, the latter sloping down to the ocean and containing, especially in the south-east, well-wooded valleys. The length of the Murray River, which forms part of the northern boundary of Victoria, is 997 miles along the Victorian bank. Melbourne, the capital city, stands upon the Yarra-Yarra, which rises in the southern slopes of the Dividing Range.

Climate.—The climate of Victoria is characterized by warm summers, rather cold winters, and rain in all months with a maximum in winter or spring. Prevailing winds are southerly from November to February inclusive, with a moderate percentage of northerlies often associated with high temperatures. Northerly or westerly winds predominate from March to October inclusive. Rain on an average falls 156 days per year, the annual average being 25.89 inches.

GOVERNMENT.

Victoria was originally known as the Port Phillip District of New South Wales, and was created into a separate colony in 1851, with a partially elective legislature. In 1855 Responsible Government was conferred. The executive authority is vested in a Governor, appointed by the Crown, aided by an Executive Council of Ministers.

Governor of the State of Victoria, His Excellency General Sir Dallas Brooks, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O., R.M., born Aug. 22, 1896, appointed 1949. £6,000

EDUCATION.

Primary Education is compulsory, secular and free between the ages of 6 and 14. At December 31, 1951, there were 1,950 Primary Schools (including one Correspondence School) attended by 206,833 pupils; 169 Secondary Schools (including one Correspondence School) with an enrolment of 52,811; and 35 Technical Schools (30 of which possess a Junior section with 13,524 pupils in attendance) with a roll of 55,334.

During 1951, 99,215 pupils attended 490 independent schools, most of which are Roman Catholic, as the Roman Catholic Church in the State maintains an independent scholastic organization.

There is a State-aided University at Melbourne with five affiliated colleges—Trinity, Ormond, Queen's, Newman (which have connexions with the Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches respectively), and the University Women's College. The University had 8,234 students in 1951 and 1,422 passed the matriculation examination in that year.

FINANCE.

The revenue and expenditure and State Debt for four years are given as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	£A	£A	£A
1938-39	29,354,711	20,141,953	179,698,118
1940-50	58,287,237	58,546,047	217,413,000
1950-51	66,815,071	67,158,298	250,933,000
1951-52	85,821,891	88,228,633	302,449,030

Banking, &c.—The state savings bank deposits at June 30, 1952, amounted to £224,347,000; in addition, deposits in the Commonwealth savings bank (in the State of Victoria) amounted to £76,485,000.

Life Assurance.—There were 18 companies transacting life assurance business in Victoria during 1951. There were 717,255 policies in force with sums assured amounting to £360,500,469 in the Ordinary Department and 1,240,361 policies for £81,457,723 in the Industrial Department.

Insurance (other than Life).—There were 145 companies or other bodies transacting business in Victoria during the year 1951-52. Total revenue amounted to £25,160,140, made up of premium income £24,441,250 and other income £718,890. Expenditure totalled £20,217,065, comprising losses £12,204,677, commission and agents' charges £2,760,890 and other expenditure £5,251,498.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY

The total value of production in 1950-51 was £579,020,000—agriculture £67,718,000, pastoral £168,411,000, dairying £35,991,000, poultry and bee keeping £14,016,000, trapping £3,395,000, forestry £7,102,000, mining and quarries £5,907,000, fisheries £821,000, manufactures £275,660,000.

Agriculture.—Of the 6,297,477 acres under cultivation in 1951-52, 2,463,574 were wheat crops and 676,503 oats and 640,418 acres were cut for hay. In 1951-52, 3,472,352 gallons of wine were produced.

Live Stock.—There were in March, 1952, 21,537,229 sheep, 1,438,523 dairy cattle, 776,007 beef cattle, 213,670 pigs, and 169,246 horses. The quantity of wool produced in 1951-52 was 224,958,000 lb., valued at £63,637,000.

Minerals.—Gold production rose from 24,119 oz. in 1930 to 180,567 oz. in 1940 and due to war conditions declined to 54,086 oz. in 1944. It has since shown a slight increase. Production in 1951 was 68,628 oz. Other minerals raised consisted principally of coal (black and brown), limestone, kaolin, tin, gypsum, antimony concentrates and bauxite.

Motor Vehicle Registrations.—The number of vehicles on the register at Dec. 31, 1952, was: private cars, 368,944; commercial, 85,021; hire 4,898; primary producers, 44,038; omnibuses, 1,172 and motor cycles, 34,874.

Victoria State Railways.—At June 30, 1952, there were 4,694 miles of railway open for traffic. The revenue and expenditure for the year ended June 30, 1952, were £26,089,432 and £29,611,867 respectively, and interest charges, exchange, &c., amounted to £2,343,100. Total traffic mileage was 16,973,060 and passenger journeys numbered 165,131,000. The tonnage of goods and live stock carried was 9,204,000.

Shipping.—During the year ended June 30, 1952, 2,318 vessels with net tonnage 8,753,000 entered Victorian ports while 2,271 vessels with total net tonnage of 8,862,000 cleared.

Trade and Industry.—Wool, wheat, flour, butter, live stocks, fruits, milk and cream, meats and poultry are the staple productions of the State; but secondary industry (14,758 factories, &c., employing 324,143 hands in 1951-52) has expanded greatly in recent years. The export trade (excluding inter-state trade) consists largely of agricultural and pastoral products. The principal overseas imports of the State are apparel, textiles, manufactured fibres, machines and machinery, metals and metal manufactures, tea, timber, petroleum spirit, paper, stationery, &c., and drugs and chemicals.

OVERSEAS TRADE.

CITIES AND TOWNS.

Ψ MELBOURNE, the capital city, which is an episcopal see, was originally laid out in the year 1837 with wisdom and foresight; its wide streets, park lands, public gardens, university, public library, museum and large churches are the principal features of the city. Melbourne and suburbs cover an area of 198,525 acres and contained on December 31, 1952, a population of 393,000. Other cities and towns are ΨGeelong, 49,050; Ballarat, 43,130; Bendigo, 32,850; ΨWarrnambool, 11,000; Mildura, 11,100; Wonthaggi, 4,350; Hamilton, 8,200; Shepparton, 10,500; Maryborough, 6,900; Colac, 7,600; Horsham, 7,400; Castlemaine, 6,350; Ararat, 7,150; Wangaratta, 9,500; Stawell, 5,300; Echuca, 5,200; Sale, 6,100 and Swan Hill, 4,900.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA

Includes all that portion of the continent west of 120° E. long., the most westerly point being in 112° 52' E. long., and from 13° 30' to 35° 8' S. lat. Its extreme length is 1,500 miles, and 1,000 miles from east to west; total area 975,920 sq. miles.

POPULATION.—At December 31, 1952, the population was 614,483 (317,208 males and 297,275 females).

The estimated number of full-blooded aboriginals on June 30, 1952, was 15,000.

Year	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1949	13,511	4,700	4,951
1950	14,228	5,058	5,434
1951	14,794	5,288	5,390
1952	15,413	5,209	5,389

Religions.—Census of 1947—222,250 Church of England, 96,222 Roman Catholics, 59,194 Methodists, and 31,809 Presbyterians.

Physical Features.—Large areas of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Bruce (4,024 ft.) in the north-west division or that of Bluff Knoll (3,640 ft.) in the Stirling Range in the south-west. The coastal regions are undulating, with an interior slope to the unsettled central portion of Australia. The Darling and Hamersley ranges of the west have a seaward slope to the Indian Ocean, into which flow many streams, notably the Preston, Collic, Murray, Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue, and De Grey. In the north the Fitzroy flows from the King Leopold ranges into the Indian Ocean, and the Drysdale of Ord into the Timor Sea. The greater portion of the State may be described as an immense tableland, with an altitude of from 1,000 to 2,000 ft. above sea-level, the surface of which varies from stretches of clayey soils to the sand dunes of the far interior. The climate is one of the most temperate in the world. The total rainfall at Perth during 1952 was 39.28 inches, the average for the past 77 years 34.97. Of the total area two-thirds is suitable for pastoral purposes.

GOVERNMENT.

Western Australia was first settled by the British in 1829, and in 1870 it was granted a partially elective legislature. In 1890 responsible government was granted, and the Administration vested in a Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The present constitution rests upon an Amending Act of 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911; the Executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and aided by a Council of responsible Ministers.

The Legislative Assembly (elected February, 1953) is composed of Labour Party 26, Liberal and Country League 15, Country Party 9.

1952	33,955,157	34,546,768	138,288,531

Banking.—There were, including the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, 9 cheque-paying banks in the State on June 30, 1952. The amount due to depositors in Savings Banks on Dec. 31, 1952, was £48,618,214.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY

The gross value of primary production in 1951-52 was: agricultural £43,372,266, pastoral and trapping £42,036,274; dairying, poultry keeping and bee-farming £9,388,982; forestry £4,258,405; fisheries £1,252,545; mining £13,487,712.

Crops and Live Stock.—Of the total area under crop (4,507,924 acres), 3,095,000 acres were under wheat for grain, the 1951-52 crop being estimated at 40,000,000 bushels. On March 31, 1952, the livestock included 851,534 cattle, 12,187,752 sheep, 86,224 pigs and 53,347 horses. In 1951-52 there were 9,358 acres of vineyards and 21,719 acres of orchards. The wool clip in 1951 was 114,288,000 lb. in the grease.

Manufacturing Industries.—There were on June 30, 1952, a total of 3,266 industrial establishments in the State employing either machinery or at least four hands. The total number of persons employed in them was 45,071.

Forestry.—The forests contain some of the very finest hardwoods in the world. Two of these, jarrah (Eucalyptus marginata) and karri (Eucalyptus diversicolor), are largely exported. The quantity of timber sawn and hewn during the 12 months ended June, 1952, is computed to have been 200,000,000 super feet.

Minerals.—The mines of the Coolgardie and adjacent goldfields, which cover a vast portion of the interior and extend to the 125th meridian, and of the northern fields, are being constantly worked. The production of gold in the State for 1952 was 729,975 fine oz. (£A11,847,917). The total amount produced from 1886 to Dec. 31, 1952 is 54,820,196 fine oz. (£A336,671,565). Magnetic iron, lead, copper, tin and manganese ores and coal, asbestos, bauxite and gypsum exist in large quantities.

Communications.—On June 30, 1952, there were 4,113 miles of State government railway; 277 miles of private lines open for general and passenger traffic; and 450 miles of Commonwealth line (Kalgoorlie—Port Pirie Junction). On Dec. 31, 1952, there were on the state register 333 vessels, of 11,214 tons, of which 119 were steamers (7,735 tons) and 214 sailing vessels (3,479 tons).

AUSTRALIAN OIL REFINERIES

In November, 1951, it was announced by the Minister of National Development that a number of schemes for new and enlarged oil refineries in Australia were in preparation. Among the companies concerned were the Shell Company of Australia, which was building a refinery at Geelong with a capacity of about 1,000,000 tons annually, and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which was considering the erection of a refinery at Kwinana, near Fremantle, Western Australia, with an annual capacity of about 3,000,000 tons. In January, 1952, it was further announced that the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company had decided to proceed at once with the establishment of the Fremantle refinery, which was expected to cost about £40,000,000 and to be completed by 1956. The plant is to refine Middle Eastern oil, and to export its products as well as to supply the Australian market. Distribution in Australia is to be by Commonwealth Oil Refineries, Ltd., a subsidiary of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. It is hoped that when the refinery is in full production it will be capable of satisfying forty per cent. of Australia's requirements of petroleum products. An agreement between the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and the Western Australian Government for the construction of the refinery was signed on March 4, 1952, and ratified by the Western Australian Parliament on March 15. In June, 1952, Catlex Oil, Ltd., an Australian Company, announced that it would build a refinery at Botany Bay, New South Wales, at a cost of £25,000,000.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

New Zealand consists of a number of islands of varying size in the South Pacific Ocean, and has also administrative responsibility for a large uninhabited tract in the Antarctic Ocean. The two largest and most important islands, the North and South Islands of New Zealand, are separated by only a relatively narrow strait. The remaining islands are very much smaller and, in general, are widely dispersed over a considerable expanse of ocean. The boundaries, inclusive of the most outlying islands and dependencies, range from 8° South latitude to South of 60° South latitude, and from 160° East longitude to 150° West longitude.

Geographical Features.—The two principal islands have a total length of 1,040 miles, and a combined area of 102,374 square miles. A large portion of the surface is mountainous in character. The principal range is that of the Southern Alps, having its culminating point in Mount Cook (12,349 ft.). The North Island mountains include several volcanoes, two of which are active, others being dormant or extinct. Mt. Ruapehu (9,175 ft.) and Mt. Ngauruhoe (7,515 ft.) are the most important. Of the numerous glaciers in the South Island, the Tasman (18 miles long by $1\frac{1}{2}$ wide), the Franz Josef and the Fox are the best known. The North Island in particular is noted for its hot springs and geysers. For the most part the rivers are too short and rapid for considerable use in navigation. The more important include the Waikato (270 miles in length), Wanganui (180), and Clutha (210). Lakes (Taupo, 238 sq. miles in area; Wakatipu, 112; and Te Anau, 132) are abundant, many of them of great beauty.

Climate.—New Zealand has a moist-temperate marine climate, but with abundant sunshine. A very important feature is the small annual range of temperature which permits of some growth of vegetation, including pasture, all the year round. Very little snow falls on the low levels even in the South Island. The mean temperature ranges from 59° F. in the North to about 49° F. in the South. Rainfall over the more settled areas in the North Island ranges from 35 to 70 inches and in the South Island from 25 to 45 inches. The total range is from approximately 13 to over 250 inches. The number of rainy days is generally in the neighbourhood of 160 to 180 in the North Island and between 110 and 140 in the South, except in the southern portion of the west coast. The amount of sunshine is generally over 2,000 hours per annum and ranges between 1,600 and 2,500 hours.

GOVERNMENT

The west coast of the South Island of New Zealand was discovered by Abel Janszoon Tasman, the navigator (voyaging under the direction of the Netherlands' East India Company), on December 13, 1642. The islands were visited, and charted, in 1769 by Captain Cook, who returned to them in 1773, 1774, and 1777. From 1792 onwards sealers and whalers settled along the coasts, and trade in timber and flax followed. Christianity was introduced in 1814, and in 1832 a British Resident was appointed. In 1840 British sovereignty was proclaimed, and on May 3, 1841, New Zealand was, by letters patent, created a separate colony distinct from New South Wales. Organized colonization on a large scale commenced in 1840 with the New Zealand Company's settlement at Wellington. On Sept. 26, 1907, the designation was changed to The Dominion of New Zealand. The Constitution rests upon the Imperial Act of 1852, and on the New Zealand Constitution (Amendment) Act of Dec. 10, 1947. The executive authority is entrusted to a Governor-General appointed by the Crown and aided by an Executive Council, within a Legislature consisting of the House of Representatives. An Act passed in 1950 abolished the former Legislative Council as from Jan. 1, 1951.

THE LEGISLATURE

Parliament consists of a House of Representatives consisting of 80 members elected for 3 years. The General Election of September, 1951, returned 50 National Party members and 30 Labour. Four of the members are Maoris elected by the Maori electors. Women have been entitled to vote since 1933, and to be elected Members of the House of Representatives since the passing of the Women's Parliamentary Rights Act, 1919. There are at present 3 women members. Members of the House receive £900 per annum, with a basic allowance of £250 per annum for expenses, and a sessional allowance of £150 per annum to all members except those representing the nine electorates in or around Wellington.

POLICE

On March 31, 1952, the strength of the Police Force was 1,588 of all ranks, including 186 temporary constables, equivalent to 1 for every 1,250 of the population. The total cost of police protection in 1952-53 was £1,520,914.

PASSPORTS

With certain exceptions, no person over 16 years of age is permitted to land unless in possession of a passport or some other document satisfactorily establishing his or her nationality and identity.

DEFENCE

Navy.

The Royal New Zealand Navy (established 1913) was greatly expanded following the outbreak of war and a number of small vessels were built in New Zealand. New Zealand naval personnel totalled 10,000, of whom 4,000 were with the Royal Navy. Over 1,000 New Zealanders served with the Fleet Air Arm. The naval forces include the Women's Royal New Zealand Naval Service, and four Reserve forces. At Dec. 31, 1952, the strength was 2 cruisers, 3 frigates and 14 other vessels in commission; 4 frigates and 8 trawlers in reserve. Active naval personnel numbered 284 officers and 2,378 ratings. Certain units of the Royal New Zealand Navy are at present operating in Korean waters.

Naval expenditure in 1952-53 amounted to £5,666,108.

Army.

The New Zealand Army Defence Forces consist of the Regular Force (General Service Section and Home Service Section), the Territorial Force, the Army Reserve and the Cadet Corps. The establishment of the Regular Force at Sept. 30, 1952, was 3,904 in all ranks.

During the war of 1939-1945 New Zealand sent a division (the 2nd) to the Middle East theatre, which took part in the campaigns in Greece, Crete, North Africa and Italy. Another division (the 3rd) saw service in the South Pacific and took part in a number of actions in that area. A Force is now serving in Korea.

A National Referendum on Aug. 3, 1949, authorized compulsory military service with the object of creating a citizen defence force. This scheme is in operation, and all men on reaching the age of 18 years are liable for an initial period of fourteen weeks' full-time training. At the conclusion of this period, they are posted to the Territorial Force. The active strength of the Territorial Forces at Sept. 30, 1952 was 22,029 in all ranks.

Expenditure on the land forces for the year 1952-53 was £11,005,104.

Air.

The Royal New Zealand Air Force was mobilized in September, 1939, and its organization was linked up with the Empire Training Scheme. A number of New Zealand Units, including Bomber Squadrons, Fighter Squadrons, and Torpedo Bomber Squadrons operated with the R.A.F., and considerable numbers of New Zealand personnel served with other R.A.F. Units in many theatres. Approximately 10,000 of the R.N.Z.A.F. (mostly air crew) went to the European theatre and over 20,000 to the Pacific area. 26 squadrons of various types operated in the Pacific area. The post-war Air Force consists of the Regular and Territorial Air Forces, the Air Force Reserve, Air Training Corps, and Women's Auxiliary Air Force. The strength of the Regular Force at March 31, 1952, was 3,537.

Air Force expenditure in 1951-52 was £7,545,940.

FINANCE

Figures of the Consolidated Fund shown in this table are quoted on a gross basis, i.e. credits have not been deducted from departmental expenditure, but have been included as receipts. Expenditure includes transfers to War Expenses Account (until its abolition on April 1, 1950), to the Public Works Account (£6,000,000 in 1952-53, exclusive of transfers from the previous year's surplus), and to the Social Security Fund, the amount in 1952-53 being £14,000,000. The revenue and expenditure figures for 1948-49 exclude £20,000,000 stock issued for payment of liability to the Reserve Bank due to the alteration of the exchange-rate. The expenditure of the Social Security Fund for 1952-53 is £58,826,000 as compared with an expenditure of £54,180,000 in 1951-52.

Year ended March 31	Revenue	Expenditure
	£(N.Z.)	£(N.Z.)
1939	43,699,000	42,889,000
1950	124,997,000	120,689,000
1951	143,757,000	135,504,000
1952	180,788,000	168,153,000
1953	177,822,000	174,515,000*

* Includes £6,574,000 for debt redemption and £26,481,000 for defence.

Revenue from taxation in 1952-53 amounted to £199,771,075, of which £154,262,345, were receipts of the Consolidated Fund and £45,508,730 receipts of the Social Security Fund.

DEBT.

The gross Public Debt amounted on March 31, 1953, to £669,779,000 of which £79,881,000 was domiciled in London. The amount domiciled in London excludes £24,100,200 in respect of which interest payments have been suspended since 1931 by agreement with the Imperial Government.

BANKING.

There are five trading banks (with numerous branches) doing business, two of which are predominantly New Zealand banks. Of these the Bank of New Zealand is owned by the State. At March 26, 1952, total assets amounted to £276,805,068; liabilities, £280,179,998; and the value of notes in circulation amounted to £49,813,254. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand commenced business on August 1, 1934. The note-issuing powers of other banks have since been withdrawn and the Reserve Bank notes are legal tender. Net overseas assets of banks (on account of New Zealand business only) at March 25, 1953, amounted to £101,933,559, of which £53,282,821 and £22,090,080 represented the Reserve Bank's holdings of sterling exchange and sterling investments respectively. Trading banks' advances, including discounts, at the end of March, 1953 totalled £140,449,122, compared with £187,259,488 in the previous year. Deposits with trading-banks at the end of March, 1953, amounted to £259,024,787. At the corresponding date in 1952 they were £263,615,864.

Post-office and trustee savings banks had, at the close of the year 1952-53, 1,857,256 depositors having £230,127,401 to their credit. This amount does not include National Savings Accounts in which depositors had £62,930,440 to their credit at March 31, 1953.

As from Aug. 20, 1948, New Zealand restored her currency to parity with sterling, in place of the depreciated rate of £N.Z.125 = £100 adopted in 1933.

EDUCATION

The State system of education is free, secular, and compulsory. The school-leaving age was raised to 15 years as from Feb. 1, 1944. There were (Dec. 1952) 1,889 public primary schools, with 284,784 scholars; there were also 306 registered private primary schools with 40,444 scholars, and 162 Maori village schools with 14,076 scholars, of whom 12,930 were Maoris. There were also 19,697 Maori children attending public primary schools. The higher education of boys and girls in the cities and large towns is carried on in 47 secondary and combined schools, and in 30 technical high and technical day schools. In addition there are 112 secondary departments of district high schools, 79 endowed and private secondary schools and 10 Maori secondary schools. The total number of pupils receiving full-time secondary education at the end of 1952 was 61,529 and in addition there were 26,349 part-time students attending technical classes, 1,227 receiving part-time tuition from the Correspondence School and 1,337 receiving instruction from the Technical Correspondence School. The University of New Zealand, with power to confer degrees, consists of Auckland University College, Victoria University College, Canterbury University College, and the University of Otago. Two Agricultural Colleges (Massey and Canterbury) are affiliated to the University. The 6 Colleges had a total of 11,305 students in 1952.

The total expenditure on Education out of public funds in 1951-52 was £17,648,562.

THE ISLANDS OF NEW ZEALAND

In addition to North, South, Stewart and Chatham Islands:—

The Three Kings (discovered by Tasman on the Feast of the Epiphany), in 34° 9' S. lat. and 172° 8' 8" E. long. (uninhabited). Auckland Islands, about 290 miles south of Bluff Harbour, in 50° 32' S. lat. and 166° 13' E. long. The islands contain several good harbours, but are uninhabited. Campbell Island (population 5 at April 1, 1953). Antipodes Group (49° 41' 15" S. lat. and 178° 43' E. long. uninhabited). Bounty Islands (47° 4' 43" S. lat., 170° 0' 30" E. long.). Snares Islands and Solander (uninhabited).

The Kermadec Group (population 14 at April 1, 1953), between 29° 10' to 31° 30' S. lat., and 177° 45' to 179° W. long., includes Raoul or Sunday, Macaulay, Curtis Islands, L'Esperance, and some islets.

Cook and other Islands, included in the boundaries of New Zealand since June 1901, consist of the islands of Raratonga (6,048), Aitutaki (2,396), Mangaia (1,830), Atiu (1,270), Mauke (836), Mitiaro (305), Manuae (20), Takutea (uninhabited), Palmerston (87), Penrhyn or Tongareva (527), Manihiki (816), Rakahanga (261), Pukapuka or Danger (559), Suvarrow (uninhabited), Nassau (124), Niue or Savage (4,553). The population figures are as at the census of September 25, 1951, the total for the Group being 19,632. The chief exports are citrus fruits, tomatoes, copra, pearl shell and manufactured apparel. The trade is chiefly with New Zealand and the U.S.A. The exports (1951) were valued at £N.Z.314,628 and the imports at £N.Z.437,396 for Cook Islands, and at £N.Z.55,555 and £N.Z.83,447 for Niue Island. Raratonga is the chief island of the Cook Group, with a Maori population of 5,802 and a population other than Maori of 246. Local administration is carried out by Resident Commissioners at Raratonga and Niue, and Resident Agents on the other inhabited islands, the latter being answerable to the Resident Commissioner at Raratonga. In their administration, commissioners and agents are assisted by the Island Councils of Maori Arikis (chiefs) and elected members, but ordinance may be disallowed by the Governor-General of New Zealand.

The revenue of the Cook Islands in 1951-52, exclusive of a subsidy from the New Zealand Government of £180,971, was £156,913, and expenditure, £396,081. Revenue of Niue, exclusive of subsidy £59,576, was £36,628 and expenditure, £107,275.

Ross Dependency (1923), see p. 708.

Tokelau (or Union) Islands.—A group of atolls (Fakaofu, Nukunono and Atafu) (population 1,600 at March 31, 1952), proclaimed part of New Zealand as from Jan. 1, 1948.

The Trust Territories are:—

Western Samoa, consisting of the islands of Savai'i (703 square miles) and of Upolu, which with its small adjacent islands, is 430 square miles. The population at the census of September 25, 1951, was 84,909, of whom 80,153 were Samoans. All the islands are mountainous. Upolu, the most fertile, contains the harbours of Ψ Apia and Ψ Saluafata, of which the former is the capital. The natives of the islands are Christians of different denominations. Coconuts (copra), cocoa and bananas are the chief products of the islands. The revenue for 1951, exclusive of a grant of £40,670 from the New Zealand Government, was £678,897. Expenditure £630,147. The exports were valued in 1951 at £1,721,942 and the imports, 1951, £1,194,698.

A law (No. 17 of 1923) amending and consolidating the pre-Union Acts in force in the four Provinces was passed and came into force as from January 1, 1924. Under this law registration of all European, Asiatic and Coloured (as distinct from Native) births and deaths was compulsory throughout the Union. (a) Registration of Native births and deaths is compulsory only in urban areas. (b) Only marriages solemnized under the prescribed civil laws are subject to registration.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

Boundaries.—The provinces of the Union extend from the southernmost point of the African Continent to the course of the Limpopo River, i.e., from 34° 50'–22° South latitude, and include all the British territories within those limits, with the exception of Basutoland and the Swaziland and Bechuanaland Protectorates, while provision is made for the future inclusion within the Union of those territories and of the territories of the British South Africa Company.

Relief.—The southernmost province contains many parallel ranges, which rise in steps towards the interior. The south-western peninsula contains the famous Table Mountain (3,582 feet), while the Great Zwart Berg and Lange Berg run in parallel lines from west to east of the Cape province. Between these two ranges and the Roggeveld and Nieuweveld to the north is the Great Karroo Plateau, which is bounded on the east by the Sneeuberg containing the highest summit in the province (Compassberg, 7,800 feet). In the east are ranges which join the Drakensberg (11,000 feet) between Natal and the Orange Free State.

The Orange Free State presents a succession of undulating grassy plains with good pasture-land, at a general elevation of some 3,800 feet, with occasional hills or kopies. The Transvaal is also mainly an elevated plateau with parallel ridges in the Magalies and Waalberg ranges of no great height. The veld or plains of this northernmost province is divisible into the Hooge Veld of the south, the Banker Veld of the centre, and the Bush Veld of the north and east, the first and second forming the grazing and agricultural region of the Transvaal and the last a mimosa covered waste. The eastern province of Natal has pastoral lowlands and rich agricultural land between the slopes of the Drakensberg and the coast, the interior rising in terraces as in the southern provinces.

Rivers.—The Orange, with its tributary the Vaal, is the principal river of the south, rising in the Drakensberg and flowing into the Atlantic between the Protectorate of South-West Africa and the Cape of Good Hope. The Limpopo, or Crocodile River, in the north, rises in the Transvaal and flows into the Indian Ocean through Portuguese East Africa. Most of the remaining rivers are furious torrents after rain, with partially dry beds at other seasons.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Cape of Good Hope was discovered in 1488 by Bartholomew Diaz, the commander of one of the many expeditions sent out by successive Kings of Portugal to discover an ocean route to India. Diaz merely doubled the Cape and returned home. In 1497–8, Vasco da Gama not only doubled the Cape and landed in what is now Natal, but successfully accomplished the voyage to India. The Portuguese, however, did not make any permanent settlement at the Cape, although it was used by their vessels until about 1511, and subsequently also by those of England and the Netherlands, as a place of call in going to and from the East Indies. In 1652 the Netherlands' East India Company took possession of the shores of Table Bay, established a fort, and occupied the adjacent lands, in order to be always ready with supplies for their passing ships. In 1814 the Cape was formally ceded to the British Crown.

Natal derives its name from the fact of its discovery on Christmas Day, 1497, by the celebrated Portuguese navigator, Vasco da Gama. The first European settlement was formed (1824) by a small party of Englishmen, who came by sea and established themselves on the coast where Durban now stands. Natal was then a part of the great Zulu kingdom under T'Chaka. Between 1838 and 1840 another settlement was formed by a large body of Dutch Boers, who came with their waggons overland from the Cape Colony and settled in the northern districts, where to this day the Boers preponderate. In the year 1843 Natal was proclaimed as British and annexed to the Cape Colony. In 1856 it was erected into a separate colony, with representative institutions, and in 1893 acquired responsible government.

The Transvaal was formed as the South African Republic by parties of Dutch Boers from the English colonies who "trekked" into the interior of the continent and wrested the land across the Vaal river from the native chiefs. The discovery of the goldfield within its borders led to the settlement of large numbers of foreigners, and eventually to hostilities with the British Government. A war of nearly three years' duration was fought with great tenacity, and its close was marked by the inclusion of the South African Republic within the British Empire, "responsible government" being granted almost immediately.

The Orange Free State was founded, as with the Transvaal, by Boer emigrants from Cape Colony, and its independence was granted in 1854. Its subsequent history is identical with that of the Transvaal.

Deville Wood.—The title deeds of Deville Wood, containing the graves of South African troops who fell there during the battles on the Western Front in France in the Great War 1914-1918, are held by the Government of the Union of South Africa, and Deville Wood is part of South Africa.

Antarctic (see also p. 708).—Prince Edward Islands were annexed in December, 1947. A meteorological station was established on Marion Island in January, 1948.

GOVERNMENT

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. VII., cap. 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909. In terms of that Act the self-governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony became united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative Union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, those Colonies becoming original Provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal and the Orange Free State respectively.

The Union Government is seized of all State property, and the Railways, Ports and Harbours are administered by Commissioners. The former debts of the Colonies now constituting the Provinces are administered by, and form a first charge upon, the funds of the Union. Provision is made in the Act of 1909 for the admission to the Union of Rhodesia, and for the transfer to the Union Government of the administration of protected and other native territories. The Union was inaugurated by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., in 1910.

The Government publishes annually an "Official Year Book of the Union of South Africa," giving full statistics and descriptive information on all matters of public concern.

The seat of the Government is Pretoria; the seat of the Legislature is Cape Town.

The Executive is vested in a Governor-General appointed by the Sovereign, and aided by an Executive Council, with a Legislature of two Houses.

Under the Citizenship Act, 1949, five years' residence in the Union is necessary for the acquisition of South African citizenship.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Senate consists of 44 members, appointed or elected for a 10 year term in July, 1948. Eight are nominated by the Governor-General in Council, 32 are elected, eight for each Province, (4 are elected by the native population under the provisions of The Representation of Natives Act No. 12, of 1936). Election for members is carried out according to the system of proportional representation with the single transferable vote, by the Members of the House of Assembly and of the Provincial Council for each Province sitting together and presided over by the Administrator of such Province. Vacancies amongst elected Senators are filled in the same manner, but only for the period which the Senator in whose place the new Senator is elected would have held his seat. The first election of Senators under the Representation of Natives Act was held in 1937 and the members so elected hold their seats for 5 years. Originally, under Section 24 of the South Africa Act, nominated Senators held their seats for a period of ten years, but this provision was amended by Act No. 54 of 1926, and nominated Senators are now required to vacate their seats on the dissolution of the Senate or upon a change of Government. Of the eight nominated Senators, four are elected on the ground of their thorough acquaintance, by reason of their official experience or otherwise, with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races.

The House of Assembly consists of 159 elected members, 55 of whom represent the Cape of Good Hope, 16 Natal, 66 Transvaal, 13 the Orange Free State, and 6 South-West Africa, with 3 Native members, Cape native voters being entitled to elect three members of the House of Assembly, who hold their seats for 5 years notwithstanding any dissolution of the House. Members of both Houses must be British subjects of European descent. Female franchise was introduced under the provisions of Act No. 18 of 1930.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

A Provincial Council in each Province has power to legislate by ordinance on certain subjects specified in the Act, and on such other subjects as may be delegated to it. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General in Council. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as Members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. Provincial administration is in the case of each Province vested in an Administrator, with an Executive Committee of four members. The Provincial Council in each case consists of the same number of elected members as there are electoral divisions of such Province for the House of Assembly, unless that number is less than 25 (as in the cases of Natal and the Orange Free State), when the number is 25. Under the Representation of Natives Act, 1936, Cape native voters are entitled to elect two members of the Provincial Council, who hold their seats notwithstanding any dissolution of the Council. Each Council exists for a period of five years. Direct taxation is permitted for Provincial purposes, and legislation is authorized on certain specified subjects.

DEFENCE

The South African Defence Act, 1912, became law on June 14, 1912. This Act, as amended in 1922, 1932, 1947 and 1949 provides that every citizen between the ages of 17 and 65 is liable to render personal service in time of war, and those between 17 and 21 are liable to undergo a prescribed peace training with the Active Citizen Force spread over a period of four consecutive years. The Act states, however, that only 50 per cent. of the total number liable to peace training shall actually undergo that training unless Parliament makes financial provision for the training of a greater number.

EDUCATION

The Provinces have been relieved of all vocational education (technical and industrial), and the Department of Education, Arts and Science under the Minister is concerned with 7 Universities (Cape Town, Natal (independent status, March 15, 1949), Orange Free State (independent status, March 18, 1950), Stellenbosch, Witwatersrand, Pretoria and the University of South Africa, which includes the Potchefstroom and Rhodes University Colleges, and the Division of External Studies. (Students at the South African Native College, Fort Hare, are regarded as external students of the University of South Africa); 11 technical colleges at Capetown (2), Durban (2), Port Elizabeth, East London, Kimberley, Pretoria, Pietermaritzburg, Bloemfontein and the Witwatersrand with headquarters at Johannesburg; schools of industries, reformatories and technical, housecraft and commercial high schools (State and State-aided) at various centres throughout the Union.

The average number of internal students at universities and university colleges for 1950 was 17,636. The State expenditure on higher education, including administration and expenditure connected with the above-mentioned institutions for the financial year 1947-48 was £3,746,978.

Primary Education and Education other than Higher Education.—The central direction of public education (other than higher education) is exercised by the Provincial Education Department in each of the four Provinces of the Union. Each Department is controlled by a Director. The majority of European schools in all the Provinces are State Schools and the majority of non-European schools are State-aided. In all Provinces primary education in schools for all races is free. Secondary education in all the Provinces is also free, with an age limit of 19 years in the Cape Province.

Number of State and State-aided Schools in the Union, 1950.—For European scholars, 2,756, for Non-European scholars, 6,790; total, 9,546

Number of Scholars and Teachers, 1950.—European scholars, 470,797; Non-European scholars, 1,028,084; total, 1,488,881. Total number of Teachers, 45,728.

Estimated State Expenditure on Education in 1947-48, excluding Higher Education, £3,569,625.

PROVINCIAL FINANCE

Since their establishment in 1910 the powers and functions of the Provinces have undergone various alterations, and their powers of taxation have been limited from time to time. An Act (No. 38, 1945) to amend the laws regulating the financial relations between the Union and the several Provinces thereof was passed in the 1945 Session of Parliament, and as from April 1, 1945, the sources of revenue available to the Provinces have been:—

(1) An annual subsidy from the Union Government equivalent to 50 per cent. of the net provincial expenditure while it does not exceed the net expenditure in the preceding year by more than 5 per cent.; net expenditure in excess of that amount is subsidizable at the rate of 33½ per cent. only.

(2) Certain scheduled and limited taxes.

(3) Special grants from the Union Government at the following rates which are subject to revision: Province of Natal £100,000 per annum; Province of the Cape of Good Hope £150,000 per annum; Province of the Orange Free State £300,000.

The requirements of the Provinces in regard to capital expenditure are supplied by the Union Government by way of loans.

The ordinary Revenue and Expenditure for five years ended March 31, 1949, were as follows:—

The Live Stock (1950) included 11,512,609 cattle, 31,360,811 sheep, 5,185,179 goats.

Manufactures.—The development of local industries was most marked during the three years preceding 1931, the scarcity of overseas supplies and consequent increase in prices serving as a very effective measure of protection under which new industries sprang up, and existing industries largely extended their operations. In 1947-48 there were 13,653 factories employing 612,042 hands (210,355 Europeans). The value of gross production was £582,799,521 (including £272,559,060 as added value of manufacture). The salaries and wages paid amounted to £140,180,137. The principal groups (with net value of output) were:—Metals, engineering, etc. (£63,052,764) food, drink, etc. (£37,658,386); heat, light and power (£14,749,302); textiles (£24,501,262); chemicals, etc. (£17,196,999); books, printing, etc. (£16,744,953).

Mines and Minerals.—Gold mining still continues to be the chief source of the country's mineral wealth. At the outbreak of the second world war the diamond mines closed down. The value of the output of the principal minerals of the Union in 1949 was:—

Gold.....	£49,719,884	Silver.....	£237,768

On April 16, 1946, the discovery was announced of a reef about 5 miles south-east of Odendaalsrust, in O.F.S. "richer than anything hitherto recorded in drilling operations in any part of the Union."

The number of natives and other coloured persons employed by members of the Witwatersrand Native Labour Association and contractors at Dec. 31, 1948, was 346,602 (300,250 in gold mines and 46,351 in coal mines).

The coal output in 1948 was 26,500,000 tons. The output will increase progressively with the opening of new collieries.

The principal imports are foodstuffs, cotton piece goods, textile manufactures, motor spirit, electrical machinery and manufactures, woollen piece goods, motor cars and parts, railway engines, agricultural and mining machinery, haberdashery, tea, metals, oils and drugs. The chief exports are sugar, maize, hides and skins, coal, citrus, deciduous and dried fruits, wines and spirits, metals, ochre, wool, wattle bark, diamonds, asbestos and butter.

COMMUNICATIONS

Railways.—Railway history in South Africa began in the year 1859, when construction was commenced by private enterprise of a line from Cape Town to Wellington, and in the same year of a short two-mile section between Durban and Point (Durban Harbour). The Point-Durban line was opened to public traffic in 1860, and the Cape line to Stellenbosch in 1862 and to Wellington in 1863, while a track to Wynberg was completed in 1864. Little progress was, however, made in succeeding years, and it became evident that the development of the country could not be left to private enterprise. The existing Cape lines were therefore purchased by the Government on Jan. 1, 1873, and on Jan. 1, 1877, Natal followed by acquiring the railways in that colony. Increased activity at once took place, and the construction of four lines was pushed inland from Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, East London, and Durban. Bloemfontein was connected with the Cape in 1890, two years later a line to Germiston established contact with the system already in operation in the Transvaal, and in 1895 the Natal-Transvaal lines were linked up.

The total open mileage of Government-owned lines at the end of March, 1950, was 13,329 miles (comprising Cape 5,253, Orange Free State 1,660, Transvaal 3,400, Natal 1,553, and South-West Africa 1,463), of which 12,536 miles were 3 ft. 6 in. gauge and 793 miles 2 ft. 6 in. gauge. The capital expenditure on Government railways up to March 31, 1950, amounted to £265,654,315. The gross earnings for the year ending March 31, 1950, were £76,752,301. Working expenditure (excluding depreciation) amounted to £54,015,901. Through communication by rail is now available from Cape Town to Port Francqui in the lower Congo, 3,300 miles, all 3 ft. 6 in. gauge. The Trans-Zambia Railway, from Dondo junction (on the Beira-Mashonaland line) to the Zambesi, was opened on July 1, 1922, thus placing the Union in direct communication with Nyasaland. This railway was extended to Blantyre and subsequently to Salima on Lake Nyasa.

Posts and Telegraphs.—On March 31, 1951, there were 3,471 post and 3,571 telegraph offices open in the Union.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank was 2,184,006 with £82,859,740 standing to their credit. The combined cash revenue from Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones was £26,239,776.

Internal Air Services were re-introduced on May 1, 1946.

External Air Service.—The "Springbok Service" operated jointly by South African Airways and the British Overseas Airways Corporation provides a daily service except on Sundays between Johannesburg and London. Constellation aircraft of South African Airways follow the route Nairobi-Lydda-Rome-London, and Hermes aircraft of B.O.A.C. fly via Livingstone, Brazzaville, Kano and Castel Benito.

Broadcasting Stations.—On March 31, 1951, there were 10 licensed broadcasting stations in the Union and 559,229 licensed listeners to broadcasting. The stations are controlled by the South African Broadcasting Corporation. (Board of Governors appointed by the Government.)

Shipping.—In 1950 1,819 vessels with cargo entered at the ports of the Union of South Africa from foreign countries. In the same year about 6,271,400 tons of goods, excluding mail and passengers' baggage, were landed in South African harbours and approximately 3,670,400 tons, excluding mail, ships' stores, luggage and bunkers, shipped. The total harbour revenue for 1948-49 was approximately £5,995,000, the expenditure about £3,557,000. The principal ports are Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London (Cape Province); Durban (Natal); Walvis Bay and Luderitz Bay (S.-W. Africa).

South-West Africa.

(Suidwes-Afrika.)

Administrator, Dr. A. J. R. van Rhijn.
Secretary, J. Neser.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA lies between S. lat. 17° 23' and the Orange River, with a narrow strip between 17° 30'–18° 20' S. lat. extending from 21° to 25° E. long., known as the Caprivi Zipfel, and gives access to the Zambesi. Off the coast are a number of guano islands (Hollandsherd, Mercury, Ichaboe, Seal, Penguin, Halifax Long, Possession, Albatross, Pomona, Plumpudding, Sinclair and Roastbeef Islands).

The estimated area of the country is 317,725 square miles, and the population (1951 Census) is 429,654, of whom 48,548 are Europeans. The native population in the Police Zone is 153,642 and that beyond the Police Zone is estimated to be 227,464, of whom 196,350 are estimated to be in Ovamboland. Running more or less parallel to the coast, and roughly at a distance of 60 to 100 miles from it, is a broken range of mountains, from which there is a gradual slope to the sea. The country between these mountains and the coast is barren desert except towards the north, and is known as the Namib. Towards the east from these mountains the land slopes eastward and forms the western edge of the great Kalahari Plateau. The boundaries are the Okavango and Kunene Rivers, in the north, and the Orange River, in the south, all perennial streams of considerable volume. On the Orange are the Aughrabies Falls, twice the height of Niagara; these are situate about 25 miles east of the eastern boundary, in the Cape Province.

The native races are:—In the south, Hottentots. In the centre, Hereros and Bergdarmas, with the exception of the Rehoboth district, which is occupied by a mixed race known as the Bastards; and in the north, Ovambos. To the north and east there are many small bushmen tribes, some pure bushmen, but the remainder a mixture of aboriginal native tribes and bushmen. The Kaokofeld (the north-western area) is very scantily inhabited by Hereros and Ovattimbos. It is very mountainous, and in many places well supplied with water.

South-West Africa was occupied by Germany in 1884, but at the outbreak of war in 1914 armed forces of the Union of South Africa occupied Luderitz and Swakopmund and later a converging movement from these points as well as from the Union began, the German forces surrendering at Khorab on July 9, 1915. At the conclusion of the War of 1914-1918 the territory was mandated to the Union in accordance with the Treaty of Versailles and South-West Africa has since that time been administered by the Union.

Under the Union Act No. 49 of 1919, the exercise of the mandate was vested in a Governor-General, who delegated his powers to an Administrator appointed by the Union Government. A limited measure of self-government was conferred upon the inhabitants by the Union Act No. 42 of 1925. Fundamental and far-reaching changes in the constitutional position of the Territory were introduced by the passing of the South-West Africa Affairs Amendment Act, 1949 (No. 23 of 1949). The Advisory Council was abolished and in future all 18 members of the Legislative Assembly will be chosen by the registered voters of the Territory.

The Territory is represented in the Union House of Assembly by six members duly elected by the registered voters of the Territory and in the Senate by four Senators, of which two are elected and two nominated by the Governor-General.

Generally speaking, only the Parliament of the Union will, in future, have the power to legislate on those matters in respect of which the Legislative Assembly is not competent to legislate, and the Legislative Assembly in respect of other matters. In an emergency, however, the Governor-General, may, by proclamation, make laws about any matter on which the Legislative Assembly is not competent to make ordinances.

The Electoral Consolidation Act, 1946 (No. 46 of 1946), of the Union has been extended to the Territory, so that the qualifications for registered voters in the Territory are the same as in the Union. The first elections to the Union House of Assembly were held on August 31, 1950.

On July 11, 1950, the International Court of Justice at The Hague delivered an opinion that South-West Africa was still under international mandate; that international obligations resulting from the mandate were still incumbent on the Union, including obligation to submit reports on its administration; and that South Africa was not competent to modify its international status without consent of the United Nations.

The Capital of the Territory is Windhoek, which lies practically in the centre of the country at 5,500 ft. above sea-level. (Urban white population, 1951, 10,246.) Other inland towns are Kectmanshoop, Aroab, Bethanie, Gibeon, Gobabis, Grootfontein, Karibib, Karasburg, Okahandja, Omaruru, Otjiwarongo, Outjo, Swakopmund, Warmbad, Maltahohe, Aus, Mariental, Tsumeb and Usakos. The ports are Ψ Walvis Bay (Urban white population, 1951, 936) and Ψ Luderitz (Urban white population, 1951, 1,132).

Provinces of the Union of South Africa

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE

The Province of the Cape of Good Hope extends in S. lat. from 26° to 34° 50', and in E. long. from 16° 25' to 30°. The extent of the country is, N.E. to S.W., 750 miles, and from N.W. to S.E. 800 miles, with a coast-line of nearly 1,300 miles.

Education.—The province is divided into 114 school districts, each under the control of a School Board and a Board of management. A portion of the members of the School Boards is elected by the ratepayers and a portion partly nominated by the Provincial Administration and partly by the Local Authorities. Aided Schools, which are mostly Non-European church schools, are controlled by local committees or by managers appointed by the churches concerned. Education is compulsory for children of European parentage and, provided certain conditions are fulfilled, also for coloured children. The necessary grants are provided from Provincial Council revenues, education up to the age of 19 being free.

State and Aided Schools, December, 1952, 1,196 European and 3,621 non-European. There were 175,266 European pupils and 484,964 non-European. Total number of teachers, 7,562 in European schools and 13,388 in non-European schools. Higher education is under the control of the Union Government.

Finance.—Revenue 1951-52 (including Union subsidy), £24,442,414; total expenditure, £24,501,347.

Administration.—The Province is administered by an Administrator, appointed for five years by the Governor-General, aided by a Provincial Council of 57 members (elected for five years). There is an Executive Committee of four members in addition to the Administrator, who is Chairman of the Committee.

ψ CAPE TOWN. Total population (1946), including suburbs, 470,921; European, 220,398, and Non-European, 250,523.

Cape Town, a seaport, the legislative capital of the Union of South Africa, seat of the Cape Provincial Council, and the Mother City of South Africa, consists of a central portion and a chain of suburbs on either hand. The central portion lies in an amphitheatre, which extends down to Table Bay towards the north-east and is backed on the other sides by the precipitous face of Table Mountain, which rises to a height of almost 3,582 feet, and its outlying masses, Devil's Peak on the east, and Lion's Head and Signal Hill on the west. This part of the town is built on the slopes at the foot of these mountains and extending down to the shores of Table Bay.

The City has two cathedrals (C. of E. and R.C.) and a university, which is situated on a magnificent site on the Groote Schuur estate, Rondebosch. Its educational institutions and places of interest include the South African Museum, an art gallery, a notable library containing rare MSS, first editions, &c., and the municipal botanical gardens. Several fine old buildings of the Dutch period still remain, most important being the Castle, begun in 1666, and to-day the oldest building existing in South Africa; the Koopmans de Wet Museum, an old Dutch house, dating from early in the 18th century, contains fine specimens of old Dutch furniture and antiques, whilst, in the Old Town House, there is on exhibition a representative collection of valuable old Dutch and Flemish paintings.

Cape Town is 5,979 miles from Southampton; transit by mail steamship 14 days, and by air mail seven days. There is a modern and well-equipped aerodrome, Wingfield Airport, six miles from the centre of the city. Cape Town's harbour and docking facilities, existing and projected, are in keeping with its status as a world port of commercial and strategic importance.

The race question in Natal is complicated by the presence of large numbers of Indian subjects of the Crown, brought over during the latter half of the nineteenth century to supply the deficiency of local labour.

Education.—Higher education is under the control of the Union Government. Under Provincial control in 1949 there were 268 primary and 43 secondary schools for Europeans, 1,105 native schools, 162 Indian schools, and 35 schools for Coloureds.

The expenditure for 1949 was £1,680,943 for European and £1,979,464 for Native, Indian and Coloured education.

Finance.—Revenue 1949-50 (including Union Government subsidy), £8,558,553; expenditure £7,670, 902.

Administration.—The Provincial Government is administered by a Provincial Council of 25 members (elected for 5 years). There is an Executive Committee of 4 members.

Administrator, Hon. Dennis Gem Shepstone. £2,250.
Executive Committee, E. C. Wilks; E. J. V. Grantham; J. L. Smith; P. W. J. Groenewald.

Provincial Secretary, J. A. Gooding.

Director of Education, C. M. Booysen.

Sec., Education Department, Dr. W. G. McConkey.

Provincial Roads Engineer, J. McLennan.

Director of Provincial Medical and Health Services, Dr. R. E. Stevenson.

PIETERMARITZBURG, the capital and seat of the Provincial Government, is situated about 54 miles inland from Durban. Total population, 60,112 in 1950 (Europeans 27,930; Coloureds, 3,084; Asiatics, 11,438; Natives, 17,660).

ψ Durban (pop., 1951, 404,497; Europeans, 133,225) possesses the principal harbour on the south-east coast.

Durban is 6,835 miles by sea from Southampton, transit by sea to Capetown thence by rail, 16 days; by air, 5 days.

ZULULAND.

Zululand, annexed in 1897, comprises about two-thirds of the country formerly under Zulu kings, and is bounded on the south and south-west by the Tugela River; on the south-east by the Indian Ocean; on the north by the Portuguese possessions; and on the west by the new territory (formerly Utrecht and Vrijheid districts of the Transvaal) and Swaziland. In 1939, Chief Mshiyeni Zulu (son of Dinizulu and grandson of Cetewayo), Regent of the Usutu tribe, was proclaimed Paramount Chief of all the Zulu peoples. The Amaputaland Protectorate, created by proclamation of Nov. 22, 1897, was annexed to Zululand on Dec. 27, 1897, and now forms part of the Province. The Northern Districts territory (consisting of the Magisterial Divisions of Vrijheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, and Babanango) was annexed to Natal on January 27, 1903.

THE TRANSVAAL

The Province of the Transvaal has a total area of 110,450 square miles, about 20,000 square miles lying within the tropics. The Census of 1921 showed a population of 2,087,636, of whom 1,159,430 were males and 928,206 females, and the census of 1936, a total of 3,341,470 (males 1,846,576, females 1,494,894).

In 1946 the population numbered 4,283,038 (males 2,374,323, females 1,908,715).

BLOEMFONTEIN, the Capital and seat of the Provincial Government, had a population of 89,200 persons, 40,800 Europeans and 48,400 non-Europeans, in 1949. The city is an important railway centre, is developing rapidly, and continues to hold its place as one of the foremost cities in the Union. Many fine buildings have been erected, and a new Town Hall (costing £270,000) was completed in 1937.

Bloemfontein is distant from Southampton, 6,729 miles; transit by sea and rail via Cape Town, 15 days.

URANIUM PLANTS IN SOUTH AFRICA

During the year 1952–53 the first three uranium plants in South Africa were opened, at Krugersdorp (Oct. 8, 1952), Daggafontein (May 22, 1953) and Blyvooruitzicht (June 30, 1953). The British Minister of Supply (Mr. Duncan Sandys) made a broadcast before the official opening of the Daggafontein plant, in which he said that South African mining experts, with the help of British and American technicians, had evolved an efficient process for extracting uranium from gold ore, that Britain and the U.S.A. had advanced the capital to provide several mines with the special plant required and had agreed to buy the whole of the South African uranium output for a period of years and that the capital provided or earmarked by that date was £40,000,000. The plant was started by the pressing of a button in Daggafontein which started up an atomic reactor at the British Atomic Station at Harwell. This in turn generated the impulse to set in motion the South African plant.

India and Pakistan*

THE Indian Independence Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on July 18, 1947, brought to an end the whole structure of British Government in India and the handing over of power was completed by August 15, 1947. The Indian Empire, which extended over a territory larger than the Continent of Europe without Russia, is represented from that date by the Republic of India, the Dominion of Pakistan, and Territories of Indian Rulers formerly under the suzerainty of the King-Emperor. Certain tracts of Tribal Territory on the North West and North East Frontiers are under the political influence, though not under the administrative rule, of the Government of Pakistan.

Except where otherwise stated herein "India" includes the Republic of India, the Dominion of Pakistan, the States of India and Tribal Areas.

THE INDIAN INDEPENDENCE ACT, 1947

A Cabinet statement on Indian policy (Cmd. 7136) issued on June 3, 1947, explained that, no agreement other than by partition having proved acceptable, the plan evolved by Viscount Mountbatten of Burma and agreed to by Indian political leaders would be proceeded with. This involved a decision of the two Indian parties as to whether there should be a partition of India and if partition was decided then two Constitutional Assemblies would determine the future constitution of each of these divisions. The Constituent Assembly for India held its first meeting on December 9, 1946, and that for Pakistan on August 10, 1947.

The United Kingdom Cabinet statement anticipated the date of June, 1948, for the handing over of power and His Majesty's Government proposed to introduce legislation for the transfer of power in 1947 on a Dominion Status basis to one or two authorities, according to the decisions taken as a result of the announcement. This did not prejudice the right of the Constituent Assemblies to decide in due course whether or not the part of India in respect of which they had authority would remain within the British Commonwealth.

The Indian Independence Act, which became law on July 18, 1947, made provision for the setting up of a Dominion of India and a Dominion of Pakistan. It defined the territories of each, abolished the existing Provinces of Bengal and Punjab, and, subject to the decisions of a boundary commission, allotted to each new Provinces of East and West Bengal and East and West Punjab. As the result of a referendum the district of Sylhet in Assam (less four thanas) was included in Pakistan.

The Act eliminated the words Indie Imperator and "Emperor of India" from the Royal Styles and Titles and provided for the appointment by the King of a Governor-General to each of the new Dominions. Paramountcy over the Indian States was allowed to lapse and the functions of the India Office were transferred to the Commonwealth Relations Department.

By the adaptation of the Government of India Act, 1935, and by Orders temporarily passed and valid until March 31, 1948, powers were vested in the Governor-General mainly for the purpose of the transfer of powers, rights, property, duties and liabilities of the existing Central Government.

The existing rights of members of the former Secretary of State's Services and of judges who elected to serve in either India or Pakistan were guaranteed. The authority of His Majesty's Government in relation to British forces who might remain in India or Pakistan was unaffected by the Act.

The Central Government and Legislatures came to an end on August 15, 1947, and the responsibility of the British Government for the government of former British India ceased.

GEOGRAPHICAL INDIA AND PRE-PARTITION STATISTICS, ETC.

Boundaries.—The political boundary of India marches with Persia and Atghanaistan from the Gulf of Oman to Povalo Schweikovski on the Taghdumbash Pamir. From this point the frontier—in many parts not yet clearly defined—touches the Chinese Empire and Nepal, till the limits of Burma are reached. Continental India, including Baluchistan, reaches from 8° to 37° N. latitude, and from 61° to 97° E. longitude. Delhi, the capital of the Republic of India, lies in 77° E. long. Karachi (Sind), the capital of the Dominion of Pakistan, lies in 66° E. long.

Area and Population.—The total area of India proper in 1941 was 1,581,410 square miles, with a population of nearly 389 millions (about three-fourths of the population of the British Empire). The British provinces, as distinguished from the Indian States, comprised 55 per cent. of the area and about 76 per cent. of the population. The details of the census were given on pages 706-7 of the 1947 "Whitaker."

Physical Features.—The country may be broadly divided into three sections, viz. the Himalayan region, the northern river-plains, and the southern tableland.

The Himalayas.—The Himalayas (which lie partly beyond the frontier), with their southern offshoots, form the natural northern boundary of India. The Himalayan range runs for 1,500 miles from N.W. to S.E., with a varying breadth of 150 to 200 miles, and attains a general height of 20,000 feet above the plain, culminating in the loftiest peaks yet measured on the globe—Mount Everest, 29,141 feet, Kunchinjunga, 28,146 feet, and Dhaulagiri, 26,826 feet, near the centre of the range; and Mount Godwin Austen, 28,250 feet, near its junction with the Hindu Kush. The line of perpetual snow is at about 16,000 feet. The Himalayas collect and store up water for the plains below. The slopes give a representation of the tropical zone (especially on the southern slopes to the E.), the temperate zone (particularly to the S.W. of the range), and the arctic zone as the upward journey is taken from the plains. In the Himalayas are several sanatoria, including Murree, Simla, Mussoorie, Naini Tal, and Darjiling. Himalayan vegetation includes such varied species as the tree-fern, ilex, pine, oak, fir, deodar (cedar), rhododendron, barley, oats, millet, and many domestic vegetables. The fauna are as varied as the flora, and include the bison, musk-deer, yak, wild sheep and goat, bear, elephant, monkey, and tiger, with eagles, partridges, and pheasants. Between the Himalayas and the plains to the S.E. is the great fever-haunted Tarai or Duar jungle, densely forest-covered and full of big game.

The Great Plain.—The northern river-plains, lying at the foot of the Himalayas, comprise the rich alluvial plains watered by the Indus, the Ganges, the Lower Brahmaputra, and their tributaries. At no great distance from one another, four rivers take their rise in the Himalayas. The sources of two are on the north side—the Indus, which flows westward for 1,800 miles, and the Tsan-po or Brahmaputra, which flows eastward for nearly 1,500 miles. The other two, on the southern slope, are the Sutlej, which, after flowing W. and S.W. for 900 miles and collecting various other streams, joins the Indus; and the Ganges, which, during a journey S.E. and E. of about 1,550 miles, drains almost all the Bengal plain. The Brahmaputra, after flowing along the northern side as far as the eastern extremity of the Himalayas, turns sharply to the S., then to the W., and finally joins the Ganges, 75 miles from where their combined streams enter the Bay of Bengal. Thus the Himalayas supply India with the water gathered on both slopes. The Indus and Ganges, with their tributaries, are the source of an extensive system of irrigation by canals. The richest, most populous, and most historically famous part of India lies in the basins of these great rivers. Formerly the Ganges was the only great highway of Bengal; it is still the fertiliser and the water-carrier. But a close network of railways is increasingly used for transport. In Northern India there are two harvests, rabi (spring) crops being reaped in March and April, kharif (autumn) crops in October to December. In the north we find wheat, pulse, maize, millet, barley, and tea; while in the south, indigo, cotton, sugar-cane, jute, oilseeds, tobacco, opium, and spices are produced. Among the fauna are monkeys, panthers, tigers, leopards, hyenas, jackals, squirrels, elephants, deer, crocodiles, and snakes. Salt, mica, and coal are the chief minerals. The Ganges delta yields rice, bamboos, and a large variety of palms. The Aravalli range, the primeval chain of India, divides Rajputana from the Central India States. To the N.W. of the peninsula lies the mountainous, barren, and thinly populated region of Baluchistan.

The Deccan.—Just as the Himalayas on the N. and the Hindu Kush and Suleiman Mountains on the N.W. form natural barriers of defence for Hindustan, so do the Vindhya Mountains, running almost due E. from the head of the Gulf of Cambay, north of the Nerbudda River, form a firm southern boundary to the river-plains of Northern India. Southern India, or the Deccan, is a plateau of triangular shape and very old geological formation, bounded on two sides by the Malabar and Coromandel coasts, which converge at Cape Comorin, and on the third by the Vindhyas. The Eastern and Western Ghats all but complete this environing triangle of mountain ranges. In the extreme N.W., south of the Vindhyas, and parallel to them, but north of the Western Ghats, we find the Nerbudda and the Tapi flowing westwards, their basins being sharply defined by the Satpura Mountains, which lie midway between them. As the Western Ghats lie close to the coast, and afford no exit for rivers, there are no streams on the Malabar coast south of the Tapi; all the rivers flow eastwards, through defiles in the Eastern Ghats, into the Bay of Bengal. The four chief rivers are the Mahanuddy, in the extreme N.E. (520 m.), the Godavary (900 m.), the Kistna (800 m.), and the Cauvery (472 m.), at intervals further to the south. The physical geography of Southern India has shaped its history: the S.W. coast, shut in by mountains, is very primitive and moves slowly; the S.E., open and easy of access by sea and towards the interior, has made great progress. The mountain slopes of this region, especially those of the Western Ghats, which rise to 8,000 feet in the Nilgiris, are still covered with the splendid vegetation of primeval forests. Teak, ebony, satinwood, sandalwood, palm, and bamboo abound. The jungles in the E. are very deadly. The tiger, the lion, leopard, deer, and various small game afford sport. Snakes are found everywhere. In the valleys and on the higher plains many valuable crops are raised, chiefly rice, millet, cotton, oilseeds, coffee, tea, indigo, tobacco, and chinchona. The black cotton soil is very fertile. There is irrigation by dams, wells, tanks, and canals. The southern tableland has furnished considerable supplies of minerals. At present the minerals principally worked are coal, manganese ore, mica, monazite, and gold.

Climate.—About half of India is within the tropics, but the greatest extremes of heat and cold are in the N.W. In the Himalayas the climate is moist and cold. In Northern India it is dry, and the winters are rather cold. In tropical Southern India the climate is more equable. Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras all have an equable climate, owing to proximity to the sea. India depends for its fertility upon the monsoon rains. The S.W. monsoon brings moisture from the ocean south of the Equator, and reaches the west coast early in June and the northern provinces late in June. The mountains arrest these currents and precipitate rainfall, which averages 60 inches in the sub-Himalayan region, 39 inches in the Indo-Gangetic plain, and 30 inches in the Deccan, but is small in Sind and Rajputana. Madras benefits by the N.E. monsoon in the autumn. In 1950, owing to the vagaries of the monsoon, heavy losses of life and property were caused by floods in Northern India, while in the Deccan there was widespread drought, and consequent grave shortages of food.

Population.—The seventh general census of India was taken on 1st March, 1941. The returns gave a population of 388,997,955 (excluding Burma and Aden which ceased to be parts of the Indian Empire in 1937) as compared with 338,119,154 in 1931, an increase in the ten years of 15 per cent. The increase between 1921 and 1931 was 10.6 per cent. The increase (1931–1941) in the British Provinces was slightly larger (by nearly 1 per cent.) than in the States and Agencies. Baluchistan was the only census area to show a decrease in population. The largest percentage increases in the Provinces were—Delhi (44.3), North-West Frontier Prov. (25.3), Punjab (20.5), Bengal (20.3). The census total of 1941 is divisible into 295,808,722 (or about 76 per cent.) for British India, and 93,189,233 (or about 24 per cent.) for Indian States. India is not overpopulated, for two-thirds of the people live on one-quarter of the area. In Assam and elsewhere a much larger population might subsist. The richness of the Indo-Gangetic plain, with its ample rainfall, enables it to support a dense population, almost wholly agricultural. The density of the population rises in some districts to 900 per square mile. On the other hand, in Baluchistan there are only six persons to the square mile. The population has increased most in the densest areas and pressure on the soil is severe in parts of Bihar and the United Provinces.

Vital Statistics.—The recorded death rate for British India in the decennium ended 1913 ranged between 38.21 per 1,000 in 1908 and 28.72 in 1913; it was 35.9 per 1,000 in 1919 and 22.2 in 1939. There were over 12 million deaths from influenza during 1918–19. Fevers of various kinds are by far the commonest cause of death, cholera, dysentery and diarrhoea, smallpox, and (since 1896) plague being other chief causes. The reported deaths from plague up to the end of 1933 were about 12,470,000 in India as a whole. The ratio of births per 1,000 of the population was 32.6 in 1920. In 5,650 hospitals and dispensaries, maintained mostly from public funds, 79,057,465 patients were treated in 1939.

Caste, Tribe, Race or Nationality.—Owing to the operation of the caste system India is broken up into a large number of mutually exclusive aggregates, the members of which are forbidden by an inexorable social law to marry outside the group to which they themselves belong. A caste may be defined as a collection of families, or groups of families, bearing a common name, which usually denotes or is associated with a specific occupation. The boundary of a caste may be said to be fixed by the rule restricting intermarriage, but its social status depends on the occupation of its members and their habits in respect of diet. The chief castes and races are (Census 1931)—Brahman (15,207,277), Chamar (12,195,156), Ahar, etc (14,179,032), Rajput (10,743,091), Jat (8,377,819), Maratha (6,113,061). According to the Census Returns of 1931 the population included 306,529 persons of European and allied races (including Americans, viz. 155,555 British subjects, 12,579 persons of other European races, and 138,395 Anglo-Indians). The description of an Anglo-Indian for Census purposes was a person whose father, grandfather or other progenitor in the male line was European.

Religions.—Classification of the results of the 1941 census was confined to distribution by communities. All previous tables were based on the returns to the question "religion," but the results were interpreted as if the question had been community. The population by communities in 1941 includes 254,930,506 Hindus (65 per cent. of the total), 92,058,096 Moslems (24 per cent.), leaving about 11 per cent. for all other religions, including 6,316,549 Christians (about half of whom are in Madras, Travancore and Cochin), 5,691,447 Sikhs, 1,449,286 Jains, 114,890 Parsees, 22,480 Jews, and 25,441,489 described as "Tribes." Of the "Tribes" 7,630,000 may be described as "Tribal," who believe in magic and strive to propitiate impersonal forces. Unspecified communities 409,877. The Moslems, who are increasing faster than the Hindus, are influenced by the caste system and other Hindu characteristics.

Education.—Elementary education in British India was based, so far as possible, on an adaptation of indigenous institutions and traditions. Higher education was an imported product. It was popular, and undoubtedly attended with beneficial results. As is natural with an imported product, its development was marked by some crudities, and its influence was to some extent unsettling. In 1945-46 there were 16 Universities in British India and 3 in Indian States, viz., Agra, Andhra, Annamalia, Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Benares, Utkal, Patna, Dacca, Aligarh, Travancore, Lahore, Hyderabad (Osmania), Mysore, Lucknow, Nagpur and Delhi. In State institutions education is secular. The recognised institutions numbered 196,000, and the scholars 16,352,698, including about 3,600,000 females. There were 13,564 unrecognised institutions with 467,253 scholars. Of the institutions, about 86 per cent. were maintained by the State or aided by grants, the rest being private and unaided. The census of 1931 showed that only 156 males and 29 females per thousand were literate, in the sense of being able to read and write any language. The census of 1941 showed a striking increase of literates during the decade 1931-41. Preliminary tabulations gave the percentage of literates as 12.2, compared with under 7 per cent. in 1931.

British Influence on Indian Education.—The British connection with India was marked by progressive efforts to learn and apply an educational policy. Notwithstanding the traditions and achievements of ancient learning, education in India at the beginning of the nineteenth century was at a very low ebb. The influence of men like Wilberforce induced Parliament in 1813 to direct the Governor-General to set apart a sum not less than 1 lakh of rupees per year "for the encouragement of education in British India." The amount was little enough, but at that date no Government had as yet undertaken the promotion of education in England itself by grants from public funds. It is commonly (but erroneously) supposed that Macaulay's Minute of 1835 was the sole cause to take the decision that Western culture was to be made available through the teaching of English. Other forces were already at work, represented by the Indian reformer Ram Mohan Roy, David Hare and missionaries such as Alexander Duff. Higher education was definitely linked with the English language, and it is said that the main contribution of Britain to Indian education was the high school in which English was taught. Sir Charles Wood's Education Despatch of 1854 determined the whole subsequent course of Indian educational development by imposing on the Government of India the duty of creating a properly articulated system of education from the primary school to the University. It is not in higher but in primary education that India is backward. The problem of mass education in the continent of India is a rural one. Only 12.9 per cent. of the population live in towns as compared with 79 per cent. in England and Wales and 51 per cent. in the U.S.A. Some 179 million people live in villages with fewer than 2,000 inhabitants. Over 360,000 villages have a population of under 500. Many provinces have a population density of less than 150 persons to the square mile. In such areas, school units are usually small, adequate staffing is expensive and conditions of life not attractive to teachers. Women teachers cannot as a rule live in villages unless circumstances are exceptionally favourable. Wastage among pupils is enormous. The latest available Quinquennial Report of the Education Commissioner of India covering the years 1932-37 pointed out that in the whole of British India 72 per cent. of those who entered primary schools failed to reach Class IV, the earliest stage at which they might be assumed to attain literacy. Among the causes of wastage are premature withdrawal from schools of children, especially from the labouring and agricultural elements, inadequate supply of teachers, ineffective teaching and supervision, irregular attendance and faulty administration by local bodies. In Bombay only 36 per cent. of the 1,100,000 children in primary schools progress further than the infants' class. Primary education is controlled by local authorities.

Languages.—India has 225 languages, exclusive of dialects. The languages spoken by 349,883,022 persons in 1931 (excluding 2,308,221 persons for whom details by language were not available) were grouped in eight families. The principal languages were Western Hindi (spoken by 71,547,000 persons), Bengali (53,469,000), Bihari (27,927,000), Telugu (26,374,000), Marathi (20,890,000), Tamil (20,412,000), Punjabi (15,839,000), Rajasthani (13,898,000), after which came Kanarese, Oriya, Gujarati, and Malayalam. Hindustani, a dialect of Hindi, containing a large number of Persian and Arabic words, is the lingua franca of India. Hindustani and Hindi have become the chief literary languages of Hindustan. English is understood by many.

Indian System of Notation.—The Indian numerical notation system differs from the European. Large numbers are punctuated as crores and lakhs and not in hundreds, thousands and millions. A lakh is one hundred thousand (written Rs.1,00,000), and a crore is one hundred lakhs or ten millions (1,00,00,000). Thus, 1,68,00,000 is read as 1 crore 68 lakhs. A lakh of rupees (Rs.1,00,000) may be read as equal to £7,500 at 13½ rupees—the statutory rate adopted for conversion in this article. The rupee is divided into 16 annas and, at 13½ rupees to £1, the anna is equivalent to 1½d. The anna is subdivided into 12 pies (1½d. approximate value).

Currency.—The principal coin in use is the silver rupee, pre-war content 165 grains of fine silver and 15 grains of alloy, weight in all 180 grains troy or 1 tola.

VITAL STATISTICS.—The birth rate in 1948 was 25.4 per 1,000, the death rate 17.2 per 1,000. Infant mortality was 131 per 1,000 live births. In 1949 the birth rate was 26.8 per 1,000, death rate 16.0 per 1,000, and infant mortality 122 per 1,000 live births.

GOVERNMENT

The Dominion of India was constituted under the Indian Independence Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on July 18, 1947. In terms of that Act it consisted of certain former territories of British India. The boundaries of the Provinces of West Bengal and East Punjab were defined by a Boundary Commission, presided over by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, K.B.E., Q.C. (now Lord Radcliffe).

An Act passed in January, 1949, by the Constituent Assembly gave certain extended interim powers to the Central Government. The Conference of Prime Ministers came to a unanimous agreement on April 27, 1949, about India's relations to the Commonwealth. According to this agreement India will remain a full member of the Commonwealth. She has accepted the Sovereign as "the symbol of the free association of its independent member nations and, as such, the head of the Commonwealth." The Constitution of the Republic of India was finally adopted on Nov. 26, 1949, by the Constituent Assembly, which thus completed its work. The Republic was formally proclaimed in the Durbar Hall, New Delhi, on Jan. 26, 1950.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Constitution of India came into force on January 26, 1950. The President of the Union "Rashtrapati" is elected for 5 years by an electoral college consisting of all elected members of Parliament and of the various state legislative assemblies. The bicameral union of the legislature is on the British model with two houses, called "Lok Sabha" or the House of the People, and "Raj Sabha" or the House of States, which have 500 and 250 members respectively. Separate electorates for communities and untouchability have been abolished. The age limit for adult suffrage for both sexes is 21. The legislative Assemblies in the Provinces (States) have more than 3,800 members, elected in almost as many constituencies.

Governors of Provinces, States and Unions are appointed by the President and hold office for 5 years.

General elections were held in January, 1952. For the House of People 105,900,000 valid votes were polled. Of a total of 499 seats, 362 are held by the Congress Party and 12 by Socialists. For the States Assemblies, of 103,800,000 valid votes cast, Congress Party obtained 43,950,265, Socialists 10,072,316, Independents 21,974,210. Of a total of 3,369 seats in the States Assemblies, 2,295 are held by the Congress Party and 125 by Socialists. The new Parliament held its first session in New Delhi on May 13, 1952. In undivided India there were 35 million voters out of a total population of 390 millions; the new constitution admits 170 million voters (about one in two of the population).

Municipalities at the end of 1948 numbered 360, with a population of 16,250,000. The total number of municipal bodies was 7,085, of whom 6,932 were non-official. Municipal bodies impose taxes, enact bye-laws and spend with the sanction of the Provincial Government.

THE JUDICATURE

The Federal Court of India, consisting of a Chief Justice, seven associate justices and an advocate-general, is the highest supreme court in respect of constitutional matters. There are provincial high courts in Madras, Bombay, West Bengal, U.P., Bihar, East Punjab, and Central Provinces.

LANGUAGE

In Sept. 1949 the Constituent Assembly decided that the official language should be Hindi, written in the Devanagari script, and that the international form of the Indian numerals should be used officially. For 15 years, however, English should continue to be used for all official purposes. In East Punjab the official language is to be Punjabi in the Gurmukhi script. The following 14 languages are recognized: Assamese, Bengali, Gujarati, Hindi, Kannada, Kashmiri, Malayalam, Marathi, Oriya, Punjabi, Sanskrit, Tamil, Telugu, Urdu.

DEFENCE

The supreme command of the armed forces is vested in the President. Administrative and operational control resides in the Army, Navy and Air Headquarters under the supervision of the Ministry of Defence.

Recruitment is open to all, irrespective of class or creed and depends on competitive merit. The Army has 3 Commands, Southern, Eastern and Western, with headquarters at Poona, Ranchi and Delhi respectively. A Territorial Army was inaugurated in Oct. 1949. It is intended to take over A.A. and coastal defence, and to act as a second line of defence. A National Cadet Corps, with senior, junior, and girl's divisions, has also been raised.

The Indian Navy (Royal Indian Navy till 1950) traces its history from the formation in 1612 of the Hon. East India Company's Marine. It consists of the cruiser Delhi (ex Achilles), 6 destroyers including 3 of the Hunt Class, 5 frigates, 6 minesweepers and some auxiliary vessels. There are training establishments at Cochin, Vishakhapatnam, Jamnagar and Lonavla (Bombay State). The Navy's air station is at Cochin.

The Indian Air Force (Royal Indian Air Force from 1945 to 1950) dates from 1933, when the first flight of the Indian Air Force was formed at Karachi. India received 7 fighter and 1 transport squadrons on the division of the force. The first Indian designed and constructed aircraft trainer was introduced in 1953.

EDUCATION

Education is to undergo tremendous expansion in accordance with a plan for post-war development prepared in 1944 by the Central Advisory Board of Education, but in 1950 this plan was still only on paper. It is estimated that the plan will take 40 years to complete and its aim is to modernize all branches of education. At present, 82 per cent. of the population are illiterate, and 60 per cent. of children from 6-11 do not attend school. In March, 1951, there were 210,000 primary schools and 21,000 secondary schools. The budget estimates for 1953-54 provide for an expenditure of about Rs. 775 million.

An All India Council for technical education has surveyed the needs of the country as a whole and the Central Government, in co-operation with the Provincial Governments, has sent abroad some 1,400 scholars for higher technical training and research. Reorganization of 54 existing technical institutions and the establishment of 160 others are contemplated in the provincial 5-year plans. Special provision is being made for the training of high-grade engineers and technologists (designers, planners, research workers and production experts), and the Government proposes to establish central higher technological institutes, at or near Calcutta and Bombay, each with facilities for about 2,000 undergraduates and 1,000 post-graduates. Detailed statistics are not yet available.

There are thirty Universities in India, including those at Calcutta (founded in 1857), Madras (1857), Bombay (1857), Patna (1917), Lucknow (1921), Delhi (1922), Nagpur (1923), Andhra (1926), Agra (1927), Utkal (1943), Annamalai (1929) and Allahabad, in addition to the Hindu University at Banaras founded in 1916 and the Moslem University at Aligarh (1920). Thomson College at Roorkee was raised to the status of an Engineering University in 1948.

The States of Mysore, Hyderabad and Travancore have each a University, Mysore having been founded in 1916, Osmania University (Hyderabad) in 1918 and Travancore in 1937.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.—The total liabilities of the undivided Indian Government on Aug. 15th, 1947, were Rs.32,000 mill. (£2,400 mill.) and assets Rs.28,000 mill. (£2,100 mill.).

The cost of purchase of annuities for financing payment of sterling pensions and acquisition of defence installations and stores left after the passing of the Independence Act amounted to Rs.284 crores (£213 m.).

The Exchange Rate (Free Market) in London on Sept. 4, 1953, was 1s. 5d. and fifteen-sixteenths of 1d. to 1s. 6d. and one-sixteenth of 1d. to the rupee. Following devaluation, the Government announced on Sept. 18, 1949, that the Indian rupee had been devalued in line with sterling from 1 rupee=30.2 U.S. cents to 21 U.S. cents. The sterling rate remained unchanged at 1 rupee=1s. 6d. Pakistan decided not to devalue the Pakistan rupee in relation to the dollar and new exchange rates were fixed; 9.265 Pakistan rupees=£1 sterling. 700 Pakistan rupees=144 Indian rupees. See also p. 83.

COMMUNICATIONS

Civil Aviation

India occupies an important place in civil aviation among the nations of the world. All air lines were nationalized in 1953 and operate over 28,500 miles of scheduled services within and outside India. In 1952, 434,282 passengers, 36,250 tons of freight, 2,098 tons of newspapers and 3,750 tons of mails were carried on scheduled services, and 88,498 passengers and 55,982 tons of freight on non-scheduled services. At the end of 1952, 77 aerodromes were maintained by the Civil Aviation Department of the Government.

Railways

On August 15th, 1947, 40,588 miles of railway were split in two portions, 6,958 miles of line in Sind, N.W.F. Prov., West Punjab and East Bengal went to Pakistan and the rest comprising 33,630 route miles to India. On April 1, 1950, some 6,495 miles of former States Railways were absorbed. There will be 6 zones of Indian Railways (Northern, Western, Central, Southern, Eastern and North-Eastern), absorbing 19 independent railway units.

In 1951-52, passengers "originating" were 1,232,073,000, mileage 39,551,000,000, goods, traffic freight ton miles 29,018,000,000.

Gross Traffic Receipts (1951-52) Rs. 2,908 million. Working expenses, Rs. 2,240 million. Net railway revenues, Rs. 617 million. Net surplus, Rs. 283 million.

Roads

India has about 115,500 miles of all-weather highways, excluding urban roads. Roads (other than urban roads) are divided into four main administrative classes, namely, National Highways, State Highways, District Roads and Village Roads. The National Highways connect capitals of States, major ports and foreign highways, and constitute the main arteries of communication in the country; they also include roads of strategic importance. The State Highways are the main trunk roads of the States, while the District Roads connect areas of production and markets with distribution centres. They also form the main link between headquarters of neighbouring districts. The Village Roads meet the requirements of rural communities.

India's roads system is at present insufficient for her needs, the all-weather roads being only 9.5 miles per hundred square miles of the area of the country. Development of road communication is, therefore, one of the major items of India's Five-Year Plan.

There are at present 307,517 motor vehicles in India, comprising 147,952 cars, 45,640 passenger vehicles, 83,194 goods vehicles, 27,065 motor cycles and 3,966 miscellaneous vehicles.

Shipping

The total Indian owned registered tonnage of merchant ships of over 150 gross tons is a little over 450,000. The Scindia Steam Navigation Co. and India Steamship Co., both members of the India-U.K.-Continent Conference and the former also of the India-North America Conference, are important companies. The Government-sponsored Eastern Shipping Corporation, founded in 1950, is operating in the India-Malaya and Australia trades. The shipbuilding yard at Vishakapatnam is now able to build ships of all types.

Ports

India has a coastline of approximately 3,200 miles, and a land frontier of approx. 2,000 miles.

The chief seaports are Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Cochin and Vishakapatnam. There are over 150 minor ports with varying capacity. A new major port is to be constructed at Kandla (Kutch).

Postal

There are 42,084 post offices, 8,240 telegraph offices, 4,217 telephone exchanges and 184,020 telephones (March 1952). Trunk calls averaged 740,000 a month in 1951-52.

NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS

The number of newspapers and periodicals published on Jan. 1, 1952 were—English 1,066, Hindi 1,389, Gujarati 280, Urdu 733, Bengali 609, Tamil 436, Oriya 68, Sindhi 40, Malayalam 159, Assamese 15, Kannada 140, Punjabi (Gurmukhi) 101, Marathi 299, Telugu 314, bi-lingual or multi-lingual 620 and other languages 46.

PRODUCTION

About 249,000,000 inhabitants of India are dependent on agricultural pursuits. Most of the agricultural holdings are less than 5 acres. Food crops occupy four-fifths of the cultivated land. There are about 150,000,000 cattle, or about a quarter of the world's cattle population. The average yield of wheat per acre is at present 600 lb.

In 1951-2, 425,538,172 lb. of tea, valued at over £70,000,000, were exported from India of which 287,824,000 lb. were exported to the U.K.

The production of wool for 1949 was estimated at 54,533,589 lb.

Industrial

The output of coal in 1952 was 36,228,000 tons. In 1952 there were 341,738 people employed in the industry. Nine-tenths of the coal mined comes from West Bengal and Orissa. Production of steel was 1,101,000 tons in 1952 as against 1,074,000 in 1951, cement 3,537,000 tons, paper 137,820 tons, cloth 4,598,638,000 yards as compared with 4,076,186,000 yards in 1951 and yarn 1,449,111,000 pounds as compared with 1,303,861,000 pounds in 1949. In 1952 1,814,000 tons of pig iron and 3,666 tons of aluminium were produced. The yield of gold was 252,900 ozs. Monazite and tungsten ore have taken an important place in the list of minerals produced in India. In 1952 mica production totalled 306,976 cwts.

CUSTOMS AND EXCISE

Import duties (revenue and protective) amounted to Rs.1,410 mill. (£105,750,000) as against Rs.1,070 mill. (£80,250,000) in 1950-51. Export duties were Rs.896 mill. (£6,720,000) as against £3,487,500 in the previous year. Refunds and "drawbacks" amounted to Rs.48 mill. (£3,600,000) as against Rs. 31 mill. (£2,325,000) in 1950-51.

Tobacco.—Total Central Excise duties during 1951-52 amounted to Rs.347.9 mill. (£26,092,500) as compared with Rs.294.6 mill. (£22,095,000) in 1950-51.

BANKS AND BANKING

The number of offices of scheduled banks was 2,647 and non-scheduled banks 1,504 at the end of 1951. For all places served by banks the average ratio of banks to population was one banking office to every 10,137 people. For the Indian Union as a whole the average ratio was one banking office to 71,500 people. Advances by banks totalled Rs.5,500 mill. Deposits with co-operative banks were Rs.1,000 mill. and advances Rs.730 mill. Non-scheduled banks, deposits Rs.690 mill., advances Rs.460 mill.

STATE INSURANCE SCHEME

A State Insurance Scheme was introduced in Delhi and Kanpur with effect from February 24, 1952, and in Punjab with effect from May 17, 1953. Nearly 150,000 workers in Delhi and Kanpur and 30,000 in seven industrial centres in Punjab will receive benefits under the scheme. It is hoped to cover all industrial centres in the country by 1954. Sickness, dependants, disablement and maternity benefits and free medical care are provided under the scheme, which extends to all factories other than seasonal factories employing 20 or more persons and using power in their manufacturing process and covers employees getting a remuneration in the aggregate not exceeding Rs.400 a month. There is provision for extension of the scheme to other types of establishments.

TRIBAL WELFARE IN INDIA

The tribal population numbers some 28 millions of whom there are 700,000 in Hyderabad. In 1951-52 Rs.20 mill. (£1½ mill.) for the promotion of their welfare was granted by subsidies to States.

Absorbing the Union of Rajasthan and the Union of Matsya, Rajasthan (Capital Jaipur) has an area of 128,000 sq. miles, pop. 13½ million, and a total revenue of about Rs. 110 million (£8½ m.). It is one of the biggest political and administrative units in India and includes the leading states of Jaipur, Bikaner, Jaisalmer and Jodhpur. The Raj Pramukh (President) is the Maharajah of Jaipur, Up-Raj Pramukh (Vice-President), the Maharajah of Kotah. There are 24 administrative units, with a District Officer at the head of each.

The United State of Madhya Bharat (Malwa Union) is one of the largest States created as a result of the new policy. The Ruler of Gwalior will be Raj Pramukh for life and the Ruler of Indore will be Senior Up-Raj Pramukh for life. The Rulers of Dhar and Khilchipur have been elected Junior Up-Raj Pramukhs for five years. The winter capital is Gwalior and the summer capital Indore. The covenant has some special provisions, e.g. certain large tracts inhabited by the backward Bhils are administered by the President in consultation with the Government of India.

The Patiala and East Punjab States Union, inaugurated in July, 1948, comprises Sikh States. The Maharajah of Patiala is Raj Pramukh and the Maharajah of Kapurthala Up-Raj Pramukh, both for life. There is provision in the Covenant for execution by the Raj Pramukh of an instrument of accession on behalf of the Union giving power to the Central Legislature to make laws on certain matters.

The United States of Travancore and Cochin, area 9,000 sq. miles, pop. 8 million, were inaugurated on July 1, 1949. Annual revenue Rs. 130 million (£9½ m.).

HYDERABAD STATE

Hyderabad, area 82,698 sq. miles, population (Census of 1941), 16,338,534 (excluding Berar), of whom approximately 14 millions are Hindus, forms a polygonal tract occupying almost the centre of the Deccan plateau. The country is an extensive plateau with an average elevation of about 1,250 feet above sea level.

The ruling dynasty is of Turkoman origin and is descended from Asaf Jah who became Viceroy of the Deccan in 1712, and independent of the Mogul Emperor. The State is rich in minerals, there is a coal mine at Singareni and gold mines at Lingsugur.

The number of public educational institutions in 1946-7 was 7,023 with 538,539 pupils. There are 6 arts colleges. The Osmania University in which teaching is in Urdu was founded in 1918. The total expenditure on public instruction amounted to Rs. 281.83 lakhs.

The financial year 1953-54 anticipates a revenue deficit of Rs. 3.2 million.

Jurisdiction over Secunderabad was handed over to the Nizam's Government on December 1, 1945.

Capital, Hyderabad, population 739,159.

Chief Minister, B. Ramakrishna Rao.

JAMMU AND KASHMIR

The Kashmir territory, area 82,258 sq. miles, population 4,021,616 (census 1941), of whom some 880,000 are non-Moslems, may be divided physically into two areas, the north-eastern and south-western areas. The dividing line is formed by the great Himalayan chain which runs from the northern boundary of the Chamba State to where Nanga Parbat towers 26,600 feet above the Indus. The smaller, more populous south-western area may be divided geographically into three sections; the region of the outer hills, the middle mountains and the Kashmir Valley. The north-eastern section is comprised between the great central chain on the south and the Karakoram range and its continuation on the north. The chief characteristic of this region is the great altitude of the rivers and plains. The Indus near the Kashmir-Tibet boundary runs at a height of 13,800 feet above sea level.

A 65-mile metalled road, opened in July 1948, gives for the first time direct communication between the Indian Republic and Jammu. Running from Pathankote to Jammu the road is straight for 36 miles and then becomes winding, passing through beautiful mountain slopes and ravines. The new Ravi bridge is 2800 feet long.

Kashmir, previously subject to a series of Buddhist and Hindu dynasties, became part of the Mogul Empire in A.D. 1586, but was afterwards subjugated both by the Afghans and the Sikhs. At the time of the First Sikh War the district was ruled by Gulab Singh, a Sikh officer who ruled as a feudatory of the Maharajah of the Punjab. After the victory of the British Forces in 1846, the possession of Kashmir was confirmed to Gulab Singh by treaty. The State is celebrated for its woollen and silk hand-made products.

After the passing of the Indian Independence Act, an interim Government was formed and Sheikh Abdullah, leader of the Nationalist Conference, was installed as Premier. The Maharajah's decision to accede to the Republic of India was provisionally accepted and the Government of India stated it was their intention to arrange a plebiscite to decide the issue when peace was restored. In December, 1947, the Government of India, alleging armed intervention in the State by the neighbouring Dominion of Pakistan, referred the dispute to the Security Council of the United Nations. The Security Council set up a Kashmir Commission, and at a joint meeting at Karachi on July 26, 1949, between the Truce Sub-Committee of the Commission and Indian and Pakistani representatives, a cease-fire line was agreed. The demarcation of this line was completed by the U.N. Commission on Nov. 3. The Indian Government had, however, in the meanwhile rejected the Commission's suggestion for the appointment of an arbitrator whose decisions should be binding on both sides. In March, 1950, the Security Council appointed Sir Owen Dixon as Mediator, and in April dissolved the Commission. On August 22 Sir Owen stated that he had come to the conclusion that there was no immediate prospect of India and Pakistan composing any of their differences over Kashmir, and there was no purpose in his remaining longer. In November, 1952, the State became a Republic, an elected head of the State (Karun Singh) being substituted for the Maharajah. Capital, Srinagar (pop. 207,787).

The Budget for 1951-52 showed a deficit of Rs. 711,000 (£533,250). Revenue estimates for 1952-53 are Rs. 46,608 million (£3,495,600). Expenditure, Rs. 47,314 million (£3,548,550).

ANDHRA

A new State of Andhra was inaugurated on October 1, 1953, consisting mainly of the undisputed Telugu speaking areas of the present Madras State. The present city of Madras does not form part of the new State. The town of Waltair-Visakhapatnam is under consideration as the new capital. Broadly the new State consists of all that territory of the Province of Madras slightly to the north of the city of Madras running west to Mysore. Certain boundaries are not yet defined.

Andhra will have an area of 67,284 square miles with a population of 20,000,000. The approximate revenue is estimated to be Rs. 177 million lakhs (£13,275,000) expenditure Rs. 227.3 million lakhs (£17,048,000).

Fed by the rivers Godavari, Krishna and Pennar, Andhra has a rich canal system running into 1,255 miles. There are 13,184 miles of trunk roads and 1,647 miles of railways. Acres under cultivation 15,462,712, forests 7,237,774. Raw materials include antimony, asbestos, barytes, copper, graphite, gypsum, lead and silver.

The Legislature will consist of one chamber, i.e. the Legislative Assembly.

States and Administrations of the Republic of India

MADRAS

Madras (area, 127,790 sq. miles; est. pop (1951) 57,016,002) was not only the oldest, but the most important of the three original Presidencies before Clive's conquest of Bengal, though it was small in extent until the annexation of the Carnatic in 1801. The state has no good natural harbour, but an artificial harbour has been constructed at Madras at great expense. The state is not naturally fertile, though irrigation systems in the river deltas have enormously increased the produce of the soil, and have yielded a large profit to the State. Rice, millet, and other food-grains, oilseeds, cotton, indigo, spices, tobacco, tea, etc., are cultivated. Manganese ore is mined and exported. Madras is served by the Southern Railway, and to a small extent by the Eastern Railway. About 88 per cent. of the people are Hindus. There are 2,276,000 native Christians, mainly Roman Catholics. Many natives of the Presidency emigrate to Burma and Ceylon, some only temporarily. The languages principally spoken are Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam and Kannada. Madurai (361,781) and Trichinopoly (218,921), famous for their Hindu temples, are the chief cities after the capital. The States of Banganapalle and Pudukottai merged with the State of Madras in 1948 and the State of Sandur did so on April 1, 1949.

CHIEF CITY, Ψ Madras. Population, 1,416,056. Governor, H.E. Shri Sri Prakasa (March 1952).

The Laccadive Islands, 14 islands (10 inhabited), distant 125 miles from the Malabar Coast of Madras in the Arabian Sea, are included in the State of Madras. Population (1951), 13,992.

BOMBAY

The Island of Bombay was part of the dowry of the Infanta of Portugal (1662), and was made over by Charles II. to the East India Company in 1668. The greater part of the present territory was obtained by annexations from the Mahrattas and by the lapse of the Satara State. The State of Bombay stretches along the Arabian Sea coast of India from Rajasthan in the north to the States of Madras and Mysore in the south, and in the east it is bounded by the States of Rajasthan, Madhya Bharat, Madhya Pradesh, Hyderabad and Madras. The state contains 111,434 square miles, with an estimated population (1951) of 35,956,150. About 88 per cent. of the people of the State are Hindus, and 8 per cent. Muslims. The Parsis (97,573), who are very prominent in trade, are mainly found in Bombay. Marathi, Gujarati and Kannada are the principal languages. 61.5 per cent. of the population are dependent on agriculture; cotton is largely produced for export and for manufacture in the constantly extending cotton-mills of Bombay and Ahmedabad. The chief railway systems are the Western Railway running from Bombay to the north, the Central Railway to the north-east and south-east and the Southern Railway running from Poona to the south. Ahmedabad (788,333), Poona (480,982), Sholapur (266,050), Surat (223,182), Baroda (211,407), Kolhapur (136,835) and Hubli (129,609) are the most important cities.

CHIEF CITY, Ψ Bombay. Population, 2,839,270. A "Greater Bombay" plan was promulgated in April, 1950, whereby the City boundaries have been extended from 25 sq. miles to 91 sq. miles, by the incorporation of a number of suburbs and villages, raising the population of the City by about 510,000. WEST BENGAL

West Bengal has an area of 30,775 sq. miles and a population (1951 Census) of 24,810,308. The old Bengal Presidency included practically all Northern and Central India, but subsequently Bengal Province consisted of part of Bengal proper with Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpur. In 1905 the Province was divided but in 1911 it was reunited. This Province of Bengal ceased to exist in 1947 when it was again divided, West Bengal forming part of India and East Bengal part of the Dominion of Pakistan. The state of Cooch Behar was merged with West Bengal on Jan. 1, 1950.

The chief products are rice, oilseeds, sugar cane, sugar, tobacco, jute, silk, tea and coal. West Bengal is now served by two State Railways, the Eastern Railway and North Eastern Railway. The Eastern Railway is the great artery of the Ganges Valley.

Howrah (pop. 1,611,373), the great jute manufacturing centre, adjoins Calcutta.

UTTAR PRADESH

Uttar Pradesh, called the United Provinces until 1949 (formerly the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh) (area, 123,409 sq. miles; est. pop. (1951) 63,215,742), forms the upper part of the great Ganga plain to the W. of Bengal, lying between the Himalayas and the hilly border of the central plateau. Under the new Constitution of India, the Province has now become a State in which the former three princely States, Rampur (pop. 543,324), Tehri-Garhwal (pop. 412,047) and Benares (pop. 451,428) have been merged and certain areas of the Vindhya Pradesh and Rajasthan States have also been absorbed. Agriculture employs 76 per cent. of the population, the chief products being wheat, rice, barley, pulse, tobacco, millet, cotton, sugar, and oilseeds. About 85 per cent. of the population are Hindus and 14.3 per cent. Muslims. Western Hindi is the chief language. The province is served by the Northern Railway and the North-Eastern Railway. Among the important cities may be named the ancient city of Agra (375,665), containing the Taj Mahal and other great works of architecture, the sacred Hindu city of Banaras (355,777), the great manufacturing centre, Kanpur (Cawnpore) (705,383), Lucknow (496,861), Bareilly (208,083), and Allahabad (332,295).

PUNJAB (INDIA)

The Punjab (India), the eastern part of the old Punjab Province, has an area of 37,378 sq. miles and an estimated population (1951) of 12,641,205. Before partition the Punjab had an area of 99,089 sq. miles. It occupied the north-west angle of the great northern plain of India, deriving its name from the Five Rivers (Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, Beas and Sutlej) which descend from the Himalayas, traverse the plain, and unite in the Indus. It is mainly an agricultural area, and owing to the scanty rainfall depends largely for its harvests on irrigation canals, which will, on the completion of the Bhakra-Nangal project, be greatly extended. Punjab (India) was separated from the former Punjab Province under the terms of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, and forms part of the Republic of India. The Punjab State has two houses of legislature, the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council. Hindi and Punjabi are the principal languages.

The chief crops are wheat, millet, barley, oilseeds, sugar and cotton.

BIHAR

This state has an area of 69,978 sq. miles and an estimated population (1950) of 40,219,000. It comprises Bihar and Chota-Nagpur. Bihar is liable to extreme temperatures. The population is exceedingly dense, being 521 to the square mile in 1941. Chota-Nagpur is ill-watered and liable to drought. The highlands of Chota-Nagpur are thinly peopled and contain a large aboriginal population. The Patna High Court came into existence on March 1, 1916. Rice, wheat, oilseeds, sugar and tobacco are cultivated, 82 per cent. of the people are Hindus. There is a variety of languages, that spoken by the majority of the population being Bihari. The railway systems are the East Indian, Oudh and Tirhut, and Assam Railways. The States of Seraikella and Kharswan were merged with the Province in 1948.

MADHYA PRADESH

Madhya Pradesh, formerly the Central Provinces and Berar, has a total area of 130,272 sq. miles with an estimated population (1951) of 21,247,533 (area, Central Provinces alone, 112,666 sq. miles, pop. 17,463,229). The Central Provinces were formed in 1861 out of territory taken from the North-West Provinces and Madras, but originally belonging to the Maharratta Kingdom of Nagpur. A small part of the Province was transferred to the new Province of Orissa on April 1, 1936. The country, hilly and forest-clad, contains a large population of aboriginal tribes. The people are mostly Hindus, and they speak mainly Western Hindi and Marathi. The province, which is served by the Indian Midland, Great Indian Peninsula, and the Bengal-Nagpur Railways, possesses coal and manganese ore, and produces rice, wheat, millet, pulse, oilseeds and cotton. There are cotton mills at Nagpur.

Since October 1, 1902, BERAR has been amalgamated with the Central Provinces. Berar (area, 17,806 sq. miles; pop. 3,784,304), which lies to the north of Hyderabad, was placed in British hands by the Nizam in 1853, in payment of arrears, and its revenues were charged with the future cost of the Hyderabad Contingent (which was in 1903 incorporated in the Indian Army). In 1902 Berar was leased in perpetuity to the Government of India on payment of £167,000 a year to the Nizam. Berar is purely agricultural. It is very fertile, and yields cotton, millet, oilseeds, &c. The chief language is Marathi, and most of the people are Hindus.

ASSAM

Assam, which has an area of 49,473 sq. miles; pop. 9,043,707 (1951 census) (after the exclusion of Sylhet), was constituted a separate administration in 1874 out of certain Bengal districts, most of which had been ceded by Burma in 1825. It was combined in 1905 with part of Bengal to form a new province, Eastern Bengal and Assam, but again became a separate administration in 1912. By the terms of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the district of Sylhet was detached from Assam and amalgamated with East Bengal (Pakistan). The voting in favour was 239,619 and 124,041 against. A range of mountains divides Assam into the Surma and Brahmaputra valleys, of which the chief towns are Sylhet and Gauhati respectively. The people are mainly Hindus, Moslems and Tribals, and the chief languages are Bengali and Assamese. The Assam-Bengal railway serves the province. Tea and rice are the principal products, Assam contains nearly 900,000 immigrants from other parts of India, chiefly coolies for tea-gardens, and over 274,000 displaced persons, mostly from East Bengal.

Area, 59,869 sq. miles; est. pop. (1950) 14,410,000, constituted a Governor's Province on April 1, 1936, comprises the Orissa Division, transferred from the Province of Bihar and Orissa, areas transferred from the Presidency of Madras (the Ganjam Agency Tracts, certain areas in the Non-Agency portion of the Ganjam district, a part of the Parlakimedi estate, and certain areas in the Vizagapatam district), and certain areas transferred from the Central Provinces (the Kharlar Zamindari and the Padampur Tract in the Bilaspur district). 24 States were merged with the Province in 1948 and 1949, and became part of Orissa on August 1, 1949. Practically the whole of the population is Hindu. It is an agricultural Province with few towns. The construction of a dam across the Mahanadi river at Hirakud is projected and will produce 350,000 tons of food crops annually. The Oriyas, the inhabitants of Orissa, trace their traditions far back to the Mahabharat (about 1,000 B.C.). The great Hindu temple of Juggernaut is at Puri (pop. 41,055). A new capital is planned at Bhubaneswar.

Orissa formerly had a Joint Public Service Commission with Bihar. On April 1, 1949, a separate Public Service Commission for Orissa was established, with a Chairman and two members.

HIMACHAL PRADESH

The State of Himachal Pradesh, formed in April, 1948 (area 20,451 sq. miles, population, 1951 Census, 989,437), consists of 21 former Punjab Hill States and their 9 tributaries. The transfer of these territories to the Republic has consolidated into a sizeable administrative unit a large number of small states inherently incapable of surviving as separate "viable" units. The State is divided into four administrative districts, Mahasu, Sirmur, Mandi and Chamba. The State Assembly has 36 elected members. Capital, Simla.

Lieut.-Governor, Maj.-Gen. M. S. Himatsinhi.Ministers, Dr. Y. S. Parmar (Chief Minister); Pandit Padam Dev; Shri Gauri Prasad.

AJMER

The State of Ajmer (area 2,400 sq. miles; pop. est. (1951) 692,506) lies within Rajasthan. The Chief Commissioner is the chief executive authority. There is a separate Judicial Commissioner, whose Court is the highest Court of the State. 78 per cent. of the people are Hindus. Rajasthani and Hindi are the chief languages.

CHIEF CITY, Ajmer. Population, 196,355.Chief Commissioner.—A. D. Pandit.

COORG

This State came under British control in 1834, and in 1881 the resident in Mysore became Chief Commissioner of Coorg until July 1, 1940, when a separate Chief Commissioner was appointed. Coorg has a Legislative Assembly of 24 members and a Ministry consisting of two Ministers. The area of the State is 1,593 sq. miles, with a population (1951) of 229,255. Kannada (with Kodagu dialect in some parts) is the chief language. Paddy and coffee are the principal crops.

CHIEF CITY, Mercara. Population, 10,116.Chief Commissioner.—Lt.-Col. D. S. Bedi.Ministers, C. M. Poonacha; K. M. Mallappa.

DELHI

This State (area 574 sq. miles; est. pop. (1951) 1,743,992) was constituted on October 1, 1912, out of the Punjab division of Delhi, in pursuance of the policy announced at the Delhi Durbar in December, 1911, to move the capital of India and its seat of Government from Calcutta to Delhi. On April 1, 1955, certain other territory, previously included in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, was added to the State.

CHIEF CITY, Delhi. Population, 914,790.Chief Commissioner.—Shankar Prasad.Ministers, Braham Perkash (Chief Minister); Sushila Nayar.

ANDAMANS AND NICOBARS

The Andamans and Nicobars (area 3,143 sq. miles; pop. in 1951, excluding Aborigines, 30,963) form a chain of islands in the eastern part of the Bay of Bengal. Five large islands closely grouped together form the Great Andamans, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. Port Blair, in South Andaman, was used as an Indian penal settlement from 1858 to 1942. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, both hardwood and softwood. Coconut, coffee and rubber are other sources of income.

The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably Port Blair, Elphinstone, Mayabandar and Port Cornwallis.

The Andaman Islands are administered by the President acting through a Chief Commissioner and an Advisory Council of 5 Members.

The Nicobar Islands, almost due south of the Andamans, were first occupied by the British in 1869. They comprise 19 islands, 7 uninhabited (area 635 sq. miles). The principal product is coconuts.

CHIEF CITY, Port Blair. Population, 17,671.Chief Commissioner.—A. K. Ghosh.

UNIONS

Six Unions (Saurashtra, Vindhya Pradesh, Greater Rajasthan, Madhya Bharat, Patiala and E. Punjab and Travancore-Cochin) have been formed as a result of mergers of States. In Dec. 1949, it was announced that from Jan. 1, 1950, Vindhya Pradesh would be taken over by the Central Government, and administered centrally with a Chief Commissioner in the Province. For details of area and population of Unions, see p. 758-9.

SIKKIM

It was announced in Delhi on June 7, 1949, that the administration of the State of Sikkim had been taken over temporarily by the Government of India's political officer at the request of the Maharaja of Sikkim. A threat to law and order within the State had been caused by a disagreement between the Maharaja and the Congress Party.

FRENCH POSSESSIONS IN INDIA

The French possessions in India comprised five settlements—Pondicherry on the Coromandel Coast, about 100 miles south of Madras, which is the chief settlement and capital of French India, Chandernagore on the Hooghly (West Bengal); and Karikal, Yanam and Mahé (Madras). Besides these there were loges of small plots of land—sites of old French factories—scattered over the provinces of Madras, Bombay and Orissa, which were ceded to India by France in October, 1947, as a friendly gesture of welcome to India's achievement of freedom. These combined territories total 203 square miles, with a population of over 323,000. The National Assembly of France decided in June, 1948, to leave to the populations of French India establishments the right to pronounce their future status. In June, 1949, Chandernagore elected to join the Indian Republic and effect was finally given to this decision on June 9, 1952. Proposals by the French settlements in India were accepted in October, 1949, by the French India Municipal Congress meeting at Pondicherry.

PORTUGUESE POSSESSIONS IN INDIA

Portuguese Possessions in India cover about 1,500 sq. miles and consist of the colony of Goa with the islands of Anjediva, Sao Jorge and Morcegos on the Arabian (Malabar) sea coast; Daman (Damao), with the territories of Dedra and Nagar-avelly on the Gujerat coast at the entrance to the Gulf of Cambay, together with the tiny island of Diu with coastal tracts of Gogola and Simbor. The total area of these territories is 1,540 sq. miles, with a population in 1940 of 624,177. Integration with India is under negotiation.

THE FORMER PRINCELY STATES OF INDIA

The Indian States, which numbered about 570, occupied in area approximately two-fifths of the entire Indian peninsula and contained over one-fifth of the whole population of the country. They displayed a very wide diversity in size, population and resources. They were not British territory and the suzerainty of King George VI lapsed at the passing of the Indian Independence Act, 1947. Their inhabitants were not British subjects. The States were governed by hereditary Rulers and had no relations with foreign powers. A common characteristic of all Indian States, important or insignificant, was that in their territory British Indian law did not run. For them the Indian Legislature or the Provincial Legislature could not legislate; and over them the High Courts or Chief Courts of the Provinces had no jurisdiction.

The former Indian States had a combined area of 715,964 square miles, and a population of 93,189,233. They maintained in the aggregate a considerable body of troops of inferior military organization in addition to their Indian State forces. Many treaties provided that States should furnish troops on the requisition of the Supreme Government, and troops of Indian States served in almost every Indian campaign of the 19th century. Lord Curzon inaugurated an Imperial Cadet Corps of Indian princes and nobles. The States varied greatly in size and importance. Hyderabad is nearly as large as Great Britain, and the Nizam enjoys a very large revenue. On the other hand, in Kathiawar and elsewhere, where family custom led to minute sub-division, there were many chiefs of single villages. In these petty estates the nominal chief may have had some very limited magisterial powers. The rulers of Indian States have not necessarily any religious or tribal connexion with the majority of their subjects. Thus the Nizam of Hyderabad is a Moslem, but most of his people are Hindus. The majority represent the scattered military chiefships which sprang from the ruins of the Mogul Empire in the 18th century. The rulers of the former Indian States of Gwalior, Indore, and the State of Baroda are all descendants of successful generals who then rose to power. Most of these States were of more recent origin than the British power in India. A unique step was taken in 1910, when a new Indian State was created out of the family domains of the Maharaja of Benares.

Some well-known Indians of title, such as H.H. the Aga Khan, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O., are non-ruling chiefs.

The Chamber of Princes, inaugurated in February, 1921, as a permanent consultative body, met periodically for the discussion of matters affecting the Indian States generally or of common concern to the States and to British India or the Empire at large. It consisted of 109 Rulers of States who were members in their own right, together with 12 Rulers elected as representatives by 127 other States. The Chancellor, Pro-Chancellor and Standing Committee were elected annually by the Chamber from among its members. Owing to differences the Chamber ceased to exist in 1947.

In recent years the policy of promoting co-operation in matters such as justice, police, public health, etc., among the smaller States made progress, and in April, 1943, announcement was made of an extensive scheme for improving the administration of some hundreds of petty States in Western India by attaching them to large neighbouring States such as Baroda and Nawanagar.

As a result of the passing of the Indian Independence Act and the consequent lapse of paramountcy the 570 States became separate entities. The large majority of States acceded to the Republic of India in respect of the three subjects, Defence, External Affairs and Communications. Thirteen States acceded to the Dominion of Pakistan, while in Kashmir the position is still undecided.

According to a statement of the Government of India three different processes were promoted and recognized in relation to the integration of the States, each applied according to the size, geography and other factors relating to each State or group of States. The first was a merger of States in adjacent provinces. By 1950 under this process 216 States with a total area of 108,739 square miles and a population of 19,158,000 have been merged in Provinces distributed as follows: Orissa 23; Central Provinces and Berar 15; Bihar 2; Madras 2; East Punjab 3; and Bombay 174. The second process was consolidation of the States into centrally administered areas. This process has so far affected 61 States consolidated into units covering a total area of about 63,704 square miles, with a population of 6,925,000, which were taken over by centrally administered areas. The third process—integration of the territories in unions of 275 States—has so far covered a total area of 387,893 square miles, with a population of 34,700,000.

In 1950 there were 8 States recognized as viable units (i.e. States with a population of about 1,000,000 persons entitled to return their own representatives to the Constituent Assembly), under constitutional Princely Rulers, viz., Hyderabad, Mysore, Jammu and Kashmir, Travancore-Cochin, Saurashtra, Madhya Bharat, Rajasthan and Patiala and East Punjab States Union.

The finances of the States were integrated with those of other units and a complete structure of federal finance set up with effect from April 1, 1950. An increase in revenue of Rs.200 million (£15,000,000) is expected to accrue to the Central Government within five or six years when all the States would pay full rates of income tax, and the 7,000 miles of railways were absorbed by the Central Government.

The United State of Kathiawar (Saurashtra) is governed by a Presidium of Rulers consisting of five members, each a Ruler of a covenanted State. Nawanagar and Bhavnagar are members in their own right, and Dhranganadra, Palitana and Kotda-Sangani are elected members. The Jam Sahib of Nawanagar is Raj Pramukh (President), and the Maharaja of Bhavnagar is Up-Raj Pramukh (Vice-President), each for five years. There is a Council of Ministers to aid and advise the Raj Pramukh. A Constituent Assembly of 45 members was set up in January, 1949.

The President of the Union of Vindhya Pradesh is the Ruler of Rewa; Vice-President, the Ruler of Panna. The Union is administered as a Chief Commissioner's Province.

AREA AND POPULATION.—The total population of the Dominion of Pakistan (1951 Census) is 75,842,000, of which 85.9 per cent. are Muslims. Its area is approximately 364,737 square miles.

DOMINION FLAG.—The National Flag of Pakistan is dark green, with white vertical part at the mast, the green portion bearing a white crescent in the centre and a five-pointed heraldic star.

GOVERNMENT

The Dominion of Pakistan was constituted under the Indian Independence Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on July 18, 1947.

In terms of the Act the Dominion of Pakistan consists of former territories of British India, as shown in the above table. The Punjab States of Bahawalpur and Khairpur, with a Muslim population of almost 80 per cent. and with Muslim rulers, acceded to Pakistan in October, 1947. Boundaries of the Provinces of East Bengal and of Punjab (West Punjab) have been defined by a Boundary Commission presided over by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, K.B.E., Q.C. (now Lord Radcliffe). The following States have also acceded to Pakistan: the Baluchistan States of Kalat, Mekran, Las Bela and Kharan, and the North-West Frontier States of Amb, Chitral, Dir and Swat. The States of Junagadh and Manavadar which had acceded to Pakistan, were occupied by India on November 8, 1947.

Until the decisions of the Constituent Assembly, set up in Aug., 1947, are promulgated, the affairs of the Dominion are in the hands of the Governor-General assisted by a Cabinet acting as a successor government for the purpose of receiving power. The Constituent Assembly is the constitution-making body, but the Assembly also exercises legislative powers. The new Constitution is still in the making.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Constituent Assembly of Pakistan consists of 44 members from Eastern Bengal, 22 from Punjab, 5 from Sind, 3 from North-West Frontier Province, 1 from Baluchistan, 1 from Khairpur, 1 from Bahawalpur, 1 from Baluchistan States and 1 from North-West Frontier Province State.

THE JUDICATURE

There is a Federal Court of Pakistan. In addition to the Provincial Courts there is a Chief Court for Sind, which also functions for the Capital of the Federation. There are High Courts at Lahore and Dacca (East Bengal), and a judicial Commissioners' Court at Peshawar.

DEFENCE

Army—8 Infantry Regiments, 6 Armoured Corps units, 8½ Artillery Regiments and 34 Engineer units. Most infantry regiments of the Indian Army with a Moslem majority were allotted to Pakistan. In March, 1950, it was announced that the Government had decided to introduce legislation to establish a Territorial Army.

Navy—The Navy consists of 2 sloops, 2 frigates, 4 minesweepers, 2 trawlers, 2 motor minesweepers and 4 harbour defence launches. A modern British destroyer, the Onslow, was transferred to the Royal Pakistan Navy in 1949, and it was announced that her sister ship, the Offa, would be transferred later.

Air Force—The Royal Indian Air Force comprised 9 Fighter Squadrons in 1947, two of which were assigned to Pakistan.

EDUCATION

The latest census (1951) shows that 13.8 per cent. of the total population of Pakistan (i.e. 10,347,000 persons) is literate. Both the Central and Provincial Governments have embarked on ambitious programmes to remove illiteracy. A six-year (1951-57) national plan of educational development has been drawn up to achieve an integrated and balanced development of education at all stages. The estimated cost of the plan, which is divided into two phases (1951-53 and 1953-57), is about Rs.1,150,000,000.

Apart from the three Universities of Dacca, Punjab and Sind, which were inherited at the time of partition, two more—one at Peshawar and the other at Karachi—have been established. A third University is now being established at Rajshahi in East Pakistan.

The Punjab University, founded in 1882, is mainly an affiliating University, but also provides for post-graduate teaching and research in a few subjects.

The University of Dacca, East Bengal, was established in 1922 as an unitary residential university, but had to assume, on partition, the additional functions of an affiliating University for colleges in East Bengal.

The University of Sind, created in 1947 and removed from Karachi to Hyderabad, in May 1952, is an affiliating and examining University. Peshawar University was founded in 1950. It is a teaching, residential and affiliating University. The Federal University of Karachi was established in June, 1952. It is intended to develop it into an unitary residential university with all the colleges in Karachi as its constituent members and a number of halls of residence under its control and supervision.

The total number of educational institutions in Pakistan in 1953 was: Primary Schools, 40,295; Secondary Schools, 6,486; Colleges, 127 (36 intermediate, 82 degree and 9 post-graduate); Universities, 5; Training Institutes, 136; Technical and Industrial Institutes, 120; Commercial Institutes, 11; and Institutions for the Handicapped, 6.

LANGUAGE

The national language is Urdu. See also Notes on page 752.

IRRIGATION

Pakistan has one of the longest irrigation systems in the world. The total area irrigated is 21,622,000 acres.

PRODUCTION

The estimated acreage (000's omitted) of principal crops in 1952-53 was: rice 22,197, wheat 9,536, bajra 2,205, jowar 1,203, sugar cane 867, rape and mustard 1,671, cotton 3,320, jute 1,907, maize 970, gram 2,248, barley 478 and sesamum 203 acres. Jute production was 6,800,000 bales.

COMMERCE

The chief exports of the country are raw jute, cotton, tea, raw wool, raw hides and skins, and cotton seeds. Cotton piece-goods, twist and yarn, mineral oils, machinery and mill work, metals and ores, chemicals and drugs, hardware, instruments and vehicles are the principal imports. Among exports the value of raw jute from July 1952 to March 1953 amounted to Rs.463,900,000, and that of cotton to Rs.536,400,000. Total exports for the same period amounted to Rs.1,156,500,000 and imports to Rs.855,100,000.

FINANCE

The State Bank, established July 1, 1948, has a capital of Rs.30,000,000, 51 per cent. of which is held by the State. There are 34 commercial banks including the State Bank and the National Bank with deposits of Rs.1,462,000,000 (April, 1953). There are 91 insurance companies operating in the country, of which 13 are Pakistani businesses.

Provinces of the Dominion of Pakistan

PUNJAB (PAKISTAN)

The Punjab, which derives its name from the Five Rivers (Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, Beas and Sutlej), was annexed by the East India Company in 1849. The total area in 1941 was 99,089 square miles with a population of 28,418,829, being 286.8 per sq. mile. West Punjab was separated from the former Punjab Province of India under the India Independence Act of 1947. The partition scheme allotted about 62,012 sq. miles with 19,000,000 population (estimated) to West Punjab and 35,314 sq. miles with 11,547,919 (estimated population) to East Punjab, now a Province of the Republic of India. In 1950 the Pakistan Government passed legislation to rename the West Punjab the Punjab. The Indian Government took a similar step with the East Punjab (see p. 762).

Punjab (Pakistan) is mainly an agricultural province, the total area under cultivation being about 20,000,000 acres, but owing to scanty rainfall it depends largely for its harvests on irrigation canals. Of the crops grown, wheat, rice, cotton, and gram are the most important, and cover about 60 per cent. of the total area sown. There are large deposits of rock salt, which with wheat and other food, grains and cotton form the principal exports. The Province is served by the North-Western Railway.

The Lahore Division of Punjab (Pakistan) includes the districts of Lahore, Gujranwala, Sheikhupura and Sialkot. The Rawalpindi Division includes the districts of Attock, Gujrat, Jhelum, Mianwali, Rawalpindi and Shahpur. The Multan Division includes the districts of Dera Ghazi Khan, Jhang, Lyallpur, Montgomery, Multan and Muzaffargarh.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are 7,044 miles of railway line in the country. Of this total mileage, West Pakistan has 5,362 miles of railway line and East Pakistan has 1,682 miles. The Pakistan railways comprise two independent railway systems—the North Western Railways in West Pakistan and the Eastern Bengal Railways in East Pakistan—managed and owned by the State.

The total road mileage is 58,009, of which 32,114 miles is in West Pakistan and 25,895 miles in East Pakistan.

ψThe principal sea ports are Karachi and Chittagong in West and East Pakistan respectively. These two ports handled in 1952-53 about 3,995,000 tons and 1,705,000 tons of traffic respectively. The anchorage of Chalna, established in Dec. 1950, on the river Pussur in East Bengal to relieve congestion of traffic at Chittagong, handled 449,156 tons during its second year of operation.

Karachi is the main air port, and being situated on the trunk air routes of the world, holds an important position. Orient Airways is the chief air transport company in Pakistan.

SIND

Sind (area 47,569 sq. miles; pop. 4,619,706, excluding Khairpur State, 320,412) was constituted a Governor's Province on April 1, 1936, by the transfer of the Sind Division from the Presidency of Bombay. From earliest days Sind has been a Moslem territory; 96 per cent. of the people are Moslems. The chief language is Sindhi. About 59 per cent. of the population are engaged in agriculture and husbandry. The Lloyd Barrage and Canals project secures perennial irrigation to areas which hitherto have received indifferent supply from inundation canals. Work on the new Kotri barrage is estimated to cost £15 million. Karachi, the capital of Pakistan, is the port for the extensive North-Western Railway system.

N.W. FRONTIER PROVINCE

The North-West Frontier Province was constituted in 1901 by the transfer from the Punjab of portions of the districts of Hazara, Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. A part of Peshawar district was separated in 1937 to form another district called Mardan. The Province has an area of 39,270 sq. miles, of which 14,263 sq. miles represent the settled districts (pop. 1951 Census, 3,239,000, pop. of tribal area 2,460,000). Attached to the Province are the six trans-border political agencies, of Malakand, Mohmand, Khyber, Kurram, North Waziristan and South Waziristan, together with tribal areas under the control of the Deputy Commissioners, who also administer the six settled districts. The people are Muslims, and the chief languages are Pashto, Urdu and Western Punjabi. The province produces wheat, maize and other grains, sugar cane, Virginia tobacco, oilseeds, cotton, etc.

The chief crops of East Bengal are rice, jute, skins and hides, tea and tobacco. The Province is rich in raw materials, but industries are not developed. The important railway is the Eastern Bengal Railway. The seaport is Ψ Chittagong.

CHIEF CITY (and temporary Headquarters of East Pakistan), Dacca. Population, 411,279.

BAHAWALPUR

This State is situated on the edge of the great Indian Desert midway between the Provinces of the Punjab and Sind. It is about 320 miles in length from north-east to south-west with an average breadth of 50 miles. Bahawalpur has an area of 20,000 sq. miles, and a population of approximately 1,820,000 (1951 Census). The Sutlej Valley canals irrigate nearly 3,000,000 acres. Wheat and cotton are the principal crops. Industrial and agricultural development is proceeding satisfactorily. The chief factories produce textiles, vegetable oil and soap. The installation of sugar and cigarette factories and a tannery is also under consideration. The North Western Railway serves the State.

BALUCHISTAN

Baluchistan (area 134,002 sq. miles; pop. (excluding states), 622,457). The districts comprised are Sibi, Quetta-Pishin, Loralai, Zhob and Chagai. Baluchistan consists largely of mountains and sandy deserts, and is sparsely populated. A large part of the people lead a pastoral, nomad life. In religion they are Sunni Moslems. Baluchi (a branch of the Indo-Aryan language) is the chief language. To Chaman, on the Baluch-Afghan frontier, a railway runs via Quetta which is continued to Zahedan in Iran. The States of Kalat, Las Bela, Kharan and Mekran have a total area of about 79,546 sq. miles; pop. 551,579. Kalat stretches west to Iran, the Khan being head of a loose confederacy, with a subsidy of about £20,000 per annum. Las Bela occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and the Hala. Kharan occupies the part of the hilly tract to the S.E. of the Chaghi district and touches the borders of Iran and Mekran.

ADMINISTRATIVE CENTRE, Quetta.

The Baluchistan Council consists of 20 members and acts under the presidency of the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan.

Chief Commissioner, Amin-ud-Din.

CAPITAL OF PAKISTAN

The Capital and Seat of Government of Pakistan is Ψ Karachi. Karachi is situated at the extreme western end of the delta of the Indus, 754 miles by rail from Lahore. It is the maritime terminus of the North Western Railway, the main gateway for the trade of West Pakistan. The population of Karachi at the Census of 1951 was 1,126,417.

PAKISTAN STATES

KHAIRPUR

A great alluvial plain, the State has an area of 6,060 sq. miles and a population of 325,000. Its length from east to west is 120 miles and breadth from north to south about 70 miles. The part bordering on the Indus is very fertile. About three-quarters of the country is a continuous series of sandhill ridges covered with a stunted brushwood where cultivation is impossible. The climate is fiercely hot during eight months of the year when the maximum temperature rises to 118°. Sindhi, Urdu and Baluchi are spoken. Cotton fabrics are produced. Cultivation is dependent on irrigation canals, taking off from the Indus river at the Lloyd Barrage. The principal crops are wheat, rice, grain, jowar, cotton and oil seeds. The State is served by the North Western Railway. The State has been greatly industrialised during the last few years. It has a Legislative Assembly elected by adult franchise.

Ceylon

AREA AND POPULATION

Ceylon is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern tip of the peninsula of India and separated from it by a narrow strip of shallow water, the Palk Strait. Situated between 5° 55'–9° 50' N. latitude and 79° 42'–81° 52' E. longitude, it has an area of 25,332 square miles, including 296 square miles of inland water. Its greatest length is from north to south, 270 miles; and its greatest width 140 miles, no point in Ceylon being more than 80 miles from the sea.

At the Census of 1953, the population was 8,103,648, an increase of 21.7 per cent over the last Census in 1946. The following table shows a striking increase in the population of Ceylon since the first Census was taken in 1871.

Races and Religions

The races of Ceylon are Low-country Sinhalese, Kandyan Sinhalese, Ceylon Tamils, Indian Tamils, Ceylon Moors, Indian Moors, Burghers and Eurasians, Malays and Veddahs. Generally Sinhalese who trace their descent to a low-country district are classified as Low-country Sinhalese, others as Kandyan Sinhalese. The Western and Southern Provinces, the Chilaw District and the Western part of Puttalam District are low-country areas; the Central and North Central Provinces, Uva, Sabaragamuwa, Kurunegala, the Sinhalese divisions of the districts of Batticaloa, Trincomalee and Vavuniya are regarded as Kandyan districts. At the 1946 Census 43.6 per cent. of the population were low-country Sinhalese, 25.8 per cent. Kandyan Sinhalese. The religion of the great majority of Ceylonese is Buddhism, introduced from India, according to ancient Sinhalese chronicles, in 300 B.C. Next to Buddhism, Hinduism has a large following.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

Ceylon is a compact area, except for the Island of Mannar and an almost detached portion in the north, the Jaffna Peninsula and its satellite islands of Delft, Kayts, etc. The relief of the island includes a mountainous area in the south-central region of 3,000 to 7,000 feet above sea level, surrounded by an upland belt of about 1,000 to 3,000 feet and a narrow coastal plain broadening out to a vast tract in the north. The coastal plain continues for a distance out to sea as a continental shelf and a coral reef, for the most part submerged, lies close to the coast. On the Central Ridge of the hill country are some of the highest peaks in Ceylon, Pidurutalagala (8,291 ft.), Kirigalpotta (7,856 ft.) and Totapola (7,741 ft.) and the high plains Nuwara Eliya (over 6,000 ft.), Elk Plains (7,000 ft.) and Horton Plains (over 7,000 ft.). The other principal peaks are Adam's Peak (7,360 ft.), Namunukula (6,679 ft.), Knuckles (6,112 ft.) and Haycock (2,167 ft.). The Peninsula of Jaffna and the Island of Mannar are featureless level stretches.

The Mahaveli-ganga, 206 miles long, is the largest river of Ceylon. Rising on the western side of the central hilly ridge, it flows north and east to empty into the Koddiiyar Bay on the east coast. Other rivers are the Kelaniganga (90 miles), Aruvi-arū (104), Kala-oya (97), Yam-oya (94) and Deduru-oya (87). Waterfalls girdle the central mountainous massif and offer some of the best scenic features in the island; Dunhinda (Badulla), Diyāluma (Koslanda), Elgin (Haton Plateau) and Perawela are among the outstanding falls. Forests, jungle and scrub cover the greater part of the island, often being intermingled. The forests, of varying species, extend from fairly near the coast right into the hill country. In areas over 2,000 feet above sea level grasslands (patanas or talawas) are found. Their total area is some 250 square miles, principally in the Province of Uva.

Climate.—The climate of Ceylon is warm throughout the year, with a high relative humidity. Temperatures average 80° F. during the year and few areas record less than 60° F. Humidity is over 75 per cent. Temperature ranges vary little between wet and dry seasons. In hilly areas, frost, mist and hail occur occasionally, but snow is completely absent. Rainfall is generally heavy, with marked regional variations; fall on the south-west slopes of the hill country (20–25 inches) being heaviest. Some cyclonic activity of the tropical variety experienced in the Bay of Bengal occurs, generally during the north-east monsoon period.

GOVERNMENT

Early in the sixteenth century the Portuguese landed in Ceylon and founded settlements, eventually conquering much of the country. Portuguese rule in Ceylon lasted 150 years during which the Roman Catholic religion was established among the Sinhalese inhabitants and to some extent Portuguese modes of living adopted. In 1658, following a twenty-year period of decline, Portuguese rule gave place to that of the Dutch East India Company which was to exploit Ceylon with varying fortunes until 1766.

The Maritime Provinces of Ceylon were ceded by the Dutch to the British on February 16, 1798, becoming a British Crown Colony in 1802 under the terms of the Treaty of Amiens. With the annexation of the Kingdom of Kandy in 1815 all Ceylon came under British rule.

In 1829, a Commission under William Colebrook conducted an investigation into the constitutional and administrative system of Ceylon. It recommended inter alia the unification of the Maritime and Kandyan Provinces and the establishment of nominated Executive and Legislative Councils. These reforms established the early form of representative government which lasted without substantial alteration until 1930. Further changes were effected in 1920 and 1924; introducing the election of members to the Legislative Council and a majority of unofficial members. A commission headed by Lord Soulbury visited the island and in October, 1945, recommended a series of changes which gave Ceylon a large measure of control over her internal affairs. The Soulbury Constitution was, however, short-lived and on February 4, 1948, Ceylon became a self-governing Dominion of the British Commonwealth of Nations under the Ceylon Independence Act, 1947. On February 10, 1948, H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester opened the new Parliament.

DEFENCE

Army.—The Ceylon Army Act which came into force on October 10, 1949, provides for a Regular Force, a Regular Reserve, a Volunteer Force and a Volunteer Reserve. Steady progress has been made in the formation of the Regular Force, the strength of which, on May 15, 1952, was 108 officers and 1,547 men.

Navy.—On December 9, 1950, the Navy Act, 1950, came into force and the Royal Ceylon Navy was constituted. One minesweeper is at present in commission, and there are two shore establishments. The Royal Ceylon Navy is also responsible for the boom defences of Colombo Harbour.

Air Force.—The Ceylon Air Force Act came into force on October 10, 1950, and the Ceylon Air Force was established on that date. On March 2, 1951, the Air Force adviser to the Ceylon Government was appointed Commander of the Air Force.

PRODUCTION

Agriculture.—The staple products of the island are agricultural. The most important for home consumption is rice in its two forms of paddy and husked grain. The areas under cultivation in 1952 in acres, were:—Paddy, 913,239; tea, 533,646; coconuts, 920,940; rubber, 574,522; areca nuts, 71,000; cinnamon, 30,000; citronella, 34,000; tobacco, 10,500; cacao, 19,700; other highland crops (including chena cultivation), 186,000. The livestock in 1952 included 1,112,360 cattle, 567,672 buffaloes, 72,000 sheep, 411,320 goats, 74,638 pigs, and 1,558,350 poultry.

Industry.—Plywood and leather factories have been reorganized for increased production with improved techniques. A cement factory has been established, and factories for paper, vegetable oils and caustic soda are expected to come into production shortly.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The local government of Ceylon, under the general supervision of the Ministry of Local Government, is in the hands of 7 Municipal Councils (Colombo, Kandy, Galle, Jaffna, Kurunegala, Nuwara Eliya and Negombo), 36 Urban Councils, 36 Town Councils and 400 Village Committees, all members of which are elected. For local government purposes the island is divided into 12 administrative regions, each of which has an Assistant Commissioner of Local Government. Apart from a general duty to promote the welfare of the local inhabitants and develop amenities, local authorities have powers mainly with regard to public health and sanitation, public thoroughfares and public utility services.

EDUCATION

Education in the island underwent a far-reaching change with the introduction on October 1, 1954, of a Scheme of Free Education from the Kindergarten to the University. In 1952 there were 6,636 Government and Assisted schools. The total cost of education was Rs.137,784,000 for 1951-52. The University of Ceylon was established on July 1, 1942, by the incorporation of the Ceylon Medical College (founded 1870) and the Ceylon University College (founded 1921) into the University. The Ceylon Technical College provides a series of full-time and part-time courses in science, engineering, commerce, arts, etc.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are about 14,000 miles of motorable road in Ceylon, of which 5,873 miles are bitumen surfaced and open to lorry traffic. On June 30, 1952, there were 69,760 motor vehicles on the register (43,249 private cars and cabs, 3,676 omnibuses, 13,054 lorries, vans, etc., 981 tractors and trailers and 8,800 motor cycles).

In 1952, 4,424 ocean-going merchant vessels of a total net register tonnage of 12,863,773 entered, and 4,396 of a total net register tonnage of 12,859,103 cleared, the port of Colombo.

There are 594 post offices, 1,118 sub-post offices and 235 receiving post offices, with 15,193 miles of telegraph wire and 93,882 miles of telephone wire. A commercial wireless telegraph station has a range of 500 miles by day and about 1,000 to 1,500 miles by night and handles ship-to-shore traffic. A beam wireless station provides wireless telephone links to the United Kingdom and Australia. Programmes are broadcast in the English, Sinhalese and Tamil languages on six wavelengths.

Air Ceylon operates air-line services from Colombo to Jaffna, Madras and Tiruchirappalli. Other services are Air India (Colombo-Karachi); B.O.A.C. and Quantas (U.K.—Colombo and Singapore—Colombo).

CAPITAL OF CEYLON

CAPITAL.— Ψ Colombo (population 424,816). Other centres are Ψ Jaffna (76,664), Ψ Galle (55,825) and Kandy (57,013).

Colombo is distant from London 5,700 miles, transit 17 days; by air 3 days (18 hours by "Comet" jet plane).

Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates

NOTE.—The Dominion of Canada, The Commonwealth of Australia, The Dominion of New Zealand, The Union of South Africa, and the Dominion of Pakistan, the Republic of India and the Dominion of Ceylon are shown separately in the preceding pages.

ADEN

(Aden Colony and Protectorate)

The area of Aden Colony is 75 sq. miles and of the Protectorate about 112,000 sq. miles. The population of the Colony (according to the census of 1946) is 80,516 (males 50,589, females 29,927); Arabs 58,455, Jews 7,273, Indians 9,456, Somalis 4,322, Europeans 365, others 645. The estimated population of the Protectorate is about 650,000.

The peninsula of Aden, situated on the southern coast of Arabia and lying on the Red Sea trade-route between Europe and the East, was first occupied by the British in 1839. Aden was always an important centre. Its trade decayed after the Portuguese discovery of the Cape route, but with the opening of the Suez Canal it regained more than its old importance and is now a great oil bunkering and coaling station and port of call, and an emporium for the trade of the adjacent African and Arabian coasts. Aden is a free port. The chief industries are fishing, salt, soap and cigarette manufacture, aluminium pressing of domestic utensils and dyeing and printing of cloth. The traffic in arms and ammunition is subject to special regulations. The British Government has treaty engagements with, and subsidies, the neighbouring Arab tribes, both inland and along the coast, from the Straits of Bab-al-Mandeb to Muscat territory at Ras Darbhat 'Ali.

Perim.—A small unfortified island with an area of 5 square miles was occupied in 1857 and is administratively attached to Aden. The port has been closed since November, 1936, on the withdrawal of the Perim Coal Company from the island. Population, 360.

The Kuria Muria Islands, to the east of the Aden Protectorate, have been a British possession since 1854, when they were ceded to the Crown by the Imam of Muscat.

Kamaran.—The island of Kamaran in the Red Sea about 200 miles north of Perim was taken by the British from the Turks in 1915, and is administered under the control of the Governor of Aden. It has an area of 22 square miles and a population of about 2,200. A quarantine station for pilgrims travelling to Mecca from the East is maintained on the island. Commissioner, Kamaran, Col. R. G. W. E. Alban, O.B.E.

The Aden Protectorate to the West of approximate longitude 46° is bounded on the East by the Qara country, which is part of the dominions of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, and on the North and West by the Great Desert and the Kingdom of Yemen, whose Southern boundary was temporarily fixed by Article III of the Treaty of San'a (February, 1934) by which His Majesty's Government and the Yemen Government agreed to maintain the status quo frontier as it was on the date of the signing of the treaty. The coastline of the Aden Protectorate, which is about 750 miles long, starts in the West from Husn Murad, opposite the Island of Perim, and it runs eastward to Ras Dharbat 'Ali, where it meets the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman.

The Aden Protectorate is divided into two parts, the Western Aden Protectorate and the Eastern Aden Protectorate. The former consists of 19 Sultanates, the chiefs of which are all in protective treaty relations with Her Majesty's Government.

The Eastern Aden Protectorate comprises the Hadhramaut (consisting of the Qualti State of Shihr and Mukalla and the Kathiri State of Seyun), the Mahri Sultanate of Qishn and Soqatra, the Wahidi Sultanates of Bir Ali and Balihaf, and the Sheikdoms of Irqa and Haura, all of which are in protective treaty relations with Her Majesty's Government. His Highness Sultan Sir Salih bin Ghalib al Qu'aiti, K.C.M.G., Sultan of Shihr and Mukalla, is the premier chief of the Eastern Aden Protectorate, and the Hadhramaut is the most important and best organised of these areas. It is bounded on the West by the Wahidi Sultanates and on the East by the Mahri Sultanate.

The Mahri Sultanate of Qishn and Soqatra is the most easterly area in the Aden Protectorate, for it is bounded on the East by the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman. The Sultan of Qishn and Soqatra resides on the island of Soqatra (area 1,400 square miles) which lies 150 miles from Cape Guardafui. The island was occupied by the East India Company in 1834 and it came under British protection in 1886 when the treaty with the Mahri Sultan was concluded. It contains about 12,000 inhabitants principally engaged in livestock husbandry.

GOVERNMENT

Aden was for many years administered by the Government of India, and in 1932 it was separated from the Bombay Presidency and formed into a Province under a Chief Commissioner under the direct control of the Government of India. It ceased to be a part of British India on April 1, 1937, and is now a Crown Colony. The Governor has an Executive Council and a Legislative Council was established in 1947. There is a Court of unlimited civil and criminal jurisdiction called the Supreme Court from which appeals lie to the East African Court of Appeal.

The High Commissioner in the Union of South Africa for Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom holds office concurrently as Her Majesty's High Commissioner for Basutoland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate and Swaziland.

BASUTOLAND

(The Territory of Basutoland)

Basutoland, an enclave within the Union of South Africa, is bounded north and west by the Orange Free State, east by Natal, and south by the Cape Province, with an area of 11,716 square miles. The Census figures (1946) showed 561,289 natives, 1,689 whites, 876 coloured Asiatics.

The territory is well watered, and enjoys a good climate. First quality grain can be grown, and cattle, horses, sheep and goats thrive where the pasture is still unspoilt by overgrazing. The Basuto pony is well known for his hardy qualities; from the goats and sheep the mohair and wool are of the finest quality. The Maluti Mountains, forming a part of the great Drakensberg chain, occupy most of the country, which is elevated, broken, and rugged. Basutoland has been called "The Switzerland of South Africa" and contains among its natural wonders the Maletswanyane Falls (632 feet).

Education.—In 1952 there were 921 schools in the Territory of which 9 were Government controlled and the remainder mission controlled: of the mission schools 709 were fully and 96 partially aided. Out of a total enrolment of 94,685 in the Territory, 88,905 were in maintained or aided schools.

Communications.—The mileage of gravelled roads is 492 and of earth roads 290. From the ends of these feeder roads 1,600 miles of Government-constructed and maintained bridle-paths traverse the mountain area.

Posts and Telegraphs.—There are 9 post offices and 58 agencies and 247 miles of telegraph and 309 miles of telephone lines, with a wireless link between Maseru, Mokhotlong, Qacha's Nek and Mashai.

	1951	1952
Total imports	£2,836,059	£2,584,373
Total exports	2,800,573	2,155,974

The chief articles of export are wool, mohair, wheat, cattle and hides, the imports being chiefly blankets, ploughs, clothing, groceries, hard-ware and maize.

GOVERNMENT

The Territory is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner. The native courts adjudicate on cases affecting Natives, with a right of appeal to the court of the Judicial Commissioner. The District Commissioners adjudicate on the more important cases affecting Natives and cases between Europeans and Natives. The final court of appeal in the Territory is the High Court, appeal from which lies direct to the Privy Council. Seiso Griffiths, great-great-grandson of Mosheho, was installed as Paramount Chief in 1940; he died (Dec. 26, 1940), and will be succeeded by his son Bereng (born 1937) for whom 'Mantsebo, widow of Seiso Griffiths, was appointed Regent in Jan. 1941.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE

The Bechuanaland Protectorate is bounded on the south and east by the Cape and Transvaal Provinces of the Union, on the north and north-east by Southern Rhodesia, the Zambesi and Chobe (Linyanti) Rivers, and on the west by South-West Africa. It is about 500 miles long and 550 miles broad, with a total area of about 275,000 square miles; the Caprivi Zipfel was attached to the Protectorate for administrative purposes by Proclamation (1922), but was re-transferred to S.-W. Africa, Sept. 1, 1929, and is now administered by the Union government. The population at the census of May, 1946, was 293,964, of whom 2,325 were whites and the remainder natives with a few Indians and coloured.

The climate is healthy during part of the year. Malarial fever is prevalent in some districts during February, March, and April, but with ordinary precautions is not seriously detrimental to health. The country is essentially pastoral, although sorghum, maize, beans, pumpkins and melons are sown. Cattle thrive, and numbered 1,054,296 on Dec. 31, 1952. The population is almost entirely a native one, the principal tribes being those of Molefi (Bakgata), of Kgari Sechele (Bakwena), of Bathoen (Bangwaketse), of Mokgosi (Bamaletse), of Elizabeth Pulane Moremi, Regent during the minority of Letsholathepe Moremi (Batawana), of Kgosi Matlala (Batlokwa) and of Lotlamoeng Montsioa (Barolong). The chieftainship of the largest tribe, the Bamangwato, is at present in abeyance.

Schemes for improvements in agriculture, medical services, education and communications, and schemes for combating soil erosion, investigating mineral resources, improving water supplies, irrigation dams, tribal granaries, roads and for improving living conditions are being carried out.

On Dec. 31, 1952, there were 10 European and 144 African schools with enrolments of 261 and 17,489. Provision for education in 1952-53 amounted to £68,500, including capital expenditure of £22,500.

The railway from Kimberley to Vryburg and Mafeking traverses the Protectorate on its way to Rhodesia. There is a telegraph line from Cape Province through from Mafeking, via Gaborones and Francistown to Bulawayo and Salisbury. The chief European centres are Lobatsi, Gaborones, Francistown, and Serowe, whither the late Chief Khama and all his people moved in 1901 from Palapye.

SWAZILAND

(The Swaziland Protectorate)

Swaziland (called by the natives Ka Ngwane) lies between the Drakensberg and Lubombo Mountains in South Africa. The Transvaal Province forms a boundary on the south, west and north, the eastern boundary being Tongaland (Province of Natal) and Portuguese East Africa. The total area is 6,705 square miles, and the population (census figures, 1946) 185,215, of whom 181,269 are Bantu, 3,204 Europeans, and 745 Eurafians. Swaziland is divisible into three longitudinal regions: the mountainous regions of the west, with an approximate altitude exceeding 4,000 feet; the Middle Veld, about 2,000 feet lower; and the Low Veld, bounded on the east by the Lubombo Mountains, with an average altitude not exceeding 1,000 feet. The country is well watered and healthy, the annual rainfall averaging 45 inches, the mean temperature being 64° Fahr. (50°-78°). The soil is generally fertile, particularly so in the Low and Middle Veld. The whole of the Territory forms excellent grazing for cattle, and cattle-ranching is carried on by several companies. There were about 424,179 head of cattle and about 172,000 sheep and goats (not including 124,000 Trek sheep which are brought in the winter season for grazing from Eastern Transvaal) in the Territory at the end of 1952.

The agricultural products are maize (the staple product), cotton, tobacco, millet, ground-nuts, tung-nuts, avocado pears, beans, pumpkins, bananas, rice and sweet potatoes. Citrus fruits do well, but owing to lack of transport facilities are not extensively grown. The country possesses considerable mineral wealth, including gold, tin, coal, copper and asbestos; asbestos is being produced at the Havelock mine in large quantities and the tin production of the Territory is also of considerable importance. The chief exports in 1952 in order of value were asbestos, cattle, cotton, hides and skins, butter, rice, tin and wattle bark.

In 1952 there were 8 European schools (5 maintained by the Government) with 761 pupils. Native education is still largely in the hands of various church missions, many of which receive support from the Government. Apart from 195 schools falling under the direct superintendence of the Missions, there are 3 National schools financed by the Swazi National Fund, 9 Government-controlled central schools and a number of small tribal schools, the total enrolment during 1952 being 15,819. Eurafian children have 4 Mission schools (350 pupils).

There is a daily South African Railway motor omnibus service between Breyten and Mbabane (89 miles); Mbabane and Bremersdorp (27 miles); Bremersdorp and Stegi (43 miles); Bremersdorp and Balegane (42 miles); Bremersdorp and Piet Retief (72 miles); Piet Retief and Hlatikulu (57 miles); Goedgegun and Hluti (33 miles) and Hluti and Gollel (26 miles). There are post offices and telegraph and telephone offices at all the chief centres.

Mbabane (European population, 501), the headquarters of the Administration, is situated on the hills at an altitude of 4,000 feet. There are townships in the districts at Bremersdorp (European population, 500), Hlatikulu, Stegi, Goedgegun, Emlembe and Pigg's Peak.

BERMUDA

The Bermudas, or Somers Islands, are a cluster of about 100 small islands (15 or 16 only of which are inhabited) situated in the west of the Atlantic Ocean, in 32° 15' N. lat. and 64° 51' W. long., the nearest point of the mainland being Cape Hatteras in North Carolina, 580 miles distant. The total area is now approximately 21 sq. miles which includes the two sq. miles of land, previously water, which was filled in by the U.S. authorities between 1941 and 1943 under the terms of the 99 year lease. The estimated civil population (1952) was 38,954 (15,093 white and 23,861 coloured). The colony derives its name from Juan de Bermudez, a Spaniard, who sighted it in 1515, but no settlement was made until 1609 when Sir George Somers, who was shipwrecked here on his way to Virginia, colonized the islands.

Vegetation is prolific, the principal trees being the Bermuda cedar (juniper), formerly of great importance for shipbuilding, but since 1943 almost entirely destroyed by blight. At one time the islands enjoyed a flourishing export in onions, potatoes, and green vegetables, but the imposition of tariffs in U.S.A. made further growing for export unprofitable. The lily bud and bulb-trade with Canada and U.S.A. remains the Colony's leading export. Little food is produced except vegetables and fish, other foodstuffs being imported.

The Colony's economic structure is based on its importance as a tourist resort, and from this source most of its revenue is derived. It is now within three hours' air travel from New York, and in 1952 2,154 planes landed a total of 82,891 passengers. The island landing grounds are used by B.O.A.C., Pan American Airways, Trans-Canada Air Lines and Colonial Air Lines.

Education cost £348,058 in 1952. Free elementary education was introduced in May, 1949. In secondary schools, fees may reach £34 per annum.

There is a broadcasting service, and overseas telephone and telegraph services are maintained. The use of motor cars was banned in the island from 1908 until 1946.

BRITISH GUIANA & BRITISH HONDURAS

BRITISH GUIANA

Area and Population.—British Guiana, which includes the Counties of Demerara, Essequibo, and Berbice, is situated on the north-east coast of South America and has a total area of 83,000 square miles with a seaboard of more than 500 miles. The population at December 31, 1952, was estimated at 449,772. There are about 16,000 aboriginal Indians, more than 6,000 of whom live in their primitive state in the remote parts of the Colony, occupied in fishing, hunting and raising crops of cassava. The colony is bounded on the south by Brazil, on the east by Surinam, on the west by Venezuela, and on the north and N.E. by the Atlantic. The coastland is very like the Netherlands, below the level of the sea, and intersected with canals constructed by its former Dutch owners. At the junction of the British Guiana-Venezuela-Brazil boundaries is Mt. Roraima, a flat topped mountain 9,100 feet above sea-level. There are many beautiful waterfalls in British Guiana: on the Potaro River (a tributary of the Essequibo) is the Kaieteur Fall, with a clear drop of 741 feet and a total fall of 822 feet, and on the Essequibo, the Horse Shoe Falls (discovered in 1934); a fall, with a drop of some 500 feet, discovered in 1934 on the Ipobe River, a tributary of the Kuribong, has been named the Marina Fall, and other falls were discovered in 1938 on the Karanang River, 80 miles north-east of Mt. Roraima. The seasons are divided into dry and wet, the two dry seasons lasting from the middle of February to the end of April, and from the middle of August to the end of November. The climate on the coast, for the greater part of the year, is pleasant and healthy. In the Aug.-Oct. period it is hot. The mean temperature is 80.3°, its extremes during 86 years ranging between 68° and 96°, but these are very rare, the usual extremes being 70° and 90°. In the interior the mean temperature is higher—82.6°, its extremes ranging from 66° to 103°. The yearly rainfall is subject to marked variation, its mean on the coast lands averaging about 90 inches with an average of 58 inches on the savannahs. The daily average sunshine is a little over 6 hours and, except when rain is falling, dull and cloudy weather is rarely experienced.

Production, etc.—Much of the country is forest. The cultivated portion (about 271,000 acres, of which 87,900 are under sugar-cane and 134,000 in rice) is confined to the sea coast and to a short distance from the rivers. There are extensive deposits of gold, diamonds, manganese, bauxite and mica.

Communications.—There are 55 telegraph offices including 6 radiotelegraph offices, with 377 conductor miles of telegraph lines. There are 223 route miles of telephone trunk lines, 18.76 route miles of submarine cables, and approximately 8,000 conductor miles of telephone lines in the main telephone areas. A radiotelephone service is operated with 70 government and private stations in the interior. There are 126 post offices and postal agencies. There is one broadcasting station which is operated on a commercial basis by private enterprise. There are 95 miles of railway, while the British Guiana Airways (a government-subsidised company) provides internal air-services.

Defence.—Facilities for the establishment of a base on the Demerara River, 25 miles from the sea and within 50 miles of Georgetown, were granted to the Government of the United States of America by the Anglo-American Agreement, Sept. 2, 1940, but in August, 1949, this base was taken over by the British Guiana Government for use as a commercial airfield.

Education.—There are 283 primary schools in the colony, with an enrolment of 78,693. There are two Government secondary schools with 855 scholars, while there are many private secondary schools.

GOVERNMENT

The British Guiana Order in Council passed in 1928 (amended in 1935), provided for the constitution of a Legislative Council in place of the Court of Policy and Combined Court which had been in existence since 1837. The composition of the Legislative Council was altered by an Order in Council, 1943, and it consisted of the Governor as President, 3 Official Members and 21 Unofficial Members, of whom fourteen were elected and seven nominated. The Executive and administrative functions were exercised by the Governor and an Executive Council in which unofficial members were in the majority.

A Constitution Commission (with Sir John Waddington, G.B.E., K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., as Chairman) arrived in British Guiana on December 15, 1950, to review the franchise, the composition of the Legislative and Executive Councils, and any other related matters, in the light of the economic and political development of the Colony and to make recommendations. The Commission's report recommended the grant of universal adult suffrage, the establishment of a bicameral legislature with an increased elected majority, and the adoption of a ministerial council. These reforms were brought into effect on April 8, 1953, by an Order of the Queen in Council dated April 1, 1953.

BRITISH HONDURAS

British Honduras, in Central America, lies within 18° 29' 5" to 15° 53' 55" N. latitude and 89° 9' 22" to 88° 10' W. longitude. Its extreme length and breadth are approximately 174 m. and 68 m. respectively; it is bounded on the north and north-west by Mexico (Quintana Roo Province, formerly Yucatan); on the west and south by Guatemala; and on the east by the Caribbean Sea. The total area is about 8,867 sq. miles, with a population (Census 1946) of 59,220—28,723 males and 30,498 females—estimated, Dec. 31, 1952, at 73,171 (36,085 males and 37,086 females). The climate generally is damp and hot, but not unhealthy. The temperature ranges from 59° to 92° F. The average lies between 75° and 80°, but this is considerably tempered by the prevailing sea-breezes. In September, 1931, a disastrous hurricane devastated the capital of the colony, with a loss of nearly 1,000 lives, a Mansion House Fund being raised for the sufferers.

The greater part of the country is covered by forest, of which 72 per cent. is high rain forest, 15.5 pine forest and dry savannah, 5.5 wet savannah and mangrove forest, the remaining 7 per cent. being existing or recently abandoned cultivation. The wire grass and sedges of the dry savannahs make very poor pasture for cattle. The north of the Colony and the southern coastal plain (10 to 12 miles wide) is nearly flat, and near the sea is low and swampy. The central mountain mass has a general altitude of 2,000 to 3,000 feet and 57 per cent. of the area of the Colony is over 1,000 feet in elevation above mean sea-level.

The staple products are obtained from the forests, and include mahogany, cedar, and chicle (the basis of chewing gum). Agricultural crops that grow readily include sugar cane, coconuts, citrus fruit, plantains, pineapples, mangoes, maize, rice, varieties of beans and peas. Bananas also grow well in certain localities but are subject to Panama Disease. All varieties of citrus fruits flourish, and in particular grape-fruit, of which a very high grade is exported.

In 1952 there were 94 grant-aided and 26 private elementary schools in the Colony, the total enrolment being 13,200. There are also 5 secondary schools with a total enrolment of 916 students. The shipping entered and cleared at the port of Belize in 1948 was 436,501 tons.

There are 32 post offices, dealing in 1952 with 1,110,828 articles of mail. There is a radio-telegraph station for external communications at Belize. Air services are scheduled twice weekly to and from Tegucigalpa, Spanish Honduras, via San Pedro Sula, and thrice weekly to Chetumal. A weekly service exists from and to Kingston, Jamaica, direct. There is a twice weekly service from and to New Orleans and another to San Salvador and Guatemala, direct. A local scheduled air service linking the principal districts was inaugurated in August, 1952. In 1952 there were 1,352 aircraft movements and 2,346 departing and 2,237 arriving air passengers.

BRITISH WEST INDIES

Trade Enquiry Office in London, The West India Committee, 40 Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C.2.

The West Indies are a number of islands and islets, some of them mere rocks, situated between 10° to 27° North and 59° 30' to 85° West. The whole archipelago extends in a curve from the Florida Channel (North America) to within 7 miles of the coast of Venezuela (South America), and is divided into three main groups: I. GREATER ANTILLES, which contain the largest islands, Cuba (44,000 sq. miles) and Hispaniola (Haiti and the Dominican Republic) (30,000 sq. miles), Jamaica and Puerto Rico; II. BAHAMAS, which are entirely British. III. LESSER ANTILLES, which are divided among the United Kingdom, France, Netherlands, the United States and Venezuela; the British colonies in the Lesser Antilles are Barbados, Leeward and Windward Islands and Trinidad and Tobago. The total area of the archipelago is nearly 100,000 square miles, of which 72,000 square miles are independent, 12,300 British, 3,890 United States, 1,350 French, 430 Netherlands, and 90 Venezuelan.

The West India Islands that lie nearest the East have been called the Windward Islands; the others the Leeward Islands, on account of the winds blowing generally from the eastern point in those quarters.

CARIBBEAN COMMISSION

Port of Spain, Trinidad, B.W.I.

Co-Chairmen, M. Philippe Grousset (France); Dr. Hendriks Riemens (Netherlands); Sir Stephen Luke, K.C.M.G. (Great Britain); Ward M. Canaday (U.S.A.).

Secretary-General, E. F. H. de Vriendt.

Deputy Secretary-General, Clovis Beauregard.

Deputy Chairman, Caribbean Research Council, Dr. Eric Williams.

Consultant on Industrial Development, J. E. Heesterman.

Information Officer, M. A. Egloff.

The Caribbean Commission is an international advisory body of which the four member nations—France, Netherlands, the United Kingdom, and the United States—all have colonies or territories in the Caribbean area. The Commission is an expansion of the original Anglo-American Caribbean Commission which was set up by the Governments of Great Britain and the United States in 1942 "for the purpose of encouraging and strengthening social and economic co-operation between the U.S.A. and its possessions and bases in the area . . . and the United Kingdom and the British Colonies in the same area." The two-nation body was expanded into the present organization when the French and Netherlands Governments accepted invitations to join it at the end of 1945, with the stated purpose of "encouraging and strengthening co-operation among themselves and their territories with a view towards improving the economic and social well-being of the peoples of those territories and . . . of promoting scientific, technological and economic development in the Caribbean area and facilitating the use of resources and concerted treatment of mutual problems, avoiding duplication in the work* of existing research agencies, surveying needs, ascertaining what research has been done, facilitating research on a co-operation basis, and recommending further research. . . ." The Commission has two subsidiary bodies—the Caribbean Research Council which advises the Commission on scientific and technical matters, and the West Indian Conference, a forum attended by the representatives of the peoples of the area, which assembles every two years, and in which matters of common social and economic interest can be discussed. The Commission itself meets approximately once every six months. The most recent meeting, the sixteenth, was held in Surinam in May, 1953. There have been five West Indian Conferences: Barbados, 1944; St. Thomas, 1946; Guadeloupe, 1948; Curaçao, 1950, and Jamaica, 1952, and four meetings of the Caribbean Research Council. The Commission has also sponsored many technical conferences. The Commission's administrative and executive work is carried on by an international Secretariat with headquarters in Port of Spain, Trinidad.

THE ANGLO-UNITED STATES BASES AGREEMENT

By an exchange of notes (Sept. 2, 1940) between H.M. Ambassador in Washington and the U.S.

Secretary of State, facilities were granted to the Government of the United States of America for the establishment, use, and protection of naval and air bases on a lease for 99 years on the eastern side of the Bahamas, the southern coast of Jamaica, the west coast of St. Lucia, the west coast of Trinidad, in the Gulf of Paria, in Antigua and in British Guiana, in exchange for naval and military material.

THE BAHAMAS

The Bahamas (or Lucayos) are an archipelago near the British West Indies, lying between 20° 56'—27° 22' N. lat. and 72° 40'—79° 20' W. long., and extending from the coast of Florida on the north-west to Haiti on the south-east. The group consists of twenty-two inhabited islands, and an immense number of islets and rocks, comprising an area of about 4,466 square miles, and a population estimated (1952) at 84,395, the most part being descendants of liberated Africans. The principal islands are: New Providence (containing the capital, Nassau), Cat Island, Abaco, Grand Bahama, Long Island, Eleuthera, Exuma, Harbour Island, Inagua, Andros Island, San Salvador (at one time known as Watling's Island), Rum Cay, Long Cay, Ragged Island and Bimini. Watling's Island was the first landfall in the New World made (October 12, 1492) by Christopher Columbus, who gave it the name of San Salvador, which has been restored by an Act of the Bahamas Legislature. Originally settled by Englishmen, the Bahamas were, in 1782, surprised by the Spanish, but at the Peace of Versailles were restored to the English. The climate is salubrious, and in the winter Nassau, which is outside the tropics, is frequented by many visitors from all parts of the world.

Industries, etc.—Sponge-gathering used to be the chief industry. Tomatoes are cultivated in large quantities for shipment to Canada and the United States. Mahogany, lignum-vitæ, mastic, ironwood, ebony, logwood, and satinwood are found throughout the islands.

Education.—Primary education is compulsory. There are 128 state-maintained schools with a total roll of 13,661; there are also 49 denominational schools with a total roll of 4,536. There is one Government and five denominational secondary schools.

Civil Aviation.—Facilities for external traffic are provided by Pan American Airways, B.O.A.C., Trans-Canada Air Lines, British West Indian Airways and Mackey Air Lines, while Bahamas Airways and Bahamas Air Traders provide internal schedule and charter flights to the outlying islands. There are several daily air services between Nassau, Miami, Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale, and a regular service between Nassau, Havana and Montego Bay, Jamaica, besides regular trunk communication with London, New York, Toronto, Montreal, Bermuda and Kingston.

Communications.—There are 100 Post Offices which handle 4,812,000 items a year. Wireless and telephone services are in operation to all parts of the world. There are 36 radio stations among the islands.

Unlike most of the neighbouring islands, Barbados has always remained in the possession of Great Britain, by which it was settled in 1627. In 1885 it was constituted a distinct Government, with a Governor, aided by an Executive Council and an Executive Committee, a Legislative Council of 15 members appointed by the Sovereign, and a House of Assembly of 24 members elected every three years on the basis of adult suffrage.

aboriginally Xaymaca, or Land of Wood and Water—an island situate in the Caribbean Sea, about 90 miles to the south of Cuba, within $17^{\circ} 42' - 18^{\circ} 32'$ North lat. and $76^{\circ} 11' - 78^{\circ} 23'$ W. long.

Jamaica was discovered on May 3, 1494, by Columbus, who called it St. Iago. It was taken possession of by the Spaniards in 1509; but in 1655 a British expedition, sent out by Oliver Cromwell, under Penn and Venables, attacked the island, which capitulated after a trifling resistance. In 1670 it was formally ceded to England by the Treaty of Madrid.

Area and Population.—It is the largest and most valuable of the British West Indian Islands, being 148 miles in length and 49 in extreme breadth, containing an area of 4,411 square miles (with Dependencies 4,706 sq. miles). The island is divided into 3 counties (Surrey, Middlesex and Cornwall) and 14 parishes. The census taken on January 4, 1943, shows a total of 1,237,063 persons resident on the island (598,267 males and 638,796 females). The estimated population in 1952 was 1,471,602.

The climate attracts many winter visitors, mainly from U.S.A.

Physical Features.—From the sea-level on all sides of Jamaica a series of ridges gradually ascends towards the central ranges, dividing the large rivers, and attaining, in the culminating Peak of the Blue Mountains, in the eastern part of the island, an elevation of 7,402 feet. From these mountains at least 70 streams descend to the north and south shores, but none is navigable except the Black River, and that only for small craft.

Communications.—There are several excellent harbours, and the island is intersected by good roads. There are 202 miles of railway open. Telegraph stations and post offices are established in every town and in very many villages; accounts open in the Government savings banks (March 31, 1951) 289,630. Deposits at credit at March 31, 1951 were £2,368,372. The Palisadoes Airport at Kingston is used by British Overseas Airways Corporation, Pan-American Airways, British International Air Lines, K.L.M., Trans-Canada Air Lines, Chicago and Southern Air Lines and Caribbean International Airways, Ltd., which provide air communications with Europe, North and South America and the Caribbean Islands.

Production and Industry.—Most of the staple products of tropical climates are raised. Sugar and rum are manufactured and exported; the latter is still counted the best in the world, and the coffee raised in certain districts of the Blue Mountains fetches a high price. There is an extensive trade in fruits, chiefly bananas and oranges, with New Zealand and the U.K. Maize and Indian corn grow luxuriantly. The Guinea grass, from four to six feet in height, grows wild, and is superior to any other for pasture, while the woods furnish an abundance of rich dye-stuffs, drugs, and spices, and there are some rare cabinet woods.

Education.—There were, in 1952, 690 grant-aided public elementary schools with 208,923 scholars on the rolls (1951) and a public expenditure (1951) of £986,944. There are 27 grant-aided secondary schools, a Government technical school, and 50 manual training centres. The University College of the West Indies is established in Jamaica.

TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS

These West India islands geographically form a sort of annexe of the Bahamas group, from which Government they were separated in 1848. In 1873 they were annexed to Jamaica, from which they are distant about 450 miles. They have an area of about 170 square miles, and a population of about 6,500 of which the principal island, Grand Turk, contains about 1,800. Grand Turk is an important cable station. The islands are celebrated for producing some of the finest salt in the world. Other exports are sisal, crawfish and conches. A considerable number of men are employed overseas on steamers and also in the Bahamas.

THE LEEWARD ISLANDS

The Leeward Islands of the West Indies under British authority consist of the 4 presidencies of (1) Antigua, with Barbuda and Redonda; (2) St. Christopher and Nevis, with Anguilla; (3) Montserrat; and (4) the Virgin Islands, with Sombbrero; all having their own local Legislature. These 4 presidencies are administered by a Governor, to whom the Administrators and Commissioners are subordinate. There is a General Legislative Council of 8 official, 2 nominated and 13 elected members, with the Governor as President, possessing concurrent legislative powers with the local Legislatures on certain subjects. A Constitution and Elections Ordinance was enacted in the Presidency of Antigua in 1951 and in the Presidencies of St. Christopher, Nevis and Anguilla and Montserrat in 1952 providing for the introduction of universal adult suffrage for Presidential elections, and for elected majorities in the presidential legislatures, the election of elected members to presidential executive councils, and the election by presidential legislatures of an unofficial majority to the General Legislative Council of the Colony, which will in turn elect certain members of the Federal Executive Council. Elections have been held accordingly in Antigua, St. Christopher, Nevis and Anguilla and Montserrat. These constitutional changes will not apply to the British Virgin Islands.

The population of the federal colony at the census of 1946 was 108,800.

Antigua is the seat of government and residence of the Governor of the Leeward Islands. It lies in 17° 6' N. lat. and 61° 45' W. long., and is nearly 108 square miles in area with a coast line of about 70 miles. Antigua was first settled by the English in 1632, and was granted to Lord Willoughby by Charles II. It is much less hilly and wooded than the other Leeward Islands, and is largely given up to the cultivation of sugar, for which one central sugar factory has been erected. Cotton is now planted on a large scale and the island also exports molasses, tomatoes and rum. The population, with Barbuda (estimated, 1952) was 48,214.
